U.S. Scientists Tipped to Win Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Stockholm afternoon newspapers name two American atomic scientists as probable winners of the 1959 Nobel Physics Prize.

The Americans mentioned are Dr. Emilio Segre, 54, and Dr. Owen Chamberlain, 49, both of the University of California.

Prof. Jaroslav Heyrovsky, 69, head of the Polarographic Institute in Prague, was listed as a chemistry prize candidate.

Winners of both prizes will be announced Monday by the Swedish Academy of Science.

Heyrovsky is the father of polarography—a method of analyzing complicated chemical solutions with the aid of electrodes.

Segre and Chamberlain are accredited with the discovery of the anti-proton—a negatively-charged proton.

(Canada is looking north. The national government has launched a long-range policy of development for the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions of the country's northland. Erik Watt, a Winnipeg newspaperman, who has been studying the Arctic for years, has recently completed a trip down the Mackenzie River. Today he starts a series of seven articles on the land and its implications for the nation.)

INUUVIK, N.W.T. (Special) — Apartment lights gleam through the stunted pines and silver birch. Occasionally a truck passes, or a car or a motorscooter. In the still night sound carries long distances, and there is a hum in the air compounded of machinery noises, people talking, vehicles moving.

It's not what you'd think of as the Far North, but it could be the shape of the Far North to come.

This is Inuvik, "Man-Place" in Eskimo, the town that Jack Bull built in plain English. For money long ago ceased to be any object in this government dream town on the east side of the wide Mackenzie River delta, 70 miles south of the Arctic coast.

It started out as a $3,000,000 moving house, conceived in Ottawa five years ago. The lusty, dusty town of Aklavik, 40 miles southwest by air and smack in the middle of the delta, was to be written off and moved to this new location. For, said the experts, you couldn't have an all-weather airstrip in Aklavik; the whole town was sinking into the delta silt as the permafrost melted beneath its buildings, and it wasn't sanitary, either.

Somewhere along the line, the plans went awry. Little things had been overlooked—like the fact, for instance, that most of the 800 permanent and 500 summer residents of Aklavik had no desire to move to Inuvik or anywhere else. But government, once committed, never gives up in the north, and the project went ahead.

And, Topsy-like, it grew... and grew... and grew.

New Shacks Built for New Location

The original plan—to move Aklavik's buildings 70 miles by barge through the delta—was abandoned. Why, asked Ottawa, build a new town and fill it with old shacks? So a new creature came into being, the 512 or Eskimo cabin, a house, with 512 square feet of floor space designed to teach the Eskimo to live like a white—but with no provision for indoor plumbing, half the size of a standard family home outside and far beyond the financial reach of the average trapper.

The Anglican and Roman Catholic residential schools in Aklavik were to be abandoned. So the government drew up plans for a huge new federal day school and two hostels, each capable of housing 250 children. Each includes two two-storey playrooms, with a full-size basketball court in the middle; one for boys, one for girls.

The government buildings and houses in Aklavik were to be abandoned. So rows of crackerbox four-plexes—probably the ugliest buildings which have ever been built in this country—were designed for the civil service. Each two-storey unit has four myopic windows peering out from

12 Die in Flaming Gas As Train, Truck Crash

14 More Hurt In Alberta

PARKLAND, Alta. (CP)—Twelve persons were killed—most of them apparently burned to death—and many injured today in the flaming crash of a propane gas truck and a railway diesel passenger train.

Beer Parlor Crackdown Hailed Here

Closing of five Nanaimo beer parlors Thursday night was praised today by a Victoria beer parlor operator.

"They took matters into their own hands," said Sid Rothman, owner of the Churchill Hotel and part-owner of the Tudor House. "I think they were foolish in their actions."

The hotels—The Nanaimo, Lotus, Plaza, Somerset, and Wellington—were ordered closed for what the Liquor Control Board called "unsatisfactory operation."

However, the closure order followed an investigation by an LCB inspector which revealed some hotel operators refused to sell the small 10-cent, 7½-ounce glass of beer and favored the large 20-cent, 12-ounce glass.

The closure need not last, it was indicated by a responsible senior authority in the government.

"This was a case of a segment of the industry apparently trying the board on for size, a mass revolt perhaps, and in the circumstances the board had no choice but to act as it did," he said.

"As soon as they come back to the 10-cent glasses, the closure will probably be lifted."

The B.C. Hotels Association, to which the affected hotel operators belong, had a meeting in Vancouver Friday and indicated later it will conduct an inquiry into the action of the LCB.

In defence of the remaining 18 Nanaimo beer parlors which still are operating as usual, beer drinkers in the Up-Island city said today that in the majority of the hotels a customer can get a 10-cent glass of beer without question or delay.

Victoria beer parlor operators all stock the 10-cent glass and claim there is no "quibbling" when a customer wants the smaller glass.

WIRE BRIEFS

Appointments Hinted

Steel Talks On

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Steel negotiators met today in a race against time to forge out agreement in the nationwide steel strike before an appellate court rules on a Taft Hartley back-to-work injunction.

Benson in Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson was admitted to Walter Reed Army Hospital today

Eyewitnesses at the scene near this town 65 miles south of Calgary said the truck apparently hit the two-car Canadian Pacific Railway diesel at a crossing. It struck the second coach which immediately was engulfed in flames.

Three persons in the truck were killed and nine in the coach that was struck.

The body of one man in the truck was thrown, aflame, into a roadside ditch. The burned bodies of the other two persons in the truck were found in the cab.

14 IN HOSPITAL

The number of injured could not be determined accurately immediately. Fourteen persons were taken to hospital in Claresholm, 50 miles south of Calgary.

"It was a terrible sight," one woman told reporters. "Bodies of a man and woman were lying on the track and the train and truck were burning."

First to reach the scene was a farmer, Allis Oviatt, and his hired man, Paul Terlesky. They live a half mile from the crossing.

Terlesky said he was watching as the truck and train met and the truck exploded.

FOUR RESCUED

They dragged four persons through the rear door of the second coach. Fierce flames prevented them from rescuing others.

The first coach was not derailed. The second flaming coach was tipped over by the impact and was prevented from falling over by the coupling with forward coach.

Farmers in the area attracted by the fire assisted in taking the injured to hospital.

Doctors and nurses came from surrounding towns and ambulances and fire engines raced to the scene from Lethbridge, Nanton, Staveley, Claresholm and as far away as Calgary.

INTO HYSTERICS

"It was horrible," said Rose Siemky of Fort McLeod, a passenger in the rear seat of the first coach. "Just before the shock of the collision I was watching a girl in the rear coach reading a magazine. Then the collision came."

"Windows shattered, flames leaped into the coach and the girl I was watching went into hysterics."

Socreds Revive Class Warfare B.C. Tories Told

By PETE LOUDON, Times Staff Reporter

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS—Premier Bennett has done more to cement the alliance of CCF and labor than all the union organizers and Socialist politicians, B.C. Conservative Leader Deane Finlayson said today.

Speaking to the opening session of the annual meeting of party executives, Mr. Finlayson said the Bennett government "has held power largely to keep the CCF out of office. He sees his strength waning and he has through hostile attacks and provocative legislation put blood in the eye of labor."

"Class warfare has been revived, employee set against employer and vice versa. The premier hopes to exploit the consequences of such a policy by running as Sir Galahad who again offers to rescue the people from Socialism."

Labor policy of the B.C. Provincial Conservative party was expected to be formed later today as delegates settled down to resolutions.

Expected to emerge as indicated by Mr. Finlayson's remarks earlier is a middle-of-the-road labor policy favoring a complete revision of present labor laws including Bill 43.

But the new Conservative recipe for labor peace was not defined by delegates concerned with the question this morning.

No Hint of Fireworks

The air of the convention was placid. If anyone has a radical course to espouse it wasn't apparent. Most of the policy makers appeared to be quietly prepared to discuss each idea as it came forward.

And few appeared to have a preconceived picture of what the new labor policy should be.

An Agassiz delegate, former Victorian John Green, son of the federal minister of external affairs, felt a membership convention might be necessary to create election policy.

But other sources at the conference felt a membership convention could mean a new leadership contest would evolve; and the last one gave Mr. Finlayson such a light margin of victory it was thought he would not favor risking his position so soon again.

Furthermore such contests create rifts in the party, however temporary, and the theme of Conservatism appears to be unity more than ever.

There were few more than 100 delegates at the opening session but more were expected this afternoon. The weather has cut attendance. Rain has poured down on Harrison almost incessantly in the last 20 hours.

One delegate this morning drew laughter when he looked out at Harrison Lake and asked: "Was that here yesterday?"

FIGHT ON PROXIES
One internal matter was expected to create some controversy later today. This was the question of proxy votes at conventions and conferences.

The Dewdney Conservative Association says it has proven the use of proxies results in buying and selling of votes. This was alleged at the time of the last leadership convention in 1958.

The Dewdney resolution says one delegate should have one vote. Anyone who does not attend should have none.

Stuart Fleming, Conservative MP for Okanagan-Revelstoke, was luncheon speaker at

New Drive For Ship Contracts

Mayor Percy Scurrell will lead a four-man delegation to Ottawa Sunday to fight for ship contracts which would preserve employment for 350 local shipyard employees in the next 18 months.

The mayor and delegates Conway Parrot, past president, Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Alf Toone, secretary-treasurer, Victoria Labor Council and businessman Courtney Haddock are paying their own way to Ottawa.

They plan to talk to Defence Minister Peakes and other officials in the capital on Monday.

THREE-HOUR MEETING

Their decision to make a second personal trip to Ottawa came after a three-hour meeting Friday of the mayor's ship-building sub-committee.

Mayor Scurrell described as "touch-and-go" the chances of Victoria yards being awarded a $3,000,000 contract to build a 10,000-ton ship for the West Indies.

"I believe the pressure the committee put on Ottawa some time ago delayed the granting of the contract to another shipyard elsewhere," said the mayor.

"There is no other apparent reason the contract was not awarded three to four weeks ago."

He said the decision to go to Ottawa came after he spoke to Peakes by telephone Friday night.

The mayor said he didn't believe there was "much chance" of Victoria yards getting a $3,500,000 contract to build a dredger. The government opened tenders for the job, Oct. 9, but hasn't announced which yard will get the job. The mayor said he thinks the government wants to reassess its position on the dredger.

If Victoria yards don't get a contract to build at least one of two 10,000-ton ships for the West Indies, local yards would lose 350 highly-trained personnel, said the mayor.

Last May the mayor led his committee to Ottawa to press for contracts which would keep local yards operating.

He returned, not with promises, but with hopes that the government would build one of the West Indies ships here.

RUSSIA WON'T BACK DELAY IN SUMMIT

LONDON (Reuters)—Russia said today there is "no justification" for postponing an East-West summit conference until next spring.

In an indirect blast at French President de Gaulle's suggestion for delaying the meeting, the Soviet government said that "there are powers in the world" working against an East-West thaw.

A statement issued by Tass, official Soviet news agency, said:

"The Soviet government adheres to its view that the sooner such a meeting is convened the better for the cause of peace."

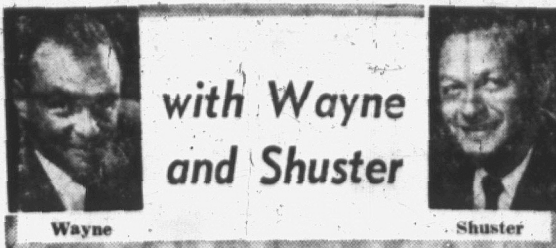

The United States and Britain are known to favor an early meeting but French President de Gaulle recommended Wednesday that it be delayed until the spring.

with Wayne and Shuster

NEW YORK—As you can see from the dateline, your wandering wags are back in Manhattan for another appearance on the Ed Sullivan show Sunday night.

We never fail to be amazed at the bigness of everything in this city. New York has the biggest skyscrapers, the biggest restaurants, the biggest theatres, the biggest hot dogs, the biggest pizzas and the biggest heartburn.

It also has the biggest traffic problem—a state of affairs that would even make the most hardened motorist turn pale.

They've been trying to install parking meters on Seventh Avenue for years. The only trouble is the truck that's carrying them can't find a place to park.

One of the big gags making the rounds in New York today is about the shortest Hollywood marriage on record. She is suing him for the custody of the wedding cake.

From the Wayne and Shuster collection of crazy signs comes this one discovered in a local garage:

A Leddy Special From the Bar

Nark Leddy, the famous American agent, is one of our favorite people. Besides being one of the master-minds of big-time show business he is also a great story-teller. He comes by this talent naturally, having been for 20 years the agent and close friend of a gentleman once billed in vaudeville as Fred Sullivan, The World's Worst Juggler, and later in radio as Fred Allen.

Whenever we visit New York, we look forward to a story-telling session with Mr. Leddy and he never lets us down. Here's a Leddy special:

A man wandered into a New York bar with a cocker spaniel under his arm. "Bartender," he said, placing the little spaniel on the bar, "this is a talking dog."

The bartender looked at the man quizzically and continued polishing his glasses. He'd heard it before.

"How would you like to buy him?" asked the man. "You can have him for five bucks."

"No thanks," said the bartender. "Now beat it, Buddy."

The dog looked up with tears in his eyes. "Please, buy me," he cried.

"Please buy me and take me away from this man. Look at what he's done to me. He never feeds me, he never gives me a bath. Me, once the richest dog in America. I've performed all over the world. I headlined the Ed Sullivan show. I had my own TV series. I made three movies for Paramount and I've done two command performances in England."

"Hey," said the bartender, "he DOES talk."

"I told you," replied the man.

"Why would you want to sell a dog like that for five dollars?"

"Frankly," said the customer. "I'm sick of his constant lying . . . lying . . . lying."

Spurs Hold Soccer Lead

LONDON (AP) — John White, Tottenham Hotspurs' new £20,000 forward, had a hand in two goals that gave his team a 2-1 victory over Nottingham Forest today and kept the London team on top of the English Soccer League First Division standings.

Tottenham centre forward Bobby Smith rapped in both goals. The first came from a pass by White with Smith whipping in the ball from 25 yards.

Forest evened the score before halftime but, with only four minutes to go in the game, White pushed through another pass and Smith was there to hit the winner.

That victory boosted Tottenham's points to 20 from 14 matches—one more than London rivals, West Ham United and two more than defending champions Wolverhampton and Blackburn.

WEST HAM WINS

West Ham United moved into second spot with a 1-0 victory over Blackpool on a goal by left winger Malcolm Musgrove. Preston North End edged Wolverhampton 4-3 and Blackburn won 1-0 at Leeds.

The Preston-Wolves affair was a cut-and-thrust business.

With only 10 minutes to go the score was 3-3. Then right winger Alex Alston dashed through on his own and netted to give Preston a 4-3 victory over the English champions.

Inside left Tom Vernon got Blackburn's first-half goal against Leeds—the only score in the match.

Burnley, third in the First Division standings with 17 points, the same as Preston and Fulham led Manchester City

2-0 at half-time and 4-1 with only five minutes to go. Then City's forwards rallied strongly and hit two goals in a last-ditch rally. But Burnley won by the odd goal.

Fulham, leading 3-0 at Birmingham at the half, lost its touch in the second half but still came out a 4-2 winner.

A penalty shot by Fulham fullback Jimmy Langley in the 67th minute finished Birmingham.

Arsenal, trailing Leicester 2-0, hit back and got a 2-2 tie. Second-half goals by inside forwards Jimmy Bloomfield and John Barnwell gave Arsenal a point.

CASTRO AIMS BLAST AT U.S.

Cuba 'Bombed' Again

HAVANA (AP)—Mysterious planes slipped past Cuban air force patrols and showered Havana with more anti-government leaflets Friday.

The aerial raids were the latest in a series that began Wednesday — a day that brought the most violent show of opposition to Fidel Castro since he took over the Cuban government New Year's Day.

Castro charged that counter-revolutionary planes based in the United States carried out the raids. He denounced U.S. authorities for failing to halt them.

He is expected to take quick advantage of a U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation report Friday that former Cuban revolutionary air force chief Pedro Diaz Lanz admitted flying a leaflet plane over Havana Wednesday.

HUBERT MATOS
... held as traitor

The disclosure is expected to bring new and stronger demands from Castro that Washington take action against Cuban refugees in the U.S. wanted by his government for trial as war criminals.

Diaz Lanz, now living in Miami, Fla., fled Cuba last July. He claims that Castro is a Communist and his regime is riddled with Reds.

Maj. Hubert Matos, military commander in Camaguey province, again raised the issue of Communist infiltration in resigning this week.

The scholarly, 40-year-old Matos, who fought with Castro in the mountains, was arrested and denounced as a traitor by his old friend.

Matos and 30 junior officers who resigned with him are reported being held at an army prison near here.

FRENCH A-BOMB IN FEBRUARY

PARIS (AP)—France's high commissioner for atomic energy says that France plans to explode an atomic bomb but not a more powerful thermonuclear weapon.

The newspaper Paris Jour says the French bomb will be tested the first week of February. No source was given for the story.

Russia Awaits U.S. Answer On Arms Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Russia awaited word from the United States today on the latest Soviet terms for a joint East-West disarmament proposal aimed at winning unanimous support from the 82 United Nations members.

Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov disclosed that the Russians are still insisting that the proposed East-West resolution contain approval of Premier Khrushchev's plan for total disarmament. He expressed confidence that agreement would be reached.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who has been carrying on the negotiations with Kuznetsov, said the Russians' latest counter-proposal was under close study. He made plain, however, that the U.S. will not endorse any particular plan but wants to send all proposals on to the 10-power East-West disarmament committee which opens talk in Geneva next February.

The ACSA ended 31 years of affiliation with the Canadian labor movement — longest of any such group — by the action.

In a special meeting Friday night the ACSA decided to end its affiliation with the Canadian Labor Congress and the AFL because of a resolution lending AFL support to the political party proposed by the CLC and the CCF.

At its annual convention a year ago, the provincial executive of the ACSA was empowered to act in their discretion with regard to continued affiliation with the CLC.

WE'LL TAKE YOU TO THE ORIENT

A Jet Tour is now as "Easy as B.O.A.C."

There's a new booklet out that will open your eyes! It tells you how a trip through the Orient is now as easy as BOAC.

So many people have "done" Europe. You can be among the first to learn first-hand the fascination of the Orient.

From San Francisco, BOAC will fly you swiftly and smoothly by giant jet-prop Britannia to Hawaii, Japan, Hong Kong and Manila. This new booklet tells you where to do... what you will see... what you will do... in detail. Based on Tourist return fares, the basic cost for each of two persons on a glorious 22-day tour of the Orient is $1,538.60 and this includes your connecting flight from Vancouver to San Francisco. If you wish you pay only $154.00 down, the balance in 24 equal monthly instalments.

Ask your Travel Agent for "Jet Tour to Japan and Hong Kong". Or send the coupon direct.

Headlines Guaranteed For Tories

By PETE LOUDON

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS

Organization of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Party is reaching new heights under guidance of a former Victoria insurance agent, Robert Anderson, now Vancouver-based party administrator.

He has instructed the annual meeting of association executives here in subtle methods of increasing party prominence.

A publication labelled "Tory Topics" tells delegates how to "guarantee" headlines, and hold low-cost meetings. Speakers do not have to be Conservative or the subjects political, he advised.

But the speech or speaker "should be news and worth a mention in the press." He suggested union officials, school trustees, community chest planners, civic officials, hospital officials, sporting figures and editors or journalists.

Funds should be raised to provide travel expenses with books on famous Conservatives such as Sir John A. Macdonald and R. B. Bennett.

Local groups should arrange for at least two resolutions to be read at every meeting. "The ones with the most publicity are motions of support," he said.

Mr. Anderson said if local organizations endorse a stand taken by school trustees, for instance, "this in itself guarantees the headline."

Mr. Anderson said the tea-and-coffee party campaign of Oak Bay candidate James A. A. George "could well be a model for any constituency."

Trail riding has changed horses in mid-stream. The Tory candidate now is John Loader.

Alfred Brokenshire, who stole 200 Sacred votes in the Rossland-Trail by-election last December, did not seek re-election but now is president of the local PC body. He is also a Rotary district governor.

Each of the 13 candidates has a different vocation except for two lawyers. The party feels this will widen appeal.

The Conservatives have compiled figures showing how far the CCF has slipped.

In 1945, Socialists accounted for 37 per cent of the vote; in 1949, 35 per cent; in 1952, 30 per cent; in 1953, 30 per cent; in 1956, 28 per cent.

'BENNETT SHOULD BE ASHAMED'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson said Friday Premier Bennett should "be ashamed of himself if he went to New York to peddle what remains of British Columbia."

Told that Premier Bennett indicated his recent visit to eastern United States financial leaders will attract new development capital to B.C., Mr. Finlayson said:

"He is going to go down there to trade off the rest of our wealth. He should stay home and try and develop the country instead."

He said United States interests now control 80 per cent of B.C.'s petroleum and natural gas, 50 per cent of the forests 70 per cent of mineral resources and 70 per cent of manufacturing plants.

NEW SOVIET MOON MAP BASED ON LUNIK DATA

LONDON (UPI)—Soviet scientists will shortly draw a new map of the moon on the basis of data received from Lunik III on its orbit around the side of the earth's satellite never seen by man, Radio Moscow said today.

No mention was made, however, of the photographs of the rocket was said to have taken of the moon's hidden side.

'B.C. Best Financial Place on Continent'

British Columbia is now in "the best financial position of any place on the North American continent," Premier Bennett told a press conference Friday.

He made it clear this is what he also told U.S. financiers at meetings in New York, Boston and Chicago this week. The premier arrived back in Victoria Thursday.

"Contrary to all reports, we didn't visit those cities with the idea of borrowing a nickel," the premier said. "The whole purpose of our visit was to tell U.S. investors and business men that B.C. is now in a key position in world trade."

The premier said U.S. financiers were "tremendously impressed" because B.C. had raised $35,600,000 from its own people by the sale of bonds in the government's Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

"They said they never believed it was possible until they saw the results in their own financial papers. They were frankly impressed by our position... there was none of this blah blah you hear out here."

The premier admitted he is giving "some thought" to the next provincial general election which might come any time between now and the end of 1961.

"You cannot expect me to tell you all my secrets," he grinned.

He once again attacked the Diefenbaker government in Ottawa.

Regional PTA Conference

Saanich Peninsula PFA will host a regional conference of the B.C. Parent Teacher Federation Nov. 5 at the Brentwood Community Hall.

All PTA groups from Comox Hill South will be represented at the conference, which will include a session on members' responsibility as parents in the field of education.

Mrs. B. R. Tupper, president of the B.C. Federation, will welcome the delegates at the registration at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The Desperate Remedy

THE FINANCIAL PLIGHT OF municipalities across Canada is difficult and growing more so. Pressed between increasing expenses and increasing resistance to higher property taxation, the junior governments are in an unenviable position. Nor when revenue is scarce can they readily resort to the loan market, for interest rates today are at record heights.

The president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, Mayor Robert Simpson of Arnprior, proposes that the federal Government establish a bank from which municipalities could borrow at a "reasonable" rate of interest. This might appear on the surface to be an easy solution, but it raises many other problems.

Where will the Government obtain the money which, presumably in the millions of dollars, it will lend to the municipalities? The Government itself is already short of cash, it is running a record deficit, borrowing at unprecedented interest rates, and trying to get the private banks to accept the blame for the "tight money" situation.

It is very unlikely, then, that the proposed loans could come out of the federal Government's well scraped coffers.

The only other source would be through the Bank of Canada which would provide funds by, in effect, creating the money. This procedure, if followed to an extent sufficient to meet the municipalities' demands, would inevitably have inflationary effects—effects which would be added immediately to the inflation that is already pinching persons on pensions and fixed incomes and depreciating the savings of every citizen.

Mr. Simpson says he does not fear inflation from this quarter—that the growing population would absorb the increased currency supply. The answer lies around him—the growing population, while contributing to the great Canadian boom, is not overcoming the inflationary tendencies. The price index continues its climb.

Hence, although the residents of municipalities might save on the costs of borrowing money, they would pay, as residents of Canada, through depreciation of their dollars. The municipalities themselves would find their costs going up—the very thing for which they are now trying to devise a remedy.

The proposal is one solution to a pressing problem, but it is one which neither the nation nor the municipalities could afford.

Family-Juvenile Court

ATTORNEY GENERAL Robert Bonner's proposal to create a Greater-Victoria family and juvenile court comes as good news.

This is a progressive move to deal effectively with domestic problems, particularly those involving broken homes and juveniles. Through the agency of an authoritative court with a less formal air than those now in existence here, it should be possible to handle cases with a desirable flexibility and combine the beneficial features of social work with the convincing power of the bench.

A combined family-juvenile court for the complete area will not, however, cure all domestic trouble or juvenile delinquency. Many other elements are required to make the attack on those problems effective—and even in combination they assure no positive solution.

There must be an adequate probation service accompanying family and juvenile court, with sufficient trained personnel to carry on work which cannot be done under existing circumstances.

There must be a broad approach to conditions leading to broken homes and juvenile delinquency which takes into consideration causes as well as effects.

The family-juvenile court is highly valuable because it should be able to concern itself with developing problems before they reach the critical stage—and also cope with them more satisfactorily should they reach that point because the court will be informed, and the work of supplementary agencies will be co-ordinated.

The success of such programs has been proved in other localities. The number of youngsters per capita committed to institutions by Vancouver, for instance, is below the per capita figure in Victoria, largely, the authorities say, because fuller court and probation facilities exist on the mainland.

Inevitably the proposal to create the new agency in Greater Victoria will raise questions about costs. Whether or not a unified court will be more or less expensive to administer than existing agencies, one point must be kept in mind. On a straight dollars and cents basis, in every instance in which a child who would otherwise go to the boys' or girls' industrial school is saved from committal, an impressive saving is made.

Two or three years ago an independent analysis disclosed that the taxpayer faced an expenditure of about $4,000 a year for every girl in the industrial school, and over $5,000 for every two boys in equivalent detention.

If the family and juvenile court can reduce the number, the cash economy is evident.

It is to be hoped local authorities will co-operate to establish without delay the combined court, adequately staffed, and to provide the essential auxiliary services.

The Foothills Are Steep Too

IF A SUMMIT MEETING IS TO be held at all, there seem to be valid reasons for holding it at an early date, while the momentum of Mr. Khrushchev's goodwill visit to the United States is still being felt. By spring, when General De Gaulle proposes to hold it, who knows how many "incidents" may have occurred to weaken the prospects of peaceful agreement.

Moscow has come out with a "sooner the better" statement, which puts the Russians right alongside Britain and the United States in their desire for an early gathering. One of the chief reasons for the difference of opinion on timing is that the Big Three are prepared to negotiate the Berlin situation—with all that this implies in possible changes in the status of the city—while France insists determinedly that there is no room even for discussion of a change in the position of West Berlin.

The French attitude may reflect what Britain and the United States would like to do, but it is less realistic. It takes less note of the facts of Soviet development. Britain and the United States are bound to defend the interests of West Berlin—they can not relinquish in any way their insistence that West Berlin remain free, and with full access to the West. But there may be certain supplementary points which could be debated without weakening the main position. This the trans-Atlantic allies are now apparently willing to do.

Before a summit meeting can take place, however, there will have to be agreement with France on the Western position, and an understanding with West Germany as well. The Western approaches to the summit are traversed by a thorny path.

They Asked for It

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S LIQUOR control board has acted promptly, sharply and properly to discipline beer parlor operators who have refused to sell 10-cent glasses of beer.

The authorities have suspended the licenses of offenders—and well they might.

Beer parlors may legally sell a 20-cent glass of beer, but they must also, if requested, sell a 10-cent glass. A picture on the front page of this newspaper yesterday illustrated graphically the fact that two 10-cent glasses contain more than a 20-cent glass.

A patron who has swallowed the propaganda that it is more "dignified" to drink a 20-cent glassful is paying more for his beer than he needs—but that is legal. When he is refused a 10-cent glass, the operators are improperly increasing the price of beer.

They can claim no sympathy when drastic action is taken against them.

As Our Readers See It

Why Give Thanks?

It is questionable, if those farmers who having their crops safely harvested could honestly observe the "Thanksgiving" ritual of Monday, knowing that thousands of their neighbors had lost their complete crop, together with their full year's labor.

To return thanks for prosperity and safety by half of the people of a province, a country or a district, while the other half are reduced to poverty, to illness or disease smacks of hypocrisy or a tongue-in-cheek attitude. This applies also to the situation in Japan where last week more than 4,000 persons met death in a typhoon for escape from which we here returned thanks.

Are we justified in thus giving thanks for our escape while others endure what we imply is planned suffering?

'R' Or 'R' Not?

Last Tuesday's issue shows one "Puzzled" by the joke re "two oysters on a plate, one of which remarked '... it was September.' He asked someone to explain it.

It generally is understood that in any month with an "R" in its name oysters are not fit to eat, newly caught that is.

September is the first month with an "R" in it since the four month respite; so they are not to be eaten. Got it "Puzzled"?

Night Life Above the Pacific—and It's Here to Stay

TOKYO—For one who is terrified of airplanes, and doubts that they are here to stay, it is a pretty shaking experience to soar out of Vancouver airport into the limitless dark of the Pacific. But only for about ten minutes. After that the voyage on the Canadian Pacific Airline's magnificent Britannia was like a jolly house party. And we hadn't been in the air long before I discovered the first of innumerable paradoxes that were to greet me in Japan.

Hutchison

I discovered the first of innumerable paradoxes that were to greet me in Japan. At Vancouver in an expensive public eating place, we had consumed, or rather had been unable to consume, a typical Canadian meal and thus boarded the Britannia at 10 p.m. with ravenous hunger and the hope that the CPA might afford us a sandwich and maybe a cup of coffee before morning.

YES, said the Japanese hostess (who looked like a geisha girl in an old woodcut) there would be a little supper if we wanted it. Whereupon she and her four colleagues produced a six-course dinner far better than any I have ever tasted in the best Canadian hotel. It included champagne and every form of spirits that the most thirsty traveller could desire, and the Britannia was so smooth in flight that a full wine glass balanced on the tray without spilling a drop.

The lady who is accompanying me on this trip allowed that she couldn't eat at night but might be persuaded to accept a tiny snack. In the end she was persuaded to accept soup, roast chicken, three vegetables, salad, dessert, fruit and cheese, all washed down with champagne.

THE Japanese hostesses are the original hidden persuaders you have read about and the steward (whom I took to be of Dutch origin, a tall, handsome young man) seemed to make a career of plying the passengers with refreshment. When he brought around a huge platter of red-hot chicken he asked me, with complete innocence: "Sir, are you a leg man or a breast man?" Blushing slightly, I said I was a leg man and he filled my plate with drumsticks.

Never having been able to sleep in airplanes, I steeled myself for a dreadful night. But I had no sooner pushed my seat back into a horizontal position, my feet in the airline's comfortable slippers, before I became unconscious (after only two glasses of champagne, mind you).

WITHIN that winged cigar of aluminum, some twenty thousand feet above the ocean, there was no sound but the slight snore of a stout gentleman from Kansas City. Ninety-odd passengers were asleep as the Britannia began to drop down, around four a.m., upon the outer tip of the Alaskan peninsula.

It was an eerie thing to find a range of black mountains rushing up toward the plane and within them only a faint wink of light—the minute target of the landing field which the navigator had picked out unerringly from the rather large area of the Pacific. Without a flutter the Britannia glided down to her target and landed without a bump.

IN this remote stopping place there appeared to be nothing but an air-drome, a waiting room and a coffee bar some seven hundred miles from nowhere. Oddly enough, it wasn't cold, even in mid-October, and we took a stroll down the lonely airstrip without our overcoats.

The rest of that night has no memories for me. It was exactly 10.30 next morning when I awoke to find many of the passengers still asleep, a hot breakfast appearing from the galley, and a thin streak of crimson appearing in the southern sky. The dawn, I guessed, was just beating us into Tokyo.

SO it did, in time to reveal, on our right, the blue pyramid of Mount Fuji, and, below it, the brown, checked carpet of Japan's two-acre farms lying in lineoleum pattern around Tokyo's huge bay.

The Britannia slid smoothly into the airport at about 2 p.m. Vancouver time, or 7 a.m. by the clocks of Tokyo, after only 14 hours of flight and the loss of one day on the calendar. And after ten hours' sleep and two meals such as you can't buy in most Canadian restaurants, I remembered that I had often needed three days and four nights to cross Canada by train yet here I was on the soil of Asia, not much more than half a day from Vancouver.

THE CPA, its pilots, stewardesses and refreshments have persuaded me that the airplane is here to stay. But even more unlikely things—wild, incredible and in their way strangely inspiring—awaited me in Japan, whose hospitable government is giving its Canadian guests the happiest experience of a lifetime.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

A Stormy Night Story of the Man Who Came Back

IN this space recently I wrote a piece about haunted houses in Victoria when I was a boy and of the spine-chilling, delicious, scary feeling when we were brave enough to tiptoe near one at night with a big moon playing hide-and-seek with the clouds. One result was suggestions from kindly readers about other and honest-to-goodness haunted houses. And about real poltergeists who obligingly moan, or scream, or bang on walls to manifest themselves.

Now I did never know of any poltergeist in any of our private haunted house but I ran into two dandies up near Quatsino who, for all that I know may still be hanging about in ethereal loneliness. However, I did not see these enchanting poltergeists nor hear them at their nocturnal parties.

My evidence, if such it may be called, was hearsay; and hearsay from some tale-tellers who were not perhaps above slightly embellishing their stories. Particularly if it were on a night of high wind and lashing rain borne on the ragged back of a southeaster roaring in from the Pacific.

The first tale was told by Tom Lidstad on just such a night.

Tom's story was about a Swede who was known to be prospecting on the west coast somewhere, about where Zeballos is now. He was a secretive man and had little inclination to show hospitality to fishermen who might land near his shack. Lindemann, who may not exactly have been his name) was not a popular or gregarious soul.

It was in the days when Quatsino boasted a saloon; a Saturday night and the little saloon was filled with noisy men.

So scarcely anyone turned when the door was slammed open and Lindemann burst into the room, waving a thick and heavy poke while he shouted: "I've struck it rich, boys, I've struck pay dirt. All the drinks are on me."

He had indeed struck pay dirt if the weight of his rawhide poke was any indication, and he was soon the friend of everyone in the packed room.

Lindemann got very drunk but in his fogged mind was some warning that kept him from telling where his find lay and that also urged him not to stay too long.

So, long before his poke was even dented, the canny Swede left the saloon to untie his boat and set off for his shack. None saw him actually step into the boat, his erstwhile friends, each busy with his own thoughts, stayed at the bar and knowing looks were passed between pals.

It was the more surprising then that when daylight came it was plain to see that Lindemann's boat was still tied to dock. Of him there was no sign and none has seen him—in the flesh—since that one riotous night.

You may believe that it wasn't long before a minor stampede converged on Lindemann's empty shack and fanned out among the hills at the end of a well-defined path that apparently led nowhere.

There was no sign of even "color" to encourage the eager crew. Lindemann's strike was forgotten.

I should tell you that Lindemann's shack was really a stout log house with a fine stone fireplace.

Now, a strange woman arrived at Quatsino; a silent woman, many years after the Swede disappeared from the saloon.

She was from the American southwest. A very self-sufficient type who astonished and delighted the kids by rolling Bull Durham cigarettes with one hand and closing the sack with her teeth.

The Evenson's made her welcome with their famed hospitality and under the kindly influence of hot-coffee and hot fresh bread the strange woman unbent a little.

"Who's the funny little guy down on Esperanza Inlet?" she asked Ed Evenson.

"There's nobody there that I ever heard of," said Ed. "At least not for quite a while. What would he be like?"

"Me and my husband, we came up from the States in our sloop and anchored in Esperanza to sort of look around. My husband likes to prospect for gold."

"We went ashore and found a good log house which we took over. It was empty."

"Well, one night there was a wild storm blowing and my husband had gone down the coast for supplies. I was alone and a big fire roared up the chimney."

"All of a sudden the door was flung open and a man walked in. He was dripping wet and his clothes were soaked—sodden like he had fallen in the sea."

"I didn't say anything; just watched him as he stretched his hands to the fire and the water made puddles on the dirt floor. The door was still open."

"Then he turned and walked out, leaving the door swinging. The cold gripped the room. I shut the door. Who is he?"

Ed was a little pale by this time ... he knew who it was. Lindemann was still protecting his secret.

THEY SPEAK DIFFERENT LANGUAGES

How to Bring the Polar Groups Nearer a Common Equator

THE other evening I happened to be one of a large group of people listening to a speech. Every one in the group was either a producer or a consumer in what we in the trade call "the educational field," or else was a close relative of someone so engaged, so it is not surprising that the speech was concerned broadly with the topic of education. It was a good speech, of the kind that is called "stimulating and provocative," so much so in fact that I stayed awake for its entire duration, a thing I very rarely do on formal occasions in hot halls.

Emery

If you weren't there you missed an opportunity to hear a particular point of view lucidly presented and ably argued, but you can take comfort from the fact that the argument is one you are going to hear pretty frequently from now on.

Perhaps the classic statement of this particular thesis is contained in Sir Charles Snow's recent Rede lecture (published under the title: "The Two Cultures and the Scientific Revolution" by the Cambridge University Press), and I should like to summarize it for you.

Today, says Snow, the gap between the scientist and the non-scientific intellectual is widening at such a rate that they are, to all intents and purposes, living in two different cultures. In one "polar group," to use his terminology, are the scientists (more specifically, the physical scientists), and in the other are the writers and other intelligentsia.

To the scientists, the writers appear shortsighted, dilettantish, indifferent to the fate of their society; the writers, in turn, characterize the scientists as "shallowly optimistic."

This "polarization is loss to us all" for two reasons: if there were closer contact between the intelligent scientist and the equally intelligent non-scientist, each might stimulate the other by a complementary exchange of ideas; and, secondly, the non-scientist might become less hostile to those benefits of applied science which alone can provide food for the hungry millions of today, and the starving billions of the day after tomorrow.

With this part of Snow's argument it is not difficult to agree. At the same time, it may be worth questioning the practicality of the solution which it implies.

It is easy enough to say that all arts students should also be thoroughly grounded in the rudiments of science, and all science students taught to turn out a page of polished hexameters; the Renaissance ideal of the all-round man equally gifted in every department of human thought and action is clearly the target at which we all should aim—but it may be permissible to enquire how this aim is to be achieved.

What has brought about this "polarization" of which Sir Charles so movingly speaks? Is it not caused by the specialization which has been common alike to the arts and the sciences over the last century or so?

The aspiring young scientist who wishes to obtain a place at Cambridge would be ill-advised to spend too much time delving into the hendecasyllables of Catullus, for he is bound to be passed over in favor of the single-minded young embryo-Einstein who has kept his nose glued to a textbook of thermodynamics.

The specialist is the product of an examination system; the examinations in science are set and marked by the scientific intellectuals who form the group which Sir Charles—unconsciously, perhaps, but unmistakably—prefers.

Three centuries ago it was still possible for an exceptional man to say: "I have taken all knowledge to be my province." Today even an exceptional man is hard put to it to keep up with the contributions to learning in his own particular field.

Not only do scientists and non-scientists fail to understand each other; a scientist in one field speaks a different language from one in another—and I hear rumours that different breeds of physicist are beginning to emerge, who have little in common one with another.

What is needed above all is common ground on which all intelligent people can meet, and I can suggest two possibilities: philosophy and poetry.

The scientist who is not interested in philosophy pays no attention to science would do well to take another look at the preface to the "Lyrical Ballads." A common interest in both these studies would provide a language with which the two "polar groups" might communicate, and communication is surely the first essential if any understanding is to be reached.

Since Sir Charles has been pretty hard on my side (I speak as a pseudo-intellectual of vaguely artistic-literary pretensions) perhaps I may adduce an additional reason for recommending the twin studies of philosophy and poetry: that they might serve to improve the standard of scientific writing. "Polar groups," indeed. "That's an ill phrase," Sir Charles, "a vile phrase" ...

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

FROM TIME TO TIME I feel my lack of acquaintance among famous people as a serious professional handicap. Today, therefore, let me make the most of the tiny crumb that fortune has thrown me; I have been reading Christopher Hassall's biography of Sir Edward Marsh, and once, by chance, met Sir Edward.

It was not one of history's great moments. We shook hands; he asked me how I did, and then turned his attention to the others, all of whom called him Eddie and seemed to be intimates. As he was not watching me, I was at liberty to watch him.

He was well worth watching. Very few men deserve to be called "elegant," but he was so. In manner as well as in dress, great care, and combined with his clothes were perfection and his eyeglass seemed part of him (which is very rarely the case), but it was his easy informality and the vivacity of his conversation which delighted.

Although he spoke rapidly, his words were chosen with great care, and combined with literary with the "U" here was a man, one felt, who could never sin by calling a looking-glass a mirror, and who would step into the flames rather than call a chimney piece a mantel.

Vanishing Type Collector's Item

There was about him an air of scholarly foppishness which did not conceal his lively and eager intelligence. He was a collector's item, and I am lucky to have met him, even fleetingly.

Edward Marsh was a man of a type vanishing everywhere, and virtually unknown in Canada—a personal patron of the arts. He was not a rich man, and I do not mean that he kept artists, but rather that he was able to give painters and writers and actors what our billionaire foundations and arts councils cannot—sympathy, criticism, scolding, an occasional drink, a little money and that understanding which they need more than anything else.

To a large circle of artists he was what Ben Bolt was to sweet Alice; they went with delight when he gave them a smile and trembled with fear at his frown. Not that he was a dictator or a bully; he was a man who knew what art was, and cherished those who created it.

He Had Power Without Pomposity

This was the reason for his celebrity, but without it he would be remembered as a civil servant of the rarest sort; as secretary to Sir Winston Churchill and to other ministers of the Crown he was knowledgeable, tactful, firm in his opinions without being aggressive, and without pomposity or that sense of being a power behind the throne which ruins so many advisors.

He gave all of himself to his work and his friendships, because he suffered a blow early in life which made domestic life impossible; mumps, which is so funny to those who have not got it, robbed him of his sexual powers. It was characteristic of him to turn a misfortune into a strength.

The most interesting part of Mr. Hassall's book, to me, is his account of Marsh's service to the writers he knew as a critic and helper.

When they received proofs of their books, they sent them to Eddie to be "diabolized"; the term was his own, and comes from Advocatus Diaboli—the cleric whose task it is to present all the contrary evidence when a canonization is in process.

He read the proofs for errors, but he also read them for faults of grammar and he mercilessly probed them for stupidities, for non sequiturs, for dullness, for quagmires of ambiguity.

He would fight with Churchill tooth and nail about a hyphen; he would turn over a dozen books in the London Library to expose a misquotation. He was a tiger in the cause of good writing.

Somerset Maugham's Tribute

The miracle is that he would do all this with humility. Critics and proof readers sometimes fall victims to their own pedantry, and think that they have exploded an author because they have caught him in a mistake. Marsh never did so, and was flattered when Somerset Maugham wrote a graceful but not excessive tribute to his helpfulness.

He never soared above his proper height, which is what scholars are so prone to do when they come to the aid of gifted but unscholarly men.

Part of his monument is the number of good books which carry, in the list following, "the author expresses his gratitude for invaluable assistance to . . . the name of Sir Edward Marsh."

Some readers of Mr. Hassall's book (Longmans) have found fault with it because it is long. Length is comparative, and though 732 pages—inclusive of the appendices and a very full index—might be long for some lives, I did not find it so for this one.

Edward Marsh knew so many people, did so many interesting things, played so characteristic a part in the political and artistic life of his long day, that his story must not be cramped; robbed of detail, it is robbed of significance.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Two-Man Show Reveals Exceptional Promise

This week, at the Apollo Art Galleries, 1106 Broad Street, and through till November 3, Victorians have an opportunity of getting to know the paintings and graphics of Fleming Jorgensen and Michael Morris.

The first impression one receives upon entering the Apollo Art Galleries is of spaciousness; for the arrangement of the combined exhibition is such that each artist offsets the other to advantage, and there is no sense of intrusion. Indeed, the Apollo Art Gallery would appear to have undergone a face-lifting, and I for one cannot refrain from expressing the hope that long may this happy, professional state continue.

The work of Mr. Fleming Jorgensen is new to me. He hails originally from Denmark and is, I believe, in his early thirties. He paints well in oils and less well in water-colors, and his monotypes are in between.

His handling of oil paint, casein and wax, a tricky medium mixture which Mr. Siebner's students go for in a big way, is quite excellent. He has an air of promise as colorist (are these ice-blue blues Danish in subconscious inspiration?) and I feel that once he has learned to give a bit more body to his pigment, then the textural surfaces will be far more happy to observe.

gensen continues to paint as he is doing now, with obvious intelligence in approach and confidence in handling, then I feel sure that he will amply reward any encouragement which he is given.

One of Few

Mr. Michael Morris, who lives in Sidney, is on the threshold of a career as a professional artist. He is one of the few young people practising an artist's craft about whom one can safely say that it would be ridiculous to think what has emerged all along, is a consistency of progress so that there is at least every sign that this young painter is beginning to speak with a voice of his own.

Whenever I see works by Michael Morris I feel that sooner or later this energy must be harnessed and firmly disciplined, otherwise his present state of artistic anarchy will let him down with a bump.

Fortunately, Mr. Morris is well aware of what lies ahead and I am sure that once he has had the occasion to widen his horizons, British Columbia will be able to claim that it has nurtured a first-rate talent. Michael Morris, provided he doesn't rush ahead too fast, shows every promise of becoming a major Canadian artist.

MORRIS

Challenge

Particularly noticeable, I think, is his sense of design, and he has a leaning towards decorative effect.

Obviously Mr. Jorgensen's biggest challenge is to create works which are more profoundly organized and thought out. This weakness in structure softens any impact beyond the immediate response to pattern and harmony, but for all that he is a sufficiently promising artist to make him worthwhile watching.

Undoubtedly the work in which he is seen to best advantage is "Oriental Lanterns" (11); the smaller painting of "Open Windows" (4) is filled with interesting areas, though the final composition just falls short of being a complete pictorial statement.

I should say that if Mr. Jorgen is following any other occupation.

It is difficult to realize that he is still in his teens, for in much of his work there is a maturity far beyond his years; the mind of a mature painter, not entirely sophisticated.

While it is obviously impossible not to be impressed by the year in year out production of this young man (though I doubt if it is either greater or less than his contemporaries about to enter art school), the present exhibition of his work is not entirely satisfactory.

Mr. Morris is a keen experimentalist, in itself an admirable and essential quality for any artist, irrespective of age. This has, however, led to the inclusion in this exhibition of works which by any standards can only be judged as experiments. What emerges, and

Sense of Style

I commend especially to your attention his oil paintings "Breakfast" (25), "Hands" (24), "Man" (22). His ink drawings and monotypes impart a good sense of style and feeling for medium. His handling of "Words" (35) is particularly adroit and satisfying.

Alas, I found his otherwise impressive canvas "Beach" (23) marred by the faulty handling of the seated figure on the left. She is not seated but soars skyward and outward over the plane!

Even so, in this one painting, we witness the formation of a painter of whom we can confidently expect a great deal more.

Biography of Indian P.M. Objective, Revelatory

(Reviewed by Donald G. Ingham)

NEHRU: A political biography, by Michael Brecher. Oxford University Press, London, Toronto, New York and Bombay. 640 pages. $8.95.

With its ponderous title, this book could be a dismal record suitable only for the reference shelves in university libraries, but Dr. Brecher has shown himself to be a scholar who can write.

Certainly it is not light reading. It demands attention from the reader, who can only move slowly and leisurely through its pages. But in return for a sincere and interested approach, it gives a brilliant and vital picture of one of the world's most controversial figures Jawaharlal Nehru, prime minister of India.

It is based on Mr. Nehru's own writings and speeches, archives of the Congress Party, previously unpublished letters to and from the prime minister, confidential government reports, and several personal interviews by Dr. Brecher with Mr. Nehru. Even its severe critics admit it is authoritative and complete.

The book is of necessity both a biography of Mr. Nehru and a history of the Congress Party of India, since the two are so closely allied. As regards its treatment of history, it is not unusual, and certainly the highlights of Mr. Nehru's life are well known. It is the excellent combination in one volume and narrative which makes this work outstanding.

IN DETAIL

It opens with an account of the prime minister's family, then gets to the work at hand with a thoroughgoing biography of Nehru's childhood, boyhood, student days at Harrow, and finally the start of his political career.

This sets the stage for the true meat of the book—the struggle for India's independence, her achievement of same, and conduct as nation up to 1958.

Dr. Brecher makes no brief for the prime minister, but merely recounts the facts. He is sympathetic, however, to the point of insinuating that if things did not always go as they should, it was because the vast problems of vast India would require even more work than the tireless, brilliant, devoted prime minister could give.

DIVIDED OPINION

A measure of its worth might be that critics of both English and Indian publications are divided in their opinions, some calling it "an important event," and others dismissing it as a "wordy, windy biography, and saying nothing worthwhile in the process."

The author is associate professor of political science at McGill University. A fellow-ship enabled him to spend the academic year of 1955-56 in England and India in order to gather first-hand information, and he made another trip to India in 1958 to bring it up to date.

For anyone who wants to know modern India better than he ever has before, to understand its innumerable complexities, and to feel the spirit of its people, then this book is a must.

However, it should be approached with respect, and not even opened up by anyone not prepared to give up light reading for quite a few days. D.G.I.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON

What is happening in this city must be obvious to anyone of fair intelligence by now. We have caught on to the current Canadian appetite for culture and are jumping onto the chuckwagon by the dozens—in fact by the hundreds.

Everything that offers an experience in music—from symphony to jazz—anything that provides contact with the living stage, whether it be a corny comedy or aesthetic ballet, gets the attention of an ever-widening section of the public.

It's the same trend all over the country; not unexpected; somewhat overdue, altogether gratifying, and a symptom of our emergence from national adolescence.

In this city, soon—we hope—to become a university town, where its best promise for the future lies in becoming a centre of activity for all the arts, lively and otherwise, the trend is especially encouraging.

We can even expect that the auditorium will become a vital issue! No longer a hazard but a popular project in city hall politics.

It is impossible, at this time, to lay too much stress on the importance of encouraging the resident musicians, artists, actors and so forth, in their undertakings. They are the very heart of the matter. If they succeed others will come—and remain.

A community's reputation is not established and upheld by the floating population but by what originates from within, through continuous activity from month to month and year to year.

Victoria Symphony, the Musical Art Society which encourages phases of music making and talent not regularly touched upon by most other organizations, the Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Society, the Music Festival, Victoria Choral Society—these are basic centres of essential activity.

For active realization of the importance of promoting internal well-being, laurels should go this week to the organist-music director of the Church of Our Lord, J. Ingram Smith, and his pastor, for presenting Mary Goward and Wendy Gerry, two highly-gifted young Victoria violinists, and a talented local singer, Mrs. Alice Waddell, in a program of sacred music at the church, Sunday evening.

'Messiah' Soloists Wisely Chosen

Laurels, too, to the Symphony Society for featuring the schools Junior Symphony Orchestra at this weekend's pair of concerts; and to the Victoria Choral Society and its director, Stanley Hoban, for giving preference to four fine local singers when engaging soloists for their forthcoming performance of the "Messiah."

The Choral Society will sing the oratorio on Dec. 9 at Metropolitan Church, and I, for one, am delighted at their wisdom in selecting Ruth Champion, Eleanor Duff, Michael Rogers and John Dunbar as principals.

In addition one solo, "How Beautiful Are the Feet," is being given to a member of the soprano section of the choir, Mrs. Eileen Paul.

In the past city choral groups have often gone a lot further and fared not nearly so well as this organization certainly will do with this highly competent and endowed group of Victoria artists.

While touching on the subject of December events it is good to note that the Christmas season this year, will be quite richly enhanced with a type of presentation that has been almost totally missing for the last several seasons.

Musical and dramatic performances that can be shared, during the Yule holidays, by parents and children are particularly rare from a point of view of quality of material offered.

Only exception that comes to mind at the moment is the St. Barnabas presentation of the Nativity.

PROTEGE of Vancouver's Theatre Under the Stars, lovely Norah Holliday has been one of the mainland's busiest singers over the last five years. She will appear as solo artist with the Vancouver Norwegian Male Choir tonight at Oak Bay Junior High School. Studying under scholarship at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, and University of British Columbia opera school, as well as with famed lieder singer Aksel Sliotz, Miss Holliday has sung leading roles with TUTS since 1956 and has been featured on TV and CBC radio programs.

Three-Act Play To Be Presented By New Society

On Tuesday next at 7.30, Victoria's newest dramatic organization, the St. Matthias Little Theatre Society, will hold a reading to cast its first full-length production.

An English comedy, "Quiet Weekend," has been chosen and will be directed by Veronica Thomas, a well-known Theatre Guild actress.

Try-outs for the cast of 13 will be held at St. Matthias Hall and production dates have been set for Jan. 14, 15 and 16.

ASSISTING Musical Art soloists Ruth Champion and John Dunbar in recital at Holyrood House Wednesday evening will be organist Richard Proudman, who on this occasion will be piano accompanist, an instrument and a role of which he has great command. Soprano Ruth Champion, one of this city's finest singers, was the lovely Rosalinda in the G and S Society's "Fledermaus," presented at the Royal Theatre last spring. She will sing a group of duets with Mr. Dunbar and both artists have chosen fine numbers from their repertoires for solo groups. The concert will begin at 8.30.

Advantage to All In Ballet Training

TORONTO (CP)—Taxi drivers and ballet dancers must have the same types of co-ordination, says Kay Ambrose, artistic adviser for the National Ballet Company.

She says ballet dancers, athletes and taxi-drivers all must learn to co-ordinate the movements of their hands and legs. "That's why the New York Yankees do some ballet," she says. "It helps train the brain to flash the correct signals to the hand and feet at the same time."

Although Miss Ambrose loves baseball, hockey and wrestling, her first love is the ballet, which she describes as "the refinement of sports." Besides her ballet work, she has been a plumber and a streetcar operator, and says she is a good cook, nurse, masseur and Hindu dancer.

Miss Ambrose says she prefers the Hindu dances since "ballet is a marathon" and her dancing is best accomplished in short spurts.

ORCHESTRA SURVEY BY CC

OTTAWA (CP)—Sir Bernard Heinze, 65, eminent Australian music teacher and conductor, is to act as consultant in a Canada Council investigation of the artistic problems of Canada's symphony orchestras, the council announced today.

A date for the start of the survey was not announced. But during a three-month visit, Sir Bernard is to attend rehearsals, concerts and talk with conductors across Canada.

His recommendations, coupled with a council financial survey of orchestras already under way will be used as a blueprint for future council support in the orchestral music field.

TOSCAR CLASS "THE NUN'S STORY" (Royal)—If truthful—as far as a non-Catholic layman can tell adaptation and characterizations are the hallmark of movie-making—success then surely both Warner Brothers' "The Nun's Story" and Audrey Hepburn, as the principal character in it, should be nominated for Academy Awards as "best picture" and "best actress" respectively.

One searches for an adjective to describe the story and one comes up with "beautiful" for it is that in essence. And yet there is more, too. There is the reality of the documentary combined with heart-tugs of pain, sorrow and the pangs of deep humility.

Based on Kathryn C. Hulme's best-seller—some 4,000,000 copies—"The Nun's Story" begins with Miss Hepburn bidding her father, her brother and sister farewell as she enters a Roman Catholic convent to devote her life to the service of Christ as Sister Luke.

It is here that the two-and-a-half-hour film enters its documentary phase, depicting the life of a nun, step by step, in all its stages. Whereas there may be some who will find this part overly long, most should find it intensely interesting. Certainly this reviewer cannot remember anything to compare with it in other films of this nature.

Requirements of a nun are beyond the comprehension of normal mortals. The silence, the self-abasements, the eternal seeking for humility so to be in completeness with God, the rituals, the self abasements, the confessions, seem almost too much for an ordinary woman to bear. That many fell out along the way including Sister Luke—and she after 17 years—attests to the severity of the path.

Now a fully-qualified nun Sister Luke is sent to a school for tropical medicine. And after a term serving in a mental institution goes to the Congo where she is assigned to work with Dr. Peter Finch, brilliant doctor and scoffing agnostic.

TO CARRY ON might spoil the story. It is suffice to say

Violin, Vocal Items At Church Concert

A post-Evensong recital of sacred music is to be presented at The Church of Our Lord, Humboldt and Blanshard Streets, on Sunday, starting at 8.30.

Three talented Victoria artists—Mrs. Alice Waddell, Mary Goward and Wendy Gerry—will perform vocal and violin music in conjunction with the church organist, J. Ingram Smith.

Mr. Smith will open the recital with an Allegro from an Organ Concerto by Corelli, and will close it with a Processional March by Martin Shaw.

Mrs. Waddell's songs will be "Hear Ye, Israel," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and Del Riego's "The Way, the Truth, the Light."

A solo, Bach's "Air on the G String," will be played by violinist Mary Goward; Miss Gerry's violin solos will be excerpts from two Corelli Sonatas. Also, the two gifted Victoria College students will present a duet, the second movement from Vivaldi's Concerto Grosso in D Minor.

Grand Week for Music; Orchestras, Vocalists

By HANS GRUBER

About our exceptional symphony soloist for tomorrow afternoon and Monday-evening, baritone Donald Bell, I told you last week; he, however, will not be our only guest.

There will be a complete second orchestra heard in addition to the Victoria Symphony — the Junior Scholastic Symphony, the creation of Dorothy Evans, who will conduct the young orchestra in Frescobaldi's Organ Toccata in D at the very beginning of both the Sunday afternoon and Monday evening concert.

Our young colleagues, with Mrs. Evans, will entertain again around intermission time, with the three movements from Handel's "Water Music" Suite, and with a transcription of Wagner's Prelude to Meistersinger — portions from which opera happen to be also off the program of the senior symphony! This young orchestra is a manifestation of the greatest importance. Not only will it supply future players for the symphony orchestra — not so future, incidentally, as two or three of our young colleagues are already in the senior orchestra — but let us be clear that such efforts on the part of young amateurs like these provide the foundation upon which the highest professional orchestral accomplishments rest.

Then on Wednesday evening

Gruber

VSO PRESENTS JR. SYMPHONY

With Mrs. Dorothy Evans conducting, Greater Victoria Schools Junior Symphony Orchestra will open Sunday's symphony concert at 8.15, playing the Frescobaldi Toccata in D Major. Regular program by Victoria Symphony will begin at 3 and the junior orchestra will play again during the intermission.

On Monday night the juniors will play at 8.15 and again during the intermission.

next, Victoria Musical Art Society begins its current season at Holyrood House presenting four leading Victoria musicians — two singers, John Dunbar and Ruth Champion, pianist Richard Proudman and flautist Maurice Crawford.

In terms of length of service to Victoria, the Musical Art Society is easily the city's senior musical organization. And what a distinguished record of service it is!

Their only financial interest is in assisting, by way of scholarships, deserving young artists from this area, and they have distributed their largesse with unerring discernment. Robin Wood, no less, is an alumnus of the Victoria Musical Art Society.

It is greatly worth the while of all of us to go and hear their opening concert of the season — to repeat — next Wednesday evening, at Holyrood House.

Symphony soloist Donald Bell ... at 23 an international reputation.

Hollywood Stars Depose Waltz King of Old Vienna

By HENRY GRIS

United Press International
VIENNA (UPI)—After two months of friendly occupation, Hollywood has given Vienna back to the Austrians. The place may never be the same.

Two big American film companies, Columbia and Paramount, spent several weeks each this recent tourist season making movies in the Austrian capital and injecting about three million dollars into the Austrian economy.

First came Columbia to do "The Franz Liszt Story" with British star Dirk Bogarde. The word soon got out that 500 extras were needed, mostly to fill the halls for Liszt's concerts.

ROYAL FAMILIES

The casting director had to hire a special policeman to keep from being trampled to death by the herd of Austrians seeking the $4-a-day jobs. The applicants included kin of the Habsburgs and other European royal families.

Business was especially brisk in the autograph department. Miss Loren thought she could escape from the public eye when she and her husband took a back-street apartment. On their second day in town, however, a Viennese newspaper printed their address. So, from morning to night, children by the score stood outside the apartment waiting for Sophia's signature.

Some of the more enterprising youngsters got so many, in fact, that they sold their extras for more than five shillings or 20 cents a piece.

Those who benefitted most from the Hollywood invasion, though, were the people who run the Hofburg Palace, once the imperial household but now available at a modest rental for weddings and other such occasions.

Both films had scenes made around the palace, causing one Hofburg official to comment: "We can always get those wedding parties. This Hollywood business has been gravy as far as we're concerned."

Paramount hit town a couple of weeks later to shoot "A Breath of Scandal." No opera star or member of royalty ever commanded a wilder reception than the one for Italian actress Sophia Loren when she arrived to take over the leading role.

The crowds were also curious to get a glimpse of French idol, Maurice Chevalier, who came to Vienna for the first time since 1936 to play the part of Miss Loren's father.

OPERA AUDITIONS PLANNED

Metropolitan Opera regional auditions will again be held in Victoria this year and are planned for early December, actual date to be announced later.

Stanley Hoban, internationally known concert artist, teacher and conductor, has been appointed chairman for Greater Victoria and the Island. His panel will consist of Hans Gruber, Mrs. Margaret Abbott and Times critic Audrey Johnson.

Taciturn Johansson Floors Interviewer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Found: The successor to Gary Cooper. He's none other than heavyweight boxing champ, Ingemar Johansson.

It's too early to judge his acting prowess; he has only started his first film role in Hall Bartlett's All the Young Men. But as an interview subject, Ingo beats the veteran Coop by three yups.

Here is a sample of his dialogue:

Q. Did you ever act before?
A. No.

Q. In school, perhaps?
A. Oh, yes.

Q. Do you remember what roles?
A. No.

Q. Are you a movie fan?
A. Yes.

Q. Who are your favorite stars?
A. Lots of them.

Q. Are you nervous about acting?
A. Wry smile No.

Undaunted, I followed him through his first day in films.

STOLID SWEDE

In the Columbia makeup department, Ben Lane applied pancake to the broad face of the stolid Swede, darkened his eyebrows and gave him a darkened sponge. Ingo's brother, Rolf, who will also play a role in the film, watched nearby and scoffed at the suggestion that the champ would be nervous.

"They expected him to be nervous when he fought for the championship," Rolf said, "but he wasn't. He certainly wouldn't be nervous about acting."

Meanwhile back in the makeup chair—

Q. How much money are you getting for the picture?
A. I don't know. (It's reported in the neighborhood of $50,000 which is the kind of neighborhood Ingo likes).

Q. What are your plans after the picture?
A. I have to fight Floyd Patterson first.

Q. What about Archie Moore?
A. Wry smile I have to fight Patterson first.

Johansson changed from his slacks, red sport shirt and blazer into the uniform of a United Nations soldier. He plays a navy gunner (he manned an anti-aircraft gun during his 15 months in the Swedish navy) who has lost his ship during the Korean War.

Winter Travel Survey

Peering into their sun-lit crystal ball, motor club officials in Florida from Jacksonville to the Keys report glowing optimism about the coming winter season.

Travel to Florida, a record-breaker last winter after the chills of the 1957-58 season, is expected to reach another all-time high. Extensive promotion on the part of the southernmost state and ever-expanding facilities will attract thousands of new and repeat visitors.

The unceasing motel building boom in the Miami area is keeping accommodations in pace with tourist demands although motor club travel counselors foresee increased interest in the rapidly-developing West and Gulf Coast areas where additional facilities are being opened for the first time this winter.

The Hearst San-Simeon estate in California contains an estimated $50 million in art treasures, as well as many valuable antiques.

$440

A SAILOR'S LIFE is a happy life far from land-locked cares. Especially when you cast off on Orient & Pacific's 28,000-ton Oronsay, the largest and fastest cruise liner in the Pacific.

You'll be an old hand your very first day and know the enchantment of deep, emerald water. This is no landlubber vacation. This is a great adventure with visits to romantic ports of call you'll always remember... Acapulco, Hilo, Honolulu.

The Oronsay is a British ship and her crew will spoil you completely. There are thousands of feet of open deck for fun, games and leisurely arm-in-arm strolling. Two swimming pools, concerts, movies, no end of things to do. And you'll dine in the great Continental tradition, and dance under the brightest stars in the world.

The remarkable thing is, you can do all this for as little as $19 a day. Fares range from $440 to $570 for tourist class—and from $585 to $1750 for first class. See your travel agent now and start making plans to be aboard for the most unique Pacific Cruise of 1960.

A JOURNALIST'S JAUNT

By CHARLES DEFIEUX

Veteran B.C. newspaperman Charles Defieux, born in England, is back there for a visit—the impression he says will be "frank and forthright."

By CHARLES DEFIEUX

LONDON—You will recall that in commenting on British television, I mentioned the utter disregard shown by both networks when it came to fear of controversial subjects. This column is proof of the challenge in thought created by telecasts which appeared on one Sunday night, one on the BBC and the other, on the commercial network which is shared, incidentally, by some three companies.

The topic was youth and religion and you can't find anything more controversial than that. The commercial network offered the more indirect and less controversial program. In fact, it was not the subject matter of the telecast but rather its format and production. The program originates in Manchester each Sunday and there is a group of about 20 teenagers who are regulars on the show, plus a visiting member of the clergy.

Mild Rock and Roll

There is also a soloist who sings, not hymns, but standard works or popular with a religious overtone to them. Then there is a five-piece string and percussion orchestra which plays mild rock-and-roll in between the verbal part of the program. The dancing sequences are not riotous but mild and the youngsters enjoy themselves, even if I had a suspicion they were somewhat restrained.

The program I had the privilege to see, and it was a privilege I hope will be given to Canadians by their own TV stations, dealt with the subject of prayer. Being somewhat of an old-timer in show business I was ready to suspect the use of a script. I don't think there was.

Splendid Job

I think the statements were natural although production demanded that no one person monopolize the conversation. The clergyman answered questions and he sought to interpret the thinking of the young people. One or two of the youngsters, while fully believing in the efficacy of prayer, wandered in a curious way. The visiting minister did a splendid job with their questions and wandering thoughts.

What was controversial? I thought it was rather a radical approach to the so-called youth problem where we hear so much of the bad and so little of the good. The sequences of rock-and-roll dancing were earth-shaking but seemed natural despite the vast divergence between the conversation topic and the sound of rhythmic modern music. Frankly, I enjoyed it. I thought it a splendid approach to such problems as beset modern youth and the sometimes intolerant attitude of their elders. I enjoyed the discussions.

Criticized

You could reasonably expect that the least controversial treatment of religion or the Sabbath would be on the government-operated BBC network. Not so. There is a Church of England clergyman who has pleased some but devastated many of his parishioners by giving new "arrangements" to the tunes of the standard and many beloved hymns.

He was interviewed by a very critical and efficient announcer in this live program. After a discussion, a 30-voice choir would sing the old hymn with organ accompaniment. Then, after a bit more discussion, the same choir would present the new arrangement with piano accompaniment.

I said the program was controversial and I enjoyed it. But it has provoked me to expound my own thoughts. Incidentally this clergyman is not alone in his ideas. Over on our continent we have similar modern thinkers. I do not object to the idea of enticing youth to church and religion by the introduction of the modern beat to which they have become addicted. But I do object, and in massive proportions, to the idea of re-arranging the tunes of dear old hymns. If they want new tunes, then let them write new tunes, and let them write new words!

NO HURRY TO CASH IN SAY WISHFUL THINKERS

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Some 16,590 tickets for the World Series that never was still are in the hands of diehard Milwaukee Braves fans.

The strips, for the three games that might have been played in Milwaukee this fall between the Braves and the Chicago White Sox, will be redeemed at face value, the Braves said Friday in an appeal for their return.

Some fans are in no hurry.

There still are a dozen tickets sold for another series that never was: the 1956 event when the Dodgers edged out Milwaukee on the last weekend of the season.

And earlier this year, the Braves refunded cash for two tickets to the seventh game of the 1948 series at Boston.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

Once upon a time, making up sports schedules was a pleasant uncomplicated pastime. As long as a guy figuring dates managed to steer clear of important goings-on in his own home town, he was home free.

That was before the science of electronics began to change the simple pattern of our lives—before the collection of cathodes and coils known as television matured into a domineering one-eyed monster.

Now no self-respecting schedule-maker would think of fixing dates for his attractions until he has scanned the sports picture around the continent and tried to peer a bit into the future. He doesn't expect to pull many fans from their living room box seats when things like Grey Cup games, the World Series, Stanley Cup playoffs and championship fights are booming out of picture tubes.

But not even a swooning Swami can predict when a game that seemed destined to be just a routine affair will suddenly blossom into "game of the year" importance, such as the football clash at Vancouver tonight between the B.C. Lions and Calgary Stampeders.

Three weeks ago only a few prophetic souls were predicting the importance of tonight's grid argument. Then the Stamps won three in a row while the Lions were blowing a like number and here we are, all wondering what's going to happen at Empire Stadium tonight.

Another Win for Pigskin Pastime

With the football telecast going the "420" ether-wave miles to Calgary, the hockey Stampeders were facing a lonely night in the Calgary Corral, so they switched dates for their Western Hockey League tussle with Winnipeg.

And things were also in a tizzy around this town while it appeared possible that Victoria's Channel 6 would escape the Vancouver-area blackout. Cougar manager Hal Laycoe, who puts his Cats on view against Edmonton Flyers at Memorial Arena tonight, was sprouting grey hairs. And officials of Victoria's Drifters, who were to head up their portion of the Pacific Coast Intermediate Football Conference schedule against Vancouver Columbians, pushed the panic button and tossed the time of the game around like a hot potato before deciding to play it just as planned in the first place—at Royal Athletic Park tonight at 8.

You can chalk it up as another victory for the pigskin pastime in the hockey-vs.-football feud, and the way the seasons run, about the only way the puck brass can get even is to stage Stanley Cup playoffs in the middle of the grid season.

And you can also write it off as another triumph of the idiot box over man.

I HOPE I'M WRONG, BUT from this corner it looks like the Stampeders by a touchdown or two tonight. Mental attitude is half the science of winning football games and although the Lions are said to be really hungry, the Stamps should want to win this one just as much, which should leave it up to physical ability.

Randy Duncan, who has failed to earn respect as a great quarterback, doesn't figure to get far with his passing or by sending runners around the outside in the slot. And the Lions don't figure to get far by carrying the ball into the middle of the Calgary line, just about as tough a forward unit as you'll find in Canadian football.

JUST FOR THE RECORD: Wonder if Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts would like to be reminded of his pre-season prediction, "It will be Argos and Lions in the Grey Cup final," said Lew... Argos are running last in the Big Four race and the Lions are walking a slippery tightrope tonight... there should be some good mile times registered by the University of British Columbia track-team next spring. Running for UBC is Geoff Wales, a speedy Englishman from Oxford who has a 4:07 mile to his credit... Victoria's Stu Smith is still kicking conversions and penalty goals consistently for UBC's rugby Thunderbirds.

And I'm inclined to agree with Dizzy Dean in his comment on the resignation of Buddy Blattner as Dix's partner on baseball telecasts because, said Buddy, Dean "likes to push people around."

"There's a lotta people," observed the dizzy one, "that'd like to be pushed around for $75,000 a year for 48 ball games."

Hy-Gain Rough On Riding Corps

ALBANY, Calif. (AP)—One jockey lay near death in a Berkeley hospital Friday. Another is recuperating in a San Francisco hospital after 29 days in a coma.

Both were hurt in spills from the same horse, Hy-Gain, in his last two starts.

Frederick Rose, 27-year-old Panamanian remained unconscious and in "very critical" condition after suffering a fractured skull Thursday when the two-year-old colt bore out, clipped another thoroughbred's hoofs and went down at Golden Gate Fields.

Also hurt was veteran jockey Merlin Volzke who suffered six fractured ribs.

Hy-Gain was making his first start since the President's Stakes last Sept. 11 at the state fair in Sacramento. He went down in that one, with jockey Peter Tranchina sustaining head injuries. The 23-year-old Italian-born reinsman now is able to get up. His speech, impaired by a partial paralysis, is improving.

George Murphy, steward representing the California horse racing board both at Sacramento and Golden Gate, termed the two accidents "an unfortunate coincidence."

He said: "In the Sacramento race, Hy-Gain was caught in a terrific traffic jam on the backstretch and fell. It was just one of those accidents which occasionally occur and was not the fault of any rider or any horse."

Neither horse nor rider was held at fault in the Golden Gate Fields race here Thursday.

WHERE TO NOW, TONY?

Tony's Error? He Showed Up!

NEW YORK (AP)—Nobody will accuse Billy Hunter of being a "new Joe Louis" but he shows promise. The best you can say for Tony Anthony is that he showed up.

Even showing up was a mistake for Anthony, who became Hunter's TKO victim in 104 of the seventh round of their televised fight Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

For about 10 seconds in the first round Anthony sparkled. He dashed out with a left hook that shook Hunter from choppers to toes. That was all. Hunter quickly recovered, waltzed Anthony to the ropes and worked him over. It went on like that until referee Arthur Mercante stopped it.

SAGS ON ROPES

Tony sagged on the ropes, half sat on the middle strand and ducked as many punches as he could. Occasionally he would rouse himself for a brief flurry. Then he started absorbing the punches that almost closed his left eye and left him bleeding from nose and mouth.

As a reward for this victory, the 193-pound Hunter will be asked to retrace his steps. He has been offered a Nov. 27 rematch with Alex Miteff of Argentina, whom he stopped on cuts in seven rounds Sept. 25. The seventh seems to be his round.

"I'll try to do even better next time," said Hunter, bubbling over in victory. "I hope to go all the way to the title. All I need is lots of fights. Three great champions—Henry

TIME OUT! JEFF KEATE

Seattle's 10-1 drubbing of Spokane Comets pushed the Totems into a three-way tie for third with Flyers and Cougars, one point back of Calgary.

Bringing up the rear are Winnipeg, with two victories in six games, and Spokane, which has lost five of its six.

Winnipeg tried hard Friday night, throwing 32 shots at goalie Claude Pronovost without much success. Al Rollins of Winnipeg turned aside 27, but he couldn't stop goals by Merv Kuryluk, Ron Leopold and Sid Finney which were the Warriors' undoing. Dick Lamoureux and Gord Redahl were the Winnipeg scorers.

SCORING LEADERS: The game at Vancouver saw the clear emergence into league leadership of two players picked up in the off-season—Bruce Carmichael, formerly with Springfield, and defenceman Ralph Keller of the defunct Saskatoon Quakers.

Carmichael picked up four points on two goals and two assists to jump to the front ranks of league scoring. Keller made the WHL's leading defenceman-scorer with two goals and an assist. Carmichael now has 10 points, Keller seven.

Larry Cabral, Ron Hutchinson, Bob Kahel and Colin Kilburn also hit the score sheet, despite fine goaltending by Flyers' Dennis Riggan, who stopped 32 shots.

Gene Achymichuk scored for Edmonton in the first period on Len Haley's rebound and Dave Rimstad counted in the third on a 10-footer. Haley again getting an assist.

Bill MacFarland was the big cog in Seattle's one-sided triumph, scoring four times. Marc Boileau got two and singles went to Gery Goyer, Eddie Stankiewicz, Pat Ginnell and Rudy Filion.

Medics Agree Sugar Ailing

NEW YORK (AP)—A New York Boxing commission medical examination has backed up Sugar Ray Robinson's statement that he was too ill to train for a fight at Madison Square Garden Nov. 13.

The New York-recognized middleweight champion had been scheduled to meet Wilf Greaves of Detroit and Edmonton in a non-title 10-round bout. He withdrew from the bout on Oct. 15, claiming a virus infection prevented him from training.

The commission said Friday its physicians had examined Robinson last Monday and recommended that he be placed on the "ill and unavailable list."

GRID PICTURE COMES LATER

Radio coverage of the crucial Calgary Stampeders-B.C. Lions football game tonight in Vancouver will be handled by CKWX, 980, at 8 p.m. and CKWV, 1130, at 8:30 p.m.

Complete telecast of the game will be seen Sunday at 12 noon over channels 2 and 6.

Flyers Could Be Ready to Sting

Hope to Snap Losing Skein Here Tonight

Shuttled down into a three-way deadlock for third place in the Western Hockey League race Friday night, Victoria Cougars get a chance to improve their position at Memorial Arena tonight.

But they will be tangling with a club that is probably buzzing as angrily as a hornet's nest.

Moving back into the arena are Edmonton Flyers, who arrived on the coast this week riding high on a four-game undefeated streak and who have had nothing but trouble since.

Edmonton's woes started with a 6-1 loss to the Cougars Wednesday and were compounded considerably at Vancouver Friday night when the Canucks handed the Flyers a humiliating 8-2 thumping.

OLD HOCKEY HABIT

It is an old hockey habit for a club which has absorbed a bad beating to come out loaded for bear in their next outing. In this case, Flyers should be loaded for cats.

Cougar coach Hal Laycoe certainly isn't expecting any easy time. "That score doesn't mean a thing," says Hal, "except that the Flyers will be really smarting when they hit the ice tonight."

Playing before 4,000 fans, Canucks turned in another impressive display of power as they chalked up their seventh win in eight starts and boosted their league lead to six points.

While still well off the pace being set by the sizzling Canucks, Calgary Stampeders have established themselves as strong contenders in the WHL race.

A 3-2 decision over the Warriors in Winnipeg Friday night was the fourth victory in nine games for Calgary and put the Stampeders in second place.

Outlook Better In Vancouver

The weather scene seems brighter in foggy of Vancouver, but today's storm in the Western Interprovincial Football Union was moving from Calgary towards Regina and Winnipeg.

The weatherman, who had earlier said there might be a chance of fog for tonight's crucial game between Calgary Stampeders and B.C. Lions, predicted tonight would be cloudy with few light showers and temperatures in the low 50s.

Chances of showers are about 50-50 and Vancouver's Empire Stadium should be reasonably dry for the game that will decide the WIFU's third and last playoff.

Chance of fog now, said the weatherman, is "very remote." In today's other game, Edmonton Eskimos visit Regina for a meeting with Saskatchewan Roughriders. And that's where the storm, moving in from Calgary, was breaking.

Stampeders president Ed Laborde said if coach Frank Tripucka plays for the injury-riddled Riders "it will lower the dignity of football."

Laborde, in a wire to commissioner Syd Halter of Winnipeg, made it quite plain that Calgary objected to Tripucka playing.

The wire added that "it would be a bad mistake."

The question of Tripucka playing at quarterback arose after the Riders lost the services through injuries of regular quarterback Don Allard.

Under league rules a club is allowed no import changes regardless of injuries, once it has declared its 12 imports after the 13th game.

Fivepin Body Plans Election

By GRAHAM COX

Fivepin bowlers of Vancouver Island arise (to paraphrase a time-worn and weary quotation), the time is now upon you to help yourselves.

With the resurgence of the Victoria-Vancouver Island Kingpin Bowling Association, Sunday, Nov. 1 could be the most important day in recent fivepin history.

A meeting has been called for that day of all fivepin league secretaries, to explain to them the aims and operating procedure of the association as well as lay the groundwork for an election of officers for the following week.

Both meetings will be held at Newstead Hall, starting at 2 p.m.

Primarily, of course, the association, the brainchild of weeks and months of hard, often-discouraging work by Dick and Dot Jewsbury and their group, is designed as a forum of opinion and organization for the more than 6,000 fivepinners on the Island.

Of secondary though vital importance, the association will be the vehicle on which Island bowlers will be able to travel, to and compete in the annual B.C. and Western Canada fivepin championships.

Previously it had been hoped that single memberships would suffice to ensure a solid, comprehensive membership. But, it appears by the very constitution of the body that an election of officers, one voting delegate only can be accepted from each league.

With this in mind, the governing body proposes to ask the league secretaries to ask the members to return to their respective leagues, explain the situation to them and enlist their support.

A proposed scale of membership fees will be brought up at the meeting suggesting a flat dollar rate for each five-man team joining, or a 50-cent rate for individual memberships.

League memberships, it is believed, would be the most practical way of ensuring strength with each league secretary responsible to an appointed executive secretary, who in turn would answer to the association.

The baby has been born and all it needs to burst into lusty, bawling life is the traditional whack on the bottom. The only place that bottom-whacking hand can possibly come from is within the ranks of the bowlers.

Three bowlers conspired to write a notable chapter into the early season scoring race last week, two of them women, and one man.

Tuesday, in the Ladies' Senior Tenpin League at Gibson's Bowlroom, Gladys Cornthwaite stopped the action by turning in a 607 (235) series.

With this challenge to beat, Ann Goodman, in the Thursday Mixed League, came up with a towering 612 (245, 202) series to set a hot standard for fellow distaff kleglers to shoot at.

The man of the week was also a bowler, as Apple Masters shattered the previous city high single of the season, 265, with a 267 roll that gave him an even 600 series in the Men's Commercial League.

A request came into our office Friday evening from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind for help in their weekly fivepin league held Saturday at Gibson's from 1 p.m. Spokeswoman Miss Mort-mer asked if there were any bowlers willing to help them with scoring and coaching.

If so they are asked to contact Miss Mortimer at CNIB headquarters on Arena Way, or by phoning EV-4-2913.

READY FOR ACTION

Several old favorites will be in Navy lineup when Commercial Hockey League season opens with two games Monday night at Memorial Arena. Listed in Navy rosters are Johnny Bend (left) and John Morris, who helped Tars to league title last season. (Times Photo.)

Just as Strong Says Navy Pilot

Navy may be going short-handed Monday when they open defence of their Victoria Commercial Hockey League championship at Memorial Arena.

Playing Vics, second in the league last season, the Tars will probably be without the service of last season's league scoring champion, Neil Standley.

Injuries won't be keeping the slick-haired smoothy out of action, but naval duties may do just that.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed that he might be on hand," said manager Don Sabiston. "But, we aren't counting on it at all."

NEW GOALIE

Coach Norm Jones rates his club "at least as good as we had last season with stalwarts like Johnny Bend, John Morris, Joe Tanner, Carl Christensen, Roy Derry and Paul Lapointe with us again."

The champs have added a number of newcomers, though, notably goalie Andre Deruchers.

George Pumble will be wearing the Navy jersey on defence in Victoria for the first time as will forwards Duff Grey and Jim McAvoy.

Vics, too, will be breaking in a new goaltender Monday in Ron Griffin as will Army when they meet Patterson Construction, formerly Aces, in the second contest of the night with Mac MacDonald between the pipes.

UP FROM MINORS

GRIFIN, Vics' goalie, will be making the step up from within the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association ranks as will teammates Steve Merriman and Bob Anderson. The addition of the three teenagers will make Vics the youngest team in the league with an average age of 21.

The 24-game season will be played exclusively on Monday nights with games at 7.30 and 9.

One notable break in the schedule will come Monday, Jan. 4, when a Victoria All-Star team will meet the Japanese National team in the first of their eight-game B.C. tour prior to travelling to Squaw Valley, Cal., and the 1960 Winter Olympic Games.

The complete season's schedule and team rosters follow:

LINEUPS

SCHEDULE

Monday, Feb. 8—Patterson's vs. Navy; Vics vs. Army.
Games start at 7.30 and 9 p.m.

Money Is Only Reason—Duncan; Football Like Bullfighting—Knox

VANCOUVER (CP)—Quarterback-philosopher-businessman Randy Duncan put down his book, butted one of his favorite chocolate ice cream cones in an ash tray and lit up a rum-flavored cigar.

"There's only one reason to play the game and that's money," said B.C. Lions' 22-year-old quarterback. "Sure, you like the game but you wouldn't play it otherwise. You wouldn't risk the injury."

Six foot, 185-pound Randy talked about football on the eve of his most important game—the B.C.-Calgary clash to decide which will make the WFL playoffs.

Duncan, who makes about $17,000 for 16 league games, plans to use his pay to set himself up in a law practice.

"There's no job in the world where you can start right out of college making the money you can playing pro ball," said the sociology and political science graduate of Iowa University.

"I think it's the very system of the thing," You grow out of the high school spirit. You get to college on a football scholarship and they've got you out practicing in the spring and the fun starts to leave you. College football is a line of business.

"Then you get into pro ball and it's a means of getting some money, ahead. It's a means to an end, not an end in itself."

"Low, fickle, the sports fans," he mused. "I think people here go to football games because socially it's the thing to do."

PART OF GAME

Recalling a game, against Winnipeg when his passes went awry, he said: "I'll never forget it. I threw two passes that were just nowhere near the guys and they boomed. The first time I'd ever been benched. Then I came back and threw a touchdown pass and the boys changed to cheers."

"When I think about it now, I feel that as long as I get my money they can boo me. I guess it's part of pro ball."

"What was it Rudyard Kipling said? 'If you can meet with triumph and disaster and treat these two impostors just the same... you'll be a man, my son.'"

Four in Fight For Bike Title

Final scrambles action for the Victoria Motorcycle Club championship will be held Sunday at the Club's Metochosin Road grounds, starting at 1 p.m.

Four riders, paced by defending champion Tom Richardson, are battling for the club point crown in the event which will include four five-lap heats, a consolation race and a 20-lap main event.

Tightly ranked behind Richardson are Wes Morhart, Jack Heanski and Bryan Scharbach.

Flashing Finish Stops Athletics

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Vancouver Dietrich Collins basketball team handed Alberni Athletics their third straight exhibition defeat Friday night, downing the Island team, 83-76.

With Alberni leading 70-66 with two minutes to go, the Vancouver team outscored them 17-2.

Bob Pickel scored 28 points for Vancouver while Johnny Kootenoff picked up 14 for Alberni.

RANDY DUNCAN

TORONTO (CP)—Ronnie Knox, controversial quarterback who quit Big Four football for the arts five weeks ago, says he intends to write about football from a mythological and symbolic viewpoint.

In a Hollywood interview, Knox likened football to bullfighting where he said the killing of the old bull was the symbolism of the killing of the father.

"I don't think football will exist for much longer," he told Toronto interviewer Joyce Davidson. "Perhaps it will last for another 400 or 500 years, but eventually it will change into something else."

Knox, 24, who joined Toronto Argonauts in the last half of the 1958 season and almost got them into the playoffs, started with the Argos this year but left in a surprise overnight move without even consulting the coach.

"My main problem with football was the conflict it presented to my creative instincts," he said. "I felt the conflict became so acute that I couldn't play another game or attend another practice."

"It was either playing football or starting my writing. I decided to start writing."

Knox will leave for Italy in a week to work on a novel. He expects to have it finished in about two years.

College Comeback Stops Pats 3-2

Victoria College made it two in a row Friday in the Inter-collegiate Soccer League, defeating the PPCLI, 3-2, at Car-narvon Park. But, it was a near thing as the collegians trailed, 2-1, at the half.

Richard McMartin scored all goals for the winners while R. H. Konig performed a similar chore for the losers.

PEUGEOT

For people with a sense of values and discriminating good taste

With the introduction of the PEUGEOT to North America 2 years ago (after an absence of 40 years), this famous car now enjoys worldwide acceptance. Its impact in the U.S.A.—and now Canada—has been phenomenal. The reason is simply stated: a combination of distinctive good looks, comfort and roominess allied with mechanical excellence, quality of workmanship and outstanding roadability.

There's a bonus, too, in Peugeot's economy of operation and unexpected low price. The world over, Peugeot cars are proudly owned and driven by professional people, business men and busy homemakers—by people going places. The usual "extras" are standard equipment on the PEUGEOT for only $2,535.00 complete, with six months' guarantee.

Parts and service facilities, backed by Peugeot of France, are available at over 600 dealers in Canada and the U.S.A.

DROP IN BUSINESS ... MANAGER ON SPOT

Gloom Over Portsmouth—Pompey Can't Win at Home

LONDON (CP)—Gloom has settled over the famous seaport of Portsmouth. By the middle of October their soccer team hadn't won a game at home for 11 months.

Portsmouth had won two straight league championships when the season ended in 1950, a feat performed by only two other clubs since 1946—Wolves and Manchester United.

But last season Pompey was demoted from the first division after a last-place finish and now the team occupies the same berth in the second division.

The Portsmouth playing record last season was the most dismal in the 92-club league. The team won six games out of the 42 and conceded the staggering total of 112 goals.

Fan club secretary R. G. Taylor says:

"People used to come from all over the south of England to watch Pompey. They don't now. There doesn't seem to be the same spirit as in the old days."

A similar opinion is expressed throughout the town. Tradespeople, taxi drivers and others report a big drop in business. This is reflected in attendances. Last season the crowds averaged 32,000 a game compared with fewer than 16,000 this season.

SUPPORTERS ANGRY

Angry supporters blame manager Freddie Cox, former Arsenal winger. They say he buys the wrong players and drops key men like Peter Harris, an England international in Portsmouth's palmier days. Cox replies: "There are certain psychological factors that the crowd on the terraces don't see. Portsmouth is not a wealthy club and we can only buy the players we can afford."

Cox proudly points out the progress in developing young players in reserve sides. "We have this wonderful hostel where we house, feed and groom 14 young Pompey starlets. I am proud to think that the foundations of Portsmouth's future are secure."

THERE IS AN ANSWER

Moral Re-Armament did it in the Docks of Brazil and London With your Help it can Happen Here

THE ports have been paralyzed. The great steel hearths are cold. In 500,000 homes the breadwinner has been idle.

It is easy to blame somebody else. Finger pointing is an ancient game.

Meanwhile we all lose. Only our enemies win. America becomes weak when we most need to be strong.

What is the right way to end these strikes?

Fact-finding commissions may be necessary. But the plainest fact is the blindness of human nature. The greatest fact is that human nature can be changed.

When men change, conditions change — conditions that cause strikes and lockouts.

This is an ideological age. We Americans must live our God-given ideology to bring the answer to Communism, corruption, division, dictatorship and despair.

No strike today is just industrial. Every strike quickly becomes ideological. Selfishness and ideological blindness in both management and labor, whether they like it or not, are used by Communism to break down the economy of the Free World. The total cost of the present steel strike to date is six billion dollars, which is the entire cost of India's next five-year plan.

Men, who are ideologically awake, will quickly settle their differences.

At the turning point of the 55-day steel strike in 1952 one man had an inspiration. His name was John V. Riffe. He was the last Executive Vice President of the C.I.O.

NOT WHO'S RIGHT BUT WHAT'S RIGHT

For six weeks steel management and labor had been deadlocked. In this situation, Riffe reflected, "A little more of 'what is right' and less of 'who is right' might help to produce a national miracle out of a national emergency. He saw that the issues dividing the operators and the steelworkers were no longer purely material. . . . The gap lay in a different realm — that of the clash of human wills, with the obstinacy, pride, suspicion and bitterness which accompany it. It was a moral issue in the hearts of men, and it could only be resolved by the creation of a new moral climate." (From "John Riffe of the Steelworkers, American Labor Statesman," to be published Nov. 6 by Coward-McCann, New York.)

Riffe suggested the union Wage Policy Committee invite in the representatives of the management. They came.

The Pittsburgh Post Gazette, July 22, 1952, reported: "The surprise visit of the industry group . . . to the union gathering . . . set a precedent in industrial relations in the steel industry . . . It was apparent to observers that their presence dissipated some of the tension and bitterness the long strike had engendered."

The New York Times of July 27, 1952, contained this account of the final meetings: "Mr. Fairless and Mr. Murray met privately for 70 minutes, and again later with their union aides. Mr. Fairless said in effect, 'We have got to take a whole new approach to each other. Something is obviously wrong . . . We have got to learn to get along together.' . . . Mr. Murray replied in like vein saying that the union was not interested in simply damning management. The two sides then quickly ticked off the terms of the agreement."

John Riffe had found through Moral Re-Armament a new way to live. He had reunited his home. He had learned the necessity of absolute moral standards.

John Riffe fought for the destiny of the labor movement. He believed with Frank Buchman, initiator of Moral Re-Armament, that "Labor led by God can lead the world."

Shortly before his death in 1958 Riffe said to a United States Senator, "Senator, tell America that when Frank Buchman changed John Riffe, he saved this country $500,000,000."

NATIONAL AIRLINES STRIKE SETTLED

In December, 1950, a three-year-old dispute between National Airlines and the Air Line Pilots Association was resolved in three hours after the President of the Company and the representatives of the pilots union had attended the Moral Re-Armament Assembly in Washington, D.C.

Announcing the settlement, The Miami Herald headlined its story: "Moral Re-Armament Ushers in Era of Understanding."

The Miami Daily News commented editorially: "There was none of the familiar emphasis on hard-won bargaining victories. The emphasis was on the moral re-armament of the participants in the dispute."

President George T. Baker said, "A whole new factor was brought into the situation through Moral Re-Armament. The real trouble has been bitterness and lack of trust between us. It took an apology and honesty on my part to restore a basis of confidence."

Commenting on this settlement, D. W. Rentzel, then Chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, issued the following public statement: "The sudden settlement came as a pleasant shock to the aviation industry . . . and the transformation in the attitude of the parties has been little short of miraculous. In effecting a settlement of this bitter struggle Moral Re-Armament has performed an invaluable service for the aviation industry and the country as a whole."

ANSWERING CLASS WARFARE IN BRITISH DOCKS

In 1949 the Communist-engineered strike throughout the docks cost Britain three-quarters of a billion dollars. In the next years, many dockers' leaders, through meeting Moral Re-Armament, found an ideology to answer Communism. As a result, Britain has had no nationwide dock strike since. One of the men, Tom Keep, who was president of the National Amalgamated Stevedores and Dockers Union, and formerly for 22 years a member of the Communist Party, stated recently, "The dock strike of 1949 cost our nation 217 million pounds. I took part in that strike, as I did in many others. Had it not been for meeting MRA I would have been plotting and planning through strikes to bring about the Communist policy of the destruction of the economic structure of the Western democracies."

"Moral Re-Armament is waging the war which is bringing to an end the longest and most bitter war in the history of mankind—the class war. The end of class war means the end of all wars."

"When I met Moral Re-Armament, for the first time, I found something which could stand up to my Marxism. It was the answer to class war, the broken home and the division between my sister, to whom I had not spoken for 16 years, and myself."

"With Moral Re-Armament God had given us the opportunity to change the course of the world away from the materialism that threatens to drive civilization into the abyss of a new dark age. The choice is ours. It is Communism or Moral Re-Armament."

In the United States, the union journal, Master, Mate and Pilot, commented in its February 1951 issue: "There are still just grievances to be put right. The question is—how can the dockers do this without exposing themselves to exploitation by militant materialism? And that question is being answered right now in the docks of Britain by an idea of their own choosing which is winning the hearts and minds of the dockers. This is the idea, or ideology, of Moral Re-Armament, which punches holes in every form of materialism, either right or left."

GERMANY, ITALY, FRANCE

Similar evidence comes from other countries of Europe. Frits von Velsen, Managing Director of the Nordstern Coal Mine, Gelsenkirchen, Germany, says, "The simple facts are that in the economic and political breakdown in Germany following the War the Communists had made themselves so strong that they had an average of 73% of their men in the Workers' Councils of the coal and steel concerns of the Ruhr. After that training and change of heart that many of us found in Moral Re-Armament this Communist influence has gone down to 8 percent and the power of the Party on a mass scale has been broken. In my own mine, Nordstern where the men had elected 90% Communist representatives, the men and the atmosphere have so changed that people come from many countries to find the answer here."

The Montecatini Chemical Company is one of the largest industrial concerns of Italy. Umberto Baldini, former Personnel head, reports, "In 1949 we had 31 work stoppages. In 1953 we had five. Since I first underwent training in Moral Re-Armament the situation has been completely overturned through a new attitude on the part of management. Last year — 1954 — not one milligram of production was lost by strikes."

The Secretary Treasurer of the French Textile Workers (Force Ouvriere), Maurice Mercier, after securing in 1953 the best contract with management which his union had ever had, said, "Not one cry of hate, not one drop of blood shed, not one hour of work lost, this is the greater revolution to which Moral Re-Armament calls management and labor alike."

CORRUPTION AND COMMUNISM CURED

In Brazil until 1955 a frequent sight in the Port of Rio de Janeiro, strike bound, was a queue of waiting ships stretching far into the bay. Yet on June 4, 1957, a member of the Brazil Federal Parliament declared, "The Rio dockers have been teaching us Parliamentarians a lesson in democracy."

The dockers tell their own story. Damasio Cardoso, head of the unofficial portworkers union, packing two guns and a knife, had set out to liquidate Nelson Carvalho, leader of the legal union. The latter, however, had recently found a new weapon, the power to change men, through meeting Moral Re-Armament. He won Cardoso. The feuding workers' leaders settled their differences.

Five years ago the legal union was struggling to exist with 700 members. Today a united union has over 4,000.

In the union elections in 1956, 83% of the workers voted instead of the previous 10%. Communist-backed candidates were defeated. The leading Rio daily, "Correio da Manhã," carried the captions, "A Step Forward for Trade Unionism in Brazil." "Simple, Honest, Clear Victory." "The Workers Benefit, Trade Unionism Benefits."

To celebrate the victory, the dockers attended, not a wild party as in earlier years, but a special 7:00 a.m. Mass. The church was full.

"There is no other choice for us in Brazil," concluded Nelson Carvalho. "Here is a new dimension of living which we have experienced. It is Moral Re-Armament or Communism. We plan to bring the answer we have found to the docks of all America and the world."

THE TRUE BATTLE LINE FOR INDUSTRY

Collective bargaining is on trial.

We must start now to draw the true battle line in American industry — between the responsible and constructive forces in both management and labor against a small but active minority who believe in a fight to the finish.

We are going into a winter like Valley Forge. The real question is — do we know what we fight for and love what we know?

The time is ripe for an appeal not to self-interest, but to the hunger for great living that lies deep in every man. What Americans really want is not a promise of getting something for nothing, but a chance to give everything for something great.

Either we sacrifice our selfishness for our nation, or we sacrifice the nation to our selfishness.

In the words of Frank Buchman, "Before a God-led unity every last problem will be solved. Empty hands will be filled with work, empty stomachs with food and empty hearts with an idea that really satisfies."

PARKING 'THE HARD WAY'

Illegal parking, careless driving or both? Commissioner ponders the problem as he looks over the wreckage of an old model car which landed on its top at the back of HMCS Naden-Wardroom some time Friday night after going off the road at top of picture. Juvenile owner-driver, said Esquimalt police today, was taken to hospital with undetermined injuries. (Photo by Jorgen Svendsen.)

UNDERGROUND WIRING HALTED, BUSINESS HURT

Union Dispute Deadlocked

There was no sign of settlement today in the union jurisdictional dispute which has halted parts of Victoria's underground wiring project for three weeks.

Officials of the sub-contracting firm involved, electrical contractors Hume and Rumble, declined to comment on the situation, but it was learned the dispute concerned whether inside or outside wiremen should install electrical ducts.

Business agent for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, John A. Driscoll, said the type of work should be under an "outside" agreement, and the sub-contractors had refused to recognize this.

There were originally only three men involved, but the work tie-up has meant that the general contractor, George Farmer, has had to cut his work force by 20—about one-half usual strength.

A B.C. Electric spokesman, for whom Farmer Construction is doing the work, said the company was concerned about the slowdown.

The result is excavations have been dug but no wiring put through. No new excavations are being opened up except for drainage purposes.

Meantime, many business houses in the downtown area have been blocked off and are suffering through traffic diversion.

One Douglas Street merchant told The Times: "We're blocked off on three sides."

EX-LANCASHIRE LAD

Youbou Man Top Lumber Grader

An ex-Lancashire textile man and RAF veteran, who "never saw a sawmill before I came here" 11 years ago, has won the annual British Columbia Lumber Manufacturers' Association grading contest.

Harold Haycock of Youbou, a grader for B.C. Forest Products Ltd., beat out 69 top contestants from all coast logging and log-processing firms this June in practical and written examinations to win his company's $100 prize and silver bowl trophy for 1959.

Executive vice-president of the BCLMA, L. R. Andrews, presented the trophy Friday night to the small Englishman from Blackburn, Lancashire, in front of more than 50 contestants in the competition, executives of coast log and Forests Minister Ray, Wilgust companies and Lands liston.

Second place was captured by MacMillan and Bloedel Chemainus division employee R. Arnel who was not eligible for a Forest Products prize.

Supplemental prizes of $25 and $15 respectively went to Cowichan sawmill division Foreman, employees Bone money," said Mr. Haycock, Claes and B. Tulacz.

Good marks in the competition can lead to preferred positions in individual companies as graders and company men in any line of work may compete.

MONTE ROBERTS

To the constituents, bless them!

Constituent writes to suggest I follow my smashing spectacular campaign to save Ripple Rock with a similar campaign to save the Inner Harbor before it is entirely deserted by all shipping... must thank the constituent for the kind thoughts and the detailed defence of the Inner Harbor, coupled with the rousing denunciation of the substitution of Sidney and Nanaimo as Victoria's ports of entry... but must say it is much too late to save the Inner Harbor unless we can pass legislation against the airplane and the automobile...

Constituent drops in to ask, how new is new? ... this constituent says he has been reading and hearing advertising for a "new" razor for at least a year... says he wants to know how new can be new when it's old... suggested to this constituent, he get up his own campaign... ask advertising agencies to temper enthusiasm with fact... start out with "new" product... then, as time advances, advertise it as "semi-new," "a little new," "was new," until it becomes "old reliable"... constituent goes away, not saying thank you...

Constituent calls up (in the dead of night) to ask if I heard the opera on television... constituent is told, no, I did not hear the opera on television... constituent says, opera was actually sung in English, and isn't that a terrific idea?... I tell the constituent no, that is not terrific idea... if people go around and about singing operas in English, other people are apt to figure out what the operas are all about, and will realize how dull and stupid they are... constituent says, you've got a terrific idea for a column there... I say I haven't, good night now...

Constituent writes to say she has resumed reading this space after avoiding it successfully for some time... explaining reason she gave it up was, she is allergic to cats...

To the constituents, bless them!

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria announced today that due to changes in shipping arrangements, the exhibition of ballet pictures scheduled to be on view until Sunday afternoon has been closed.

On view today instead is the show scheduled for next week: an exhibit of international color lithography.

Address of a Victoria man sentenced in city police court Friday to a year in jail for burglary was reported in error as 717 Pandora.

Proper address for Donald Ray Read, 27, was 1721 Amphion.

The CNIB five pin bowling club has sent out a call for sighted scorers and a coach or two.

The blind bowlers have a two-hour session at Gibson's Bowladrome each Saturday at 1.30 p.m.

Anyone able to keep track of strikes and spares is invited to get in touch with the CNIB headquarters, Blanshard St.

Mortimer L. Levy, national president of the 9,500-member Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, will address the Victoria branch Monday at 12.15 in the Pacific Club.

A meeting of the Lansdowne PTA group will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the school.

Leaving his motel door unlocked last a West Vancouver salesman his wallet, $5-$6 cash, credit cards, business and personal papers, he told city police Friday.

Walter Bruce Lee, a guest at Royal Victoria Hotel, 226 Gorge, said his wallet was taken from a suit which he hung overnight in the entrance hallway.

Y.M.C.A. physical director Archie McKinnon was reported in satisfactory condition today by St. Joseph's Hospital authorities.

He broke five ribs two weeks ago in a fall in the Crystal Garden pool and was operated on for removal of a ruptured spleen Tuesday.

Mayor Jack Potthecary of Armstrong, B.C., who is also provincial president of the Canadian Legion, will address a meeting in Esquimalt Legion Hall Sunday at 3 p.m.

Mayor Potthecary says he is anxious to meet as many local legionnaires as possible.

Wreckage found by RCN divers in the Nootka Sound area this week may be that of a vessel 200 to 300 years old.

Navy experts at first believed the wreck was the Royal Navy sloop HMS Condor, which foundered with all hands in 1901, somewhere in the Cape Flattery area.

Some bits and pieces of the wreck were returned to Esquimalt harbor aboard the navy auxiliary vessel Laymore Friday. Examination of the salvaged material, evidence gathered at the scene, and naval records show the debris may be from another vessel.

Five tons of rusty, barnacle-covered pieces were recovered, including a 10-foot anchor, two-ton windlass, a capstan and a 70-foot mast.

'WAR MUST BE BANNED FOREVER'—EX-AMBASSADOR

100 Brave Foul Weather to Participate In Annual UN Flag-Raising Ceremony

By TONY DICKASON

Rain dampened the bunting but not the ardor or sincerity at the United Nations flag-raising ceremony on the Causeway at 11 a.m. today.

Water, cascading off his homburg, Hon. T. C. Davis, former Canadian ambassador to Japan, told about 100 who braved the weather, the world has come to the point where "war must be banned forever."

His brief remarks drew enthusiastic applause, despite the fact most of the right hands present were clutching umbrellas.

He then raised the blue and white UN flag to the top of the flagpole. It was brought down again, and sent up once more followed by the flags of the United Nations.

The ceremony culminated a motor cavalcade to the site sponsored by the Peace by Peaceful Means Society and the local branch of the United Nations Association.

Twenty-eight cars were involved, many carrying signs and placards reading "Construction Not Destruction... Feed the Hungry... Swords into Plowshares..." and similar themes.

Also tucked to a car was the recent prize slogan of the BPPMS, "Canada's Choice, U.S.S.R., U.S.A. or UN?" A $10 prize went to Richard Broughton, 1071 Craigdarroch for this.

SOCIALISTS SHUNNED

Members of the two organizations were quick to dissociate themselves from a truck parked across from the flag pole bearing a sign reading:

"War is part of capitalism. World powers prefer profits before peace," and listing the slogan as by the "Socialist Party of Canada."

A member of Mr. Davis' party, passing the truck, remarked "I didn't know Canada had a Socialist party!"

Victoria Tug Set to Start For New Tow

The Island Tug and Barge Ltd. towboat Cambrian Salvor is scheduled to leave port Monday for another trans-Pacific towing job before resuming her station at Yokohama.

She will pick up a Liberty ship, now moored at Victoria Machinery Depot, proceed to San Francisco and add a small air craft carrier to her tow.

The two ships are headed for Japanese shipbreakers.

Another San Francisco tow will start toward the end of the week for an Island Tug vessel, the Sudbury I. She is taking a single aircraft carrier, will rendezvous with Sudbury II at Hawaii to transfer the tow to the more powerful vessel.

While in port here for refit, Cambrian Salvor was equipped with a new towing winch, and a unique voice radio system which is expected to enable the ship to keep in touch with the owners from anywhere in the world.

It is believed to be the first commercial application of an ultra long-distance radio, developed for military use.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Sidney RCMP court Friday:

Herbert Alexander Mills, Sidney, $15 and $3 costs for speeding over 30.

In Oak Bay police court Friday:

Dr. Edwin Hoodless, 2749 Musgrave, $40 and licence restricted to business purposes only for one month, careless driving.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What is a Gretna Green marriage?—H.J.

A. It's a runaway marriage.

Q. What is a hamlet near the village of Springfield, Dumfriesshire, Scotland. Up to 1856 all that was required of couples wanting to marry was mutual declaration before witnesses of their willingness to marry. Neither licence, banns, priest or minister was needed. The declaration was generally made to a blacksmith.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or test problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on odd coins, stamps or antiques. Those should be submitted to dealers.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor, Questions and answers will be published daily.

Meantime, a sound car blared the message that Canada should be made the first nation to throw all its resources behind the UN, "not the USSR, and not the USA."

Advocated also was that people write John (Diefenbaker) and ask for milk, not missiles; bread, not Bomarcas; tractors, not tanks.

The flag-raising ceremony was held at the same time today in thousands of communities throughout the world, marking the 14th anniversary since the founding of the UN in San Francisco.

Several school groups were represented, but thinly. One youth had a sign attached to the back of his raincoat reading, "UN—Striving for peace amongst all nations."

An attractive addition to the watery scene by the water was the presence of 21 boys and girls, clad in national costumes, holding very Victorian umbrellas.

Bill Scott, president of the Victoria Humanist group, started off walking the cavalcade route carrying a sign which said Humanists wanted peace.

But, due to the downpour, his spirit was cooled off after a few blocks and he accepted a lift in a truck.

Petition Seeks to Save Local Farmers' Business

The battle between Saanich farmers and the provincial government over the size of milk cartons took a new turn today.

A group of householders have got behind dairy farmers who are fighting a government order banning the sale of 64-ounce milk cartons in the province.

Mrs. H. K. Hunt, 756 Haliburton Road, spokesman for the group, said a petition is being raised in Saanich requesting the government to revoke its decision.

The cabinet ruled two weeks ago that milk can only be sold in standard-size containers, such as the Imperial gallon, quart or pint.

Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy claimed the order was approved to avoid confusion and protect consumers.

The order was issued after Saanich Milky Way Dairy Ltd. had bought an expensive machine which turns out 64-

ounce cartons. These were being sold at 42 cents each.

Mrs. Hunt said the petition was being raised because "we believe people should be given the freedom to choose what products they like."

"We think the ruling is unfair," she said. Peanut butter and other products are being sold in different size jars. The consumer chooses the size he wants. We don't see why this shouldn't also apply to milk.

Meanwhile, dairy farmers continue to press the government for hearing to present their case.

But Henry Robinson, manager of Milky Way Dairy Ltd., said the agriculture minister still refuses to meet dairymen to discuss the issue.

"We will continue to fight for a hearing," he said. "We are not going to take this matter lying down."

REPRIEVED

Girlish Bull To Live Out Monastic Life

Victoria animal lovers sighed with relief today when they learned the London Daily Mirror has bought the condemned bull, Brook Mandore, and plans to turn the animal out to pasture after it is castrated.

"Wonderful," said Mrs. Florence Barr. "I wonder why they didn't do that in the first place. In Scotland they have a rest home for horses. The bull could have been accommodated there."

Mrs. Barr, a former secretary for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Friday proposed bringing the girlish-looking bull to Victoria rather than see it die in a slaughterhouse.

The Mirror, a tabloid with a circulation of close to 5,000,000, said the bull, ordered to be killed by the government because it was too pretty, will spend the rest of his days peacefully grazing on a farm in England.

"He can just graze quietly. His career as a stock-raising bull is over and he won't be able to be a papa. This is part of the price of his reprieve."

Brook Mandore, a 14-month-old Ayrshire, was swept to international fame under a death order from the agriculture ministry.

Experts ruled the bull's gentle face was not in the fine, fierce tradition of the species and refused to licence him for breeding. They ruled he must be destroyed or castrated.

Opinions Divided On Free Love 'Joke'

Opinion today was split on whether or not the three Victoria College students who published an article in the college paper The Spectator on free love were within their academic rights.

Many persons believed the article should never have been allowed in print, while others backed the freedom of expression.

College principal Dr. Harry Hickman said he endorsed freedom of thought and speech. Let us not take too seriously the silly stuff that university students often print in the campus newspaper."

Archbishop Harold E. Sexton said "I regret that the authors have apparently not seen fit to consult with well-informed and experienced persons of strong Christian faith."

Spectator publisher Keith Webb said "we certainly apologize if the article has offended anyone, but we don't apologize for running it."

Student council president Tony Robinson pretty well summed up student reaction: "Up here it's regarded as a huge joke. It was meant for no one but college students, but there was nothing wrong with running it."

Mr. and Mrs. Potts... suspense over, $1,600 richer.

SIX VICTORIANS DRAW SWEEP HORSES

2 Have Chance at Fortune

Six Victorians holding tickets in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes have drawn horses in the Cambridgeshire Handicap which is run next Wednesday.

Two of them have horses listed as starters; the rest will receive about $1,600 consolation money each for having drawn non-starters.

Holding a ticket on Kingroy is A. C. Linn, 1123 Esquimalt Road, who today didn't seem very excited about the possibility of winning $140,000, top prize in the sweep.

"I'm not counting the money, not even the consolation, until it arrives," he said. "I'm keeping my fingers crossed, but don't think I have much chance for of the big money."

The suspense is over for Mrs. John Potts, 1071 Richmond whose ticket was drawn on the non-starter Jerome.

"But I would just as soon be still in suspense," she said. "I would have liked the big money. We could have spent some of it on a winter vacation."

Mr. Potts, who is retired, spent most of the summer in hospital for a series of operations on his eyes. Mrs. Potts works as supervisor of cleaning at the Scollard Building.

"The money we've won will have to go to such things as painting the house," Mrs. Potts said.

A starting horse, Sufi, was drawn by Mrs. Florence Earl, 1323 Walnut.

SERMON READY

Sport Page To Pulpit Big Switch

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sports editor Jack Matheson announced today that the title of the sermon he will preach Sunday in the Hamiota United Church will be "Sunday Sport—Why Not?"

The sermon will wind up a week in which the Winnipeg Tribune editor has acted as assistant to Hamiota minister Rev. Ralph Clark, with whom he is involved in a controversy over Sunday sport.

The minister will write a sports column for a week as his part of the arrangement.

Matheson's report on his activities Friday in the town 150 miles west of Winnipeg said his duties were "a piece of cake."

"This came as a bit of a jolt, because back in the sports department, Friday is strictly for ulcers."

"Apart from a morning snowed under by paper work, two trips to the hospital, two social calls, one cup of coffee at an eatery on Arthur Street and six basketball games, it was a cinch."

"The basketball games were a breeze because I was a spectator. Ralph Clark refereed five of them, which is nice work if you can avoid it."

Matheson said that "out here in the grain belt, I'm finding out what dedication really means." He listed the advantages and disadvantages of being a country minister, noting that "the rural minister has more bosses than a football coach."

"The hazards far outstrip the material gain, but Ralph Clark and men just like him keep looking at the sun."

"As compensation, I suppose, is a month's holiday with pay. After three days on the circuit I'm surprised the ministers live long enough to enjoy it."

Matheson reported earlier that church officials were wondering where they would put all the people expected to show up Sunday.

The Tribune reported today that three radio stations—in Winnipeg, Dauphin and Kenora—have announced they will carry broadcasts of Matheson's sermon.

73rd Birthday To Be Marked By Centennial

Centennial United Church will celebrate the anniversary of its founding in 1886 Sunday with special services, and Monday, with a dinner.

Participating in the services, which will commemorate 73 years of ministry to Victorians, will be Rev. A. I. Higgins of First United and Rev. E. Laura Butler of Metropolitan United Church.

Rev. Dr. J. G. Gower, president of the B.C. Conference of the United Church, will be the featured speaker at the dinner, Monday evening.

The present building was erected in 1891, five years after the founding, and current membership now numbers over 900 parishioners with a church school attendance of 500.

First service of the new mission of the Parish of St. Luke's will be held Sunday at 9:30 a.m. at the Gordon Head and Feltham Road site.

There will be facilities for both Sunday school and church services each Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

Sermon at Matsins in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday will be delivered by the Right Reverend G. P. Gower, Bishop of New Westminster.

At Evensong the Dean, Very Reverend Brian Whitlow, will give the sermon and Rev. Canon R. E. H. Howell will preach at 7 p.m. in the James Bay Hall.

Holy Communion will be celebrated in the Cathedral at 8 and 9:30 a.m.

Guest preacher at Evensong in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday will be the Bishop of New Westminster, Right Reverend G. P. Gower.

Rev. Canon George Biddle will preach at Matsins, Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 a.m., family service and school at 9:30 a.m., and other Sunday schools at 11 a.m.

At Central Baptist Church Sunday the guest speaker will be Rev. Ralph E. Waud of the First Baptist Church in Bellevue, Washington.

Success In Modeling Is a Chancy Thing: Patience Important Virtue

NEW YORK—Advice to young women from a man in the middle: Modeling is a dangerous field. Compared with most jobs, it isn't solid or tangible. You can make $750 to $1,500 a week or you can make nothing.

But one thing is certain, according to ex-newspaperman Kenneth Silver, 60 per cent of the starry-eyed girls who call themselves models just want to carry a tote bag down Fifth Avenue.

Silver is a relative newcomer to the model agency field. To bolster his bank account, he also operates a messenger service and part-time employment agency.

He calls himself the "father confessor" type of boss and believes young women seeking modeling careers:

Should come to New York with money in the bank.

Should have a definite agency contact.

Should have nerve, patience and belief in self.

A dedicated business is this. Silver claims "despite a fuzzy reputation gleaned from a few front-page characters."

"If a model isn't dedicated, she might as well get married, have 12½ babies and relax."

MODEL CLARE NELSON

To reach the ideal state as a highly paid high fashion model, a girl should start at least by the time she is 20, sit for a year for illustrations, shoot with good photographers and learn the business.

Keeping the wolf away from the door in Manhattan sometimes means two or three jobs for a model.

Clare Nelson, former Miss Pennsylvania, keeps two hit-or-miss professions going. She went from the Atlantic City boardwalk to Tommy Tucker's band and is now with the Conover Agency.

She had no training for her first job except hasty tips from Candy Jones, who now heads the Conover Agency's television division.

As a result, Miss Nelson went to her first bathing suit job and got a terrific case of stage fright.

"I called the agency for instructions. They told me to follow the model in front. But I was first."

Now she does modeling or acts as hostess and demonstrator at trade shows and company exhibits, does teenage bandstand shows, sings commercials and records in a little girl voice for Epic. She also does test shots for photographers for settings and models for buyers in New York's garment district.

There are 300 to 400 successful models in New York. A model who makes a steady $200 or more a week can be called a true model. But less successful models can make a respectable $80 or $90 a week showing the Seventh Avenue fashion lines.

Then there are television commercials, a big, wonderful new field for the profession. However, TV models differ from regular models because the camera does tricks that a still camera never does.

Candy says a girl thinking of TV modeling should be between 18 and 27 years old, between 5-foot-3 and 5-foot-7, have regular features with eyes not too close together, good diction and measure 34-23-34. It helps if she can sing, dance and act a little.

Where does the real money lie in TV commercials? In the filmed ones. Here residual payments are mandatory. That is a performer is paid for a 13-week period. For each subsequent 13 weeks a commercial is used the performer gets repaid, without doing further work.

So if you feel sorry for a promising star doing TV commercials, don't. If they are filmed, they can make from $40,000 to $60,000 annually, if not more.

Which is one reason a Manhattan magazine editor decided it was time for his six-month-old daughter to enter modeling.

And when he called an agency, a very business-like voice inquired, "Has she worked before?"

Pack Favorite Meals In Handy Pie Carrier

By PENNY SAVER

Does the hunter in your family insist on good meals when he pushes off into the bush on his trips? If he does a covered pie carrier would make victualising a pleasure!

Ones I saw had an aluminum base and clear plastic top with red carrying handle and lock. No danger of spilling the juicy contents! This way, there's no need to pass up the chance of enjoying one's favorite pies or other goodies. Perfect, too, for keeping baking fresh. They come at $2.95.

Do you like cleaning your oven? If you dread this chore and yet refuse to live in a kitchen that fills with smoke every time you bake, a handy aluminum oven guard will save you many hours of cleaning.

Their raised centres ensure equal distribution of heat. You'll find them ideal when cooking whether it's scalloped potatoes, casseroles or your favorite coffee cake. They're easily cleaned, just wash in soapy water. The 98 cents they cost will be a worthwhile investment.

Never thought little pigs could look as attractive as the tiny black ones I happened across this week. These were novelty paper weights. Colored jewels crusted their chubby bodies while a wrought iron pencil holder spiralled up from their porky tails. A jewel-topped pencil completed the attractive item.

These would be perfect on milady's desk and would dress up the telephone table in the hall. You can buy a little piggie of your own for only $1.50!

Clubwomen's News

Story of Africa—The president, Mrs. W. J. McIntyre, introduced a new study book on Africa at this week's meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of First United Church Women's Missionary Society. She urged the WMS to put a real effort into knowing about the African people, their problems, and their way of life. Mrs. A. I. Higgins took devotionals at this autumn thank-offering meeting and Mrs. H. H. Youson was guest soloist. Tea was served by Miss Jane Rattray and her group.

Thank You—At quarterly meeting of St. Mark's Chancel Guild, held in the home of Mrs. C. Springfield, St. Mary's Lake, Salt Spring Island, letters of thanks were read for gifts sent to a displaced persons camp in West Germany. Archdeacon G. H. Holmes took devotionals. A sum of $25 was voted for rectory taxes; $20 for church insurance and $25 for the Anglican Theological College. Plans were made to have a scroll hung in the church, giving a short history of the building, which was 70 years old last May.

To Film Board—At recent meeting of Salt Spring Island Catholic Women's League, a sum of $5 was voted to the National Film Board. Mrs. A. Marcotte presided and plans were made to hold bingo games in the church hall at Ganges on Oct. 30 and Nov. 13. Special guest at the meeting was Father P. Hanley, Sidney. Mrs. Marcotte and Mrs. Carlin served refreshments.

Thankoffering—Guest speaking at autumn thankoffering luncheon of Metropolitan United Church Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society, was Rev. D. K. Johnston, Fairfield United Church. He spoke on his work as a missionary in China and Formosa. Mrs. J. Boorman presided; soloist was Mrs. E. W. Hanning, accompanied by Mrs. H. Robinson; sing song was led by Rev. Laura Butler with pianist Mrs. Keith Henderson and prayers were taken by Rev. C. R. McGillivray and Rev. J. Jones. Rev. W. R. Cantelon also assisted. Luncheon conveners were Mrs. E. R. Bell and Mrs. C. F. Wharton and flower arrangements were in charge of Mrs. H. C. Steele.

Penny Sale—Final plans for annual Penny Sale at Odeon Theatre, Nov. 7, were made by members of Alden Hamber Chapter, IODE, at meeting in the Lansdowne Road home of Mrs. Norman Lockyer. Cerebral palsy clinic and Unifarian Services Committee were voted donations of $25 each. Mrs. Eileen Medley, educational secretary, read a letter of thanks from Quaker School, Telkwa, B.C., for subscription to the National Geographic. Mrs. Kathleen White reported taking a food hamper to an elderly pensioner and placing flowers in sun rooms of Veterans' Hospital.

California Honeymoon

Newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Norman William John McCulloch who were married in St. James United Church, Vancouver, recently, spent honeymoon in California.

Bride, the former Barbara Elizabeth, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Ashe of Vancouver. Her groom, who is attending Union College, University of British Columbia, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William McCulloch of Victoria. Rev. Thomas T. Oliver conducted the service.

A gown of heavy white satin overlaid with net and lace was worn by the bride. It was fashioned with full-length skirt. Her chapel length veil cascaded from a dainty headpiece and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses, carnations and stephanotis.

Bride was given in marriage by her father. Officiant was G. E. Tunstall and soloist, Miss Heather McKinnon.

Deep pink and green gowns were worn by attendants, Mrs. William Reade, matron of honor, and Miss Lillian Denahue. They carried bouquets of wine and white chrysanthemums.

Best man was Les Warwick and ushers were Michael Boulger and George Esther.

Michael Boulger proposed the toast at reception in church hall. A three-tier cake centred bridal table. Mrs. K. M. Bye and Miss Mary Bye played piano selections.

For her going-away outfit, bride wore a green woollen suit and tan hat.

Couple will live in Salmo, where groom is lay minister at the United Church there.

Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1, Tuesday at 7.30 p.m., Odd Fellows Hall. Social evening, nominations for officers.

McCall's Pattern No. 5177

The belle of the ball wears McCall's. The important full-length dress has a regal bell-shaped skirt. "V"-ed bodice lightly covers the shoulder and is molded by long slanting darts to a self-belted waistline. Unpressed pleats on the gored skirt lend the interesting shape news. The short version has all the accoutrements... but takes to the early evening events. The uncluttered lines are well suited to the richness of this season's fabrics: cut velvet, velveteen, brocade, satin, printed silk, faille. In sizes for Misses, 10-18. Size 14, in the long version, takes 4 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric without nap; the short, 3 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric without nap. McCall's Printed Pattern, No. 5177, 85 cents.

Send 85 cents for pattern No. 5177 to McCall Printed Pattern, c/o The Times, 462 Front Street, West, Toronto, Ont. Please print plainly, name, address, zone number and size.

Tartan of Family Clan Ties Bride's Rose Bouquet

The tartan of the bride's family clan was used in ribbons of her bouquet of red rosebuds at her recent wedding. The bride is the former Miss Murdina MacKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murdo MacKenzie, of Victoria, and the groom is Kenneth Walt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walt, of Mission, B.C. Rev. T. H. McAllister conducted the ceremony in the Gorge Presbyterian Church.

A gown of Chantilly lace in ballerina length was worn by Miss MacKenzie. It featured a modified scooped neckline enhanced by iridescent sequins and pearls. A rhinestone coronet held her chapel length veil. She was escorted up the aisle by her father.

Soloist was William Pateron. A rose crystalline gown was worn by only attendant, Miss Marlene Cummins. Her bandeau was in petal shape. MacKenzie tartan ribbon also tied her bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Gus McCarthy was best man and ushers were Kenneth Murray and Duncan MacKenzie, Vancouver. Following the service, newlyweds were piped from the church by James McMillan, Vancouver.

Brechin Hall, Holyrood House, was setting for a reception. John MacAulay pro-

Acapulco, Mexico, outdoor tables or walking through the hotel shops.

Everyone, from six to 60 wears thigh sandals all day, every day. They are so easy to slip on and off as you go in and out of the water.

Straw bags are a tourist must. I noticed in the airport that, without exception, every outgoing gal was toting a huge straw bag.

I am staying at Hotel Pierre Marqués, 12 miles out of Acapulco city. The hotel is on the sea and the estate covers 187 acres. Game fishing, water skiing, skin diving, sailing, swimming, tennis, and just plain sunbathing, are all available.

I have already learned not to walk through the grass in my bare feet. The lizards won't harm you but they are cold and slippery. They do keep the flies and mosquitoes away, however.

DEAR ABBY...

Is He Is, Or, Is He Ain't?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I live in a town where almost everyone is related to me. The ones who aren't related to me aren't worth going with.

The only man I am interested in is the new minister, who is single. They say he is sort of engaged to a girl from out of town. He pays a lot of attention to me, but everyone says it is only because I take him places in my car. He has none.

I would like to know if he considers me a romantic possibility or a means of transportation. How can I get this information without making myself look foolish? I am 21 and he is 29.

GIRL WITH CAR.

DEAR GIRL: First find out what "sort of engaged" means. It is unlikely that a minister would declare his intentions to marry one girl and "court" another. If he is officially engaged then consider yourself a chauffeur. If he is not engaged and pays you a lot of attention, then disregard the town talk, shift into high, and enjoy the free-wheeling.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for my boss' wife. If she doesn't see it, I'm sure it will apply to many others.

To whom it may concern: By now you are back home and everything is fine. Or is it? You went away for the summer (you said the children needed a vacation) and you left your husband all alone. "What did you expect him to do? Go home to an empty house every night and scramble an egg and watch TV?"

I work for him. He was plain lonesome. He suggested dinner together and I said yes. I said yes to a few other suggestions, too. "But don't worry, I didn't try to steal your husband (although it wouldn't have been difficult).

I'm quitting my job because I really feel hard for this wonderful man and I don't want to get involved any more deeply than I am. I'm just giving you a little tip. You women who have good husbands should STAY HOME AND TAKE CARE OF THEM. If you leave him alone again, the next girl might not be as charitable as— "CALL ME HONEY"

DEAR ABBY: We have three beautiful children. They are exactly 14 months apart. I am expecting again in December. Why are people so cruel with their remarks? We are thrilled with the prospect of having another baby but when we try to share the news people say, "Oh, heavens... not again?" Or else, "One of you had better get something done!" My husband and I are beginning to feel ashamed to mention it.

Our children aren't neglected. They are well cared for and we don't leave them to relatives or sitters. We can afford to raise them without depriving one to give to the other. What do we say to people who feel sorry for us and even try to force advice on us?

HAPPY PARENTS
DEAR HAPPY: Why bother

to say anything? You owe these people no explanations.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "AL": Hire a lawyer. His fee will be nothing compared to what it could cost you if you don't.

What's your problem? For a personal reply write to ABBY, care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Information on Cholesterol Level and Fatal Illnesses

Since there is some indication that there is a correlation between cholesterol blood levels and the amount of fat and the kind of fat we eat and hardening of the arteries and strokes and heart attacks, many people who are interested in avoiding those killers are taking preventive measures.

There is no conclusive proof yet that cholesterol causes the little plaques which are deposited on the linings of the blood vessels, but it does seem to be identified with them in some way which has not yet been demonstrated. These dangerous plaques consist of cholesterol and calcium and other fatty materials.

Before menopause women have lower cholesterol blood level than men. After menopause it is just about the same. Before menopause fewer women than men die of disease correlated with hardening of the arteries. After change of life the mortality rates are about the same for both sexes. It may be that a woman's hormones keep her cholesterol level low until after menopause.

It is interesting to note that the higher the standard of living is the more heart disease there is and the richer a country is the greater the fat intake is in the diet. In the United States, which has the greatest evidence of heart disease, more than 40 per cent of the total caloric intake was obtained from fats.

It is becoming increasingly evident that the kind of fat we eat is also important, perhaps as much or more important than the amount. It now seems that the unsaturated fats may lower the blood cholesterol level while the saturated fats seem to raise it.

Vegetable fats like corn oil and cotton seed oil are saturated and supply us with essential fatty acids. Animal fats raise the cholesterol blood level and are low in essential fatty acids.

Hydrogenated fats are solid white unhydrogenated fats are liquid at room temperature. Some of the important fatty acids are lost in the process of hydrogenation.

While research continues there are a few things we know we should do.

Reduce to the proper weight. If your cholesterol blood level is high or you have high blood pressure, your physician will guide you in reducing both. Heavy smoking is believed to be one of the factors involved in hardening of the arteries.

On top of that you may want to cut down on your intake of animal fats by drinking skim or powdered, fat-free milk, using corn oil more in cooking and using a corn oil margarine.

Modern Citizenship Brings Many New Responsibilities

Idea of citizenship for all men is a "fairly modern concept," Mrs. H. L. Smith told members of the Lady Laurier Club, at a luncheon meeting in Oak Bay Beach Hotel Friday.

"It brings with it certain rights and responsibilities," she pointed out.

Those responsibilities are quite different today to what they were 20 or 30 years ago.

"The citizen today must have a different outlook. It must include a broader knowledge of world affairs and understanding of other peoples and nations."

Mrs. Smith told her audience that training for good citizenship is based in the home, in religion and in the schools.

It is in the schools that young people learn the type of citizenship needed in a democratic country and through this knowledge they face the future with a broader outlook."

Following a brief description of the Citizenship Council of Victoria, of which she is chairman, and of the citizenship ceremony conducted in the city, Mrs. Smith made a plea that:

"The new courthouse, when built, has a room for this ceremony, large enough so high school classes may attend these ceremonies as part of training in good citizenship."

She was introduced by Mrs. Harold Johnston and thanked by Mrs. Thomas Lumsden.

Book Reviews

An evening of book reviews was conducted by toastmistress Miss Dorothy Burrows at recent meeting of Arbutus Toastmistress Club. Table topic mistress was Mrs. R. T. Overgaard; Mrs. Margaret Benbow gave the inspiration; speeches were made by Miss Winifred Reay and Mrs. L. Steeves, Madrona Club, and Mrs. J. Gillis and Mrs. L. Gordon, Victoria Club. Speech valuations were Mrs. H. Ker and Miss Dora Ponsford.

Vote of thanks was given by Mrs. S. Maurani.

General evaluator Mrs. F. Dearman awarded the oscar to Miss Reay and the spur to Mrs. Benbow. Mrs. J. Gillis closed the meeting.

USE PIGMENTED SHELLAC FOR AGING WOOD SURFACE

Shellac may be used for pickling wood surfaces. Apply pigmented shellac (also called shellac enamel) directly to the surface. When the area is covered, dip a rag in denatured alcohol and rub it over the wood.

Some of the shellac will remain in the wood pores to bring the effect wanted.

Quick Repairs For Flat Roofs

Natural Lighting Ensures Bright, Pleasant Living

Open planning and the extensive use of large window areas ensure a bright and spacious interior in this three-bedroom split-level design by architect Douglas H. Miller, of Vancouver. A glass wall running the length of the living-dining room overlooks the back gardens and is an attractive feature of the house.

A three-foot high partition separates the living-dining room from the open stairway and front vestibule, which serves to separate the living and sleeping areas. The well-lighted kitchen has a U-shaped working area and room for a dining table. An open hatch connects the kitchen with the living-dining room. The basement extends only beneath the bedroom and entrance hall areas of the house, but there is space for a large recreation room in addition to storage and utility rooms. The total floor area is 1,111 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 39 feet nine inches by 34 feet four inches. Working drawings for the house, known as Design 760 may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Industrial Plague Turns Profitable

VANCOUVER (CP) — Terebo-damaged wood which has cost the lumber industry millions of dollars has suddenly become popular here for interior decoration.

Vancouver designers have turned the fantastic Swiss-cheese patterns left in wood by burrowing molluscs into a commercial success.

Wooden panelling riddled with terebo holes now decorates the new Vancouver maritime museum, one of the city's finest new restaurants and a plush downtown cocktail bar.

It has become so popular for dens and home bars that four Vancouver mills now carry terebo wood as a stock item.

Terebos use their shells as grinding tools to carve a home for themselves in logs immersed in salt water.

Logs can become so heavily infested there is hardly a square inch of solid wood in them.

President Gordon Frulling of British Columbia Contract Sales, said that he believes the new fad will reach the peak of its popularity in another year.

"Since we started using it, the price of terebo wood has gone up from $27 a thousand board feet to $200 a thousand," he said.

"We had to get our first pieces by searching through log booms until we found an infested log, then getting the mill to cut it for us."

"During the recent woodworkers' strike in British Columbia we tried several mills in the United States as far south as Portland, Ore., for terebo wood. They all thought we were crazy."

So far the demand is limited to B.C., but if the idea spreads the-perforated wood which the mills once threw away could become a big export item.

MR. FIX

Neglected Masonry Repair Can Cause Serious Damage

Just because a brick home, or brick foundation and steps in a non-brick home, never need painting is no reason to ignore them.

Instead of peeling paint, you're likely to find crumbling mortar.

Neglect crumbling joints between bricks long enough and you may find damp spots on walls indoors before long.

Patching a brick wall or foundation is the sort of job that you can do a little at a time. First step is inspection. With a screwdriver or similar object, probe mortar joints for loose material.

WIRE BRUSH

With a hammer and cold chisel knock out all loose mortar. Don't bang away at mortar that is sound. Clean out smaller fragments with a wire brush.

Before applying new mortar, hose down the old surface thoroughly. If you apply mortar to a dry surface it will dry too rapidly, shrink and crumble.

A prepared mortar mix, made up in small amounts as needed, is easiest to use. If you want to mix your own, try one part cement to two parts sand and just enough water to give the mixture a uniform consistency.

Use a pointing trowel to fill the joints with mortar. Fill completely, then smooth. Indent the mortar slightly with the end of the trowel. Not only is it a more attractive joint, but it will shed water more quickly.

WET DOWN

Have a wet rag handy as you work to wipe off mortar that might fall on the brick.

For the next several days wet down the newly patched joints.

Bricks in steps get loose if joints crumble, and a loose brick is one that's likely to crack easily.

For mortar joints that are just beginning to wear with weather and use, repairing is the same as for a wall.

But bricks that have become cracked or terribly loosened require a little more work. Break away enough of the mortar to remove the brick.

Then clean out all the remaining mortar. While you are doing this, soak the brick in water. Then cover all the surfaces of the brick except its face (the surface that will show) with mortar. Fit it in place carefully. Finish filling the joints with mortar, if needed.

After the brickwork has been allowed to stand for a short time, smooth the mortar and wet down thoroughly. Repeat the wetting process for several days.

Saving Old Seed Poor Economy

While cleaning up one often finds some seed left over from last year and is tempted to use it. This is doubtful economy.

Fresh seed, after all only costs a few cents a packet, and yet all the care and work we put into our gardening absolutely depends upon the quality of the seed.

Some seed, too, must be brand new each year or it will not grow and in all cases it must be properly and carefully stored.

Use One Polish

You can't switch polishes if you start with a wax on furniture. An oil polish gives a higher gloss to furniture than a wax polish, but furniture must be polished more often when oil is used. A waxed piece of furniture must be refinished before an oil polish is used.

Before painting a galvanized metal roof, coat with a special primer. Tin-coated metal roofs must be inspected regularly, kept painted in good repair.

HOMES and GARDENS

Victoria Daily Times SAT., OCT. 24, 1959 25

For today's homes power machinery makes quick work of excavation.

HOUSE GOING UP

Clean Excavation Job Means Less Work Later

This article is one of a series by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation on building a house. Others will appear on these pages from time to time.

Power machinery is a boon to house building. Digging for a foundation, once a back-breaking task, has become a comparatively simple operation. Modern equipment can complete an excavation in a matter of hours.

Before digging begins, an understanding should be reached with the builder on two points. Where is the soil to be deposited and which trees, if any, should be spared?

If there is good top soil on the lot, the builder should be asked to stock-pile it on the site. It is more economical to conserve the top soil than to replace it afterwards. Top soil will be needed as a seed bed for the lawn.

Trees can be protected by wrapping several thicknesses of sacking or other similar material around the trunk. This wrapping should extend six or seven feet above the ground to prevent accidental damage by bulldozers, power shovels or trucks. Another way to protect trees is to put a triangular fence around the trunks.

Have the lot cleared of all debris, tree stumps and dead branches before operations begin. Neglecting this elementary step can mean endless annoyance later on. Soil containing rubbish is difficult and expensive to work.

In areas where rocky terrain is overlaid with workable soil, rock designed footings will be required. Otherwise, when settling takes place cracks may develop in the footings or in the foundation walls. In soft rock, such as shale, blasting can often be avoided, but in harder formations explosives will likely be needed.

Special precautions should be taken when excavating in

Whenever possible, trenches to the water and sewer mains should be dug and services installed at the time of excavation. It is cheaper to have the job done when the excavating machinery is already on the site. Secondly, if all work below ground level is completed by the time the carpenters start on the superstructure, materials can be delivered with less chance of damage.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Preparing Fresh Stock For Perennial Borders

The past six weeks have been excellent for increasing perennials by taking small pieces and rooting them in the open garden.

Rainfall has been just sufficient to supply the amount of moisture, and the warmth left in the soil from last summer has been as effective as any electric heating cable.

In early September we started pulling, or cutting, the individual young basal growths from the older woody centre pieces, and set them in rows in the open soil.

Most of these growths were without roots, although a few fine hairs could be seen on the more advanced pieces. Within ten days sufficient roots had formed to permit new top growth to start, and the plants are now well established and ready to go into beds and borders.

The idea behind the rooting of individual growths, as opposed to dividing the older plants, is to obtain young and vigorous plants on their own roots which will give top quality flowers for the next three years.

Five or seven of these young plants will be set in a group to give the same mass effect as obtained from the older plants.

Sturdy Growth
The essential difference will be that the young plants will produce growths which are sturdy and healthier than can be obtained from half-starved, woody centred clumps, and flowers will be larger, of better texture and deeper in color.

In some instances, it was necessary to break up a plant which was already in flower, or would have flowered during September. Although the home gardener finds it difficult to sacrifice the blooms of any plant, this is an instance where the reward is so great that the loss becomes insignificant.

Better results are obtained if such plants are selected in August and the flower stems cut off to increase the number of basal shoots. The perennials which have been successfully treated in this manner to date include the painted daisy (pyrethrum), the columbine, meadow rue (Thalictrum aquilegifolium), the red, pink and white forms of valerian (centranthus) and the true ox-eye (buphthalmum).

Also the Harrington Pink and Barr's Pink perennial asters, the Canadian and Missouri goldenrods (solidago), the snakeroot or bugbane (cimicifuga), the red and yellow varieties of avens or geum, and the cinquefoils (potentilla).

As the soil has become cooler and accumulated more moisture during October, the production of new roots has slowed considerably, but this was something we expected and prepared to meet.

Root Culture
To retain warmth in the soil and keep off the rain, part of the area which was ready for these individual pieces was covered with sheets of three-ply, and the rest had the position of the roots covered with old automobile windshields.

The plants which have been broken down during the past two weeks have been put into this dry, warm soil, and the glass has been used to cover them until new roots have formed.

Under these temporary covers are the herbaceous veronicas, sturdy young growths of mugwort (Artemisia lactiflora), and individual canes with buds and roots of the seven-foot primrose yellow coneflower (Rudbeckia herbstoniae).

Ideal Past
Since these are all hardy perennials, the protective covers will be removed usually after the new root systems are well advanced.

Now that the ideal weather for rooting in the open is past and the dry soil filled with plants, we turn to cold frame and raised beds which have been covered with glass.

The cold frame is a three-cover structure facing south. The centre cover has one light of glass removed from the high side, and the runners on which the covers slide have been built up to permit an air space along the entire front edge.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL
Q—I have seen a plant with pink flowers which my gardening friend calls a "pink lily." Now, first, is there such a thing as a pink lily? Second, am I right in saying that lilies all have leaves on the flower stems? Anon, Victoria.

A—Yes, there are now many fine pink lilies, though unfortunately they are not yet widely grown in local gardens. Yes, you are correct about the true lilies bearing both flowers and leaves on the same stem.

The pink flowered plant you have seen may have been the pink amaryllis (Amaryllis belladonna) if the flowers were large and trumpet shaped, or a nerine (Guernsey lily) if the petals were narrow and wavy. Both are hardy in gardens here, and fairly often seen.

Q—Is it too late to take geranium cuttings from plants still in the garden? A.M.R., Richmond Road.

A—Geranium cuttings may still be taken, but they will need extra care until they root. Be sure to allow the cut ends to dry for an hour or so before putting them into a sand-soil mixture. Place the pots or boxes of cuttings into a 50-60 deg. F. temperature. Do not water unless the leaves show signs of wilting, and then very sparingly. During winter, keep them in a place free from frost, but in good light. Potting of the rooted cuttings should be done about the end of February.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL
Planting of all shrubs and trees may be continued, with the exception of fruit trees and other leaf-losing ornamental kinds (deciduous) which have not yet shed their leaves. The exceptions to this last class of material are those which have been grown in cans or other containers for sale; these may be planted at any time.

Tulips and bulbous iris (Dutch, English and Spanish species) may all be planted now.

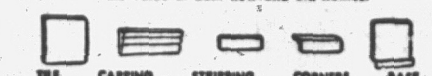

Montbretias flower better if dug, divided and replanted in groups each fall.

Cyclamens for indoor flowering should be at a temperature around 55 deg. F. Give all light possible, water carefully and apply weak liquid fertilizer every two weeks. Chrysanthemums in pots on porch or in unheated greenhouse will need attention to watering, spraying for insects and staking for best effects.

Asparagus growth should be cut down. Remove any plants producing red berries. They will never be good stalk producers. Top dress with rotted compost or old manure.

8 CARD OF THANKS

To all our friends for their kind expressions of sympathy in the loss of our beloved son, HANFORD STUART, for the beautiful floral tributes and cards received. To Rev. St. Augustine, the pallbearers, Major Ian Duncan, Mr. John Duncan, Mr. H. H. Brown, and all who assisted in the funeral. We say to each one of you a very sincere thank you—Sara and Douglas.

9 IN MEMORIAM

LINDSAY-In fond memory of a dear father and grandfather, David James Lindsay, who passed away Oct. 24, 1959. Nothing can ever take away the love a heart holds dear. Fond memories linger every day. Rest in peace, Dad. Lovingly remembered by his son, David, daughter Gladys and Vic, and grandchildren.

Huge Crackdown Against Gamblers

NEW YORK (UPI)—One of the greatest roundup of gamblers in history continued in its second day today with more arrests of an alleged interstate gambling syndicate operating in at least five states and Canada.

A spokesman for the New York State Investigation Commission said there had been "a substantial number" of new arrests adding to the total of 142 arrests announced Friday night. Approximately 200 state troopers were assigned to cleanup operations throughout upstate New York.

Canadian police staged four raids in Toronto today to coincide with the surprise pounce on upstate New York establishments which began at 3 p.m. Friday. The raids were expected to have repercussions in Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

James Grumet, one of the commission members, said tens of thousands of dollars had been seized in betting establishments in 29 New York cities and on the persons of the arrested men. Police said they found $14,400 on James Cocco, the accused proprietor of a gambling establishment in Waverlet, N.Y.

"These men weren't running a candy store operation," said Myles J. Lane, another commissioner. "They weren't interested in bets under $50. These are the real pros."

The annual meeting today. He reviewed work of the federal government towards development of the Columbia River hydro.

On Friday, party leader Finlayson served notice the party will fight the next provincial election on the issue of federal-provincial co-operation.

"We must get the federal government to participate to a greater extent in payments for such services as education, highways and hospitals."

He criticized Premier Bennett for attacking the federal government about tight money when the government was trying to deal with the problem.

"If Bennett would bury the hatchet it would be better for the province because Ottawa is interested in the development of the province."

He said there is an awareness in the Conservative party that B.C. should co-operate with Ottawa to get the best results.

Mr. Finlayson also promised complete support from the federal Conservatives "money and everything" for the provincial Conservatives at the next provincial election.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF MAE FILICIA CARLIS, deceased, late of 1411 Quadra Street, in the City of Victoria, Province of British Columbia, who died on the 14th day of September, A.D. 1959, at Victoria, B.C.

Creditors and others having claims against the above estate are required to send full particulars of such claims to the undersigned Solicitor for the Executor, on or before the 17th day of November, 1959, after which date the assets of the estate will be distributed, having regard only to claims of which the Executor shall have received notice.

"The campaign now has three weeks to run and we are hopeful of hitting our target," said campaign chairman Eric Mallett.

The student council at Victoria College has asked each student to contribute 50 cents to the Community Chest.

"This is a very happy surprise," Mr. Mallett said, "as we had not asked the students to help us."

vast siding walls onto a vista of corrugated metal, insulated pipe-boxes which carry water, steam and sewage lines. There was an explanation for these monstrosities, too: heat loss. Big windows, like those in police or Hudson's Bay Company posts or trappers' log cabins, aren't suitable in the Arctic.

(No one in the architect's office, apparently, thought to check up on weather records, which would show that Inuvik's winter temperatures are roughly comparable to those in Edmonton, 1,200 air miles south.)

The architects did not, however, forget the aesthetic side of things. They painted each unit of these ghastly structures in four colors, ranging from pastel yellow to shrieking orange, using a combination of — as far as these bleary eyes can recall — 16 different colors.

NEW HOSPITAL

There was need, of course, for a hospital to replace the two hospitals in Akavik (both mission-operated). So Inuvik will have a 120-bed hospital next year. The standard figure for hospitals is roughly 50 beds per thousand of population. Inuvik has a population now of 1,300 — the majority of these people construction men who will leave when their jobs are finished.

It might be worthy to note that the school and hostel opened this fall and that there are nearly 400 children registered now — with the nearest hospital and doctors at Akavik. In an emergency, the doctors will have to use an airstrip cleared by the people of Akavik themselves — the government hasn't yet got around to doing anything about licensing it — to fly to Inuvik at break-up and freeze-up. And this, of course, only if the weather is good enough for flying — which it frequently isn't in the delta.

Soon after the draughtsmen put away their tools and the engineers got to work, it became apparent that the highly touted utilitarians had one drawback: they would be too expensive to be used in more than a portion of the townsites. So Inuvik now consists of three areas: the serviced area, the unserviced area and the camp area.

COST OF SERVICES

The serviced area is reserved for government employees, a business section which will include a hotel, now building and a laundry, which may open this fall, government offices and a few private citizens who can afford the cost of the services.

The unserviced area is more of a problem. It sports delightful two-story structures known locally as the Inuvik Wheat Pool because they are shaped like miniature grain elevators. Storage tanks, to be dumped once a week, are located on the lower floor. A flight of steps leads to the second-floor which sports one toilet for men and another for women, plus a drain down which dishwater and other liquid waste can be dumped. One cynical humorist has suggested the doors should be labeled "His," "Hers" and "Theirs."

And a more practical soul observed that people who carry bucketsful of liquid waste more than 100 yards or so in winter will arrive with the contents frozen solid.

CAMP AREA

The camp area, in which no permanent buildings can be erected, is for construction workers (mainly Indian and Eskimo) who wish to have their families with them. Tents may be erected here, or walled huts with tent roofs, but not any structure, portable or not, with other than a canvas roof.

The slums now rising just outside Inuvik's boundaries, where people who wish to have their families with them but do not wish to live in tents have put up shacks, may well indicate the final design of Inuvik: a shanty town surrounded by makeshift shacks which make Akavik's ancient shacks and cabins look utterly respectable by comparison.

Inuvik goes further than that, however. Try as it may, the government cannot write off Akavik; it has simply built a new town, for most of Akavik's inhabitants are staying where they are.

This poses a fresh problem. There must be police, a government welfare officer, at least one nurse and a game warden, a department of transport signals station and schoolteachers. In Akavik, when Inuvik is ready. And along with the town it spawned, and the taxpayer will dig a little deeper.

HIGH COST

In January this year, it was estimated Inuvik had cost the people of Canada $34,000,000. This fall guesses on the ultimate figure range from $50,000,000 up ... mostly up.

When the last bill is paid, the government will have a new administrative centre, complete with 6,000-foot all-weather airport and central heating (for whites and wealthy natives only). But no one can tell you why.

Fluoridation Costs 28 Cents A Head a Year

By TONY DICKASON

Fluoridation of drinking water would cost 28 cents a year for each Greater-Victoria resident.

This was revealed Friday by Water District Commissioner R. A. Upward.

His facts were made available through Ira Hill, fluoridation chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at a meeting in city hall of municipal representatives called by the Victoria-Esquamalt Health Board to discuss the contents of a fluoridation issue.

It would cost $4,000 as an initial expenditure and an additional $43,000 a year to operate a fluoridation system for Greater-Victoria, Mr. Upward's figures showed.

Costs, he revealed, would involve purchase and installation of machines, manpower and purchase of the chemical. All costs, he said, excepting purchase of the chemical and wages would be static, and the yearly cost trend would be down.

Speakers were Dr. J. W. Anderson, a medical practitioner; Dr. W. W. McLuhan, city dentist and chairman, B.C. Dental Association fluoridation committee, and Mr. Hill.

Dr. Anderson, a medical man, pointed out that fluorides were not something manufactured by man but were in certain districts, an integral part of minerals digested.

A high fluoride content to water, he said, caused mottling of teeth, but not decay. On the basis of the "plus" fluoride factor, even when naturally available, mottling was not serious, he said.

He stated some communities had withdrawn support of fluoridation because of the teeth mottling factor, despite the positive factor that the chemical drastically cut dental caries.

To critics of the harm allegedly caused by taking fluorides in drinking water, he said the recommended dose to help teeth was so small an individual would have to drink 1,000 gallons of water, at one sitting, to sustain any damage from the chemical.

Two private schools, St. Ann's, Tzouhalem Road, and Queen Margaret's School, together with the Uplands Annex, will be exempt from taxes.

Two Kinsmen parks in Duncan and Chemainus have been excluded from general taxes and school taxes.

Exempt from general tax only are the corporation of the city of Duncan and Cowichan Agricultural Society.

Tax Freedom Bylaw Voted For Churches

(From Duncan Bureau)

North Cowichan Municipal Council gave first and second readings Thursday to a tax exemption bylaw, for church halls and private schools.

Thirteen churches in the municipality, including five churches and two church halls in Chemainus, will be noted in the bylaw as being exempt from taxes.

Two private schools, St. Ann's, Tzouhalem Road, and Queen Margaret's School, together with the Uplands Annex, will be exempt from taxes.

Two Kinsmen parks in Duncan and Chemainus have been excluded from general taxes and school taxes.

Exempt from general tax only are the corporation of the city of Duncan and Cowichan Agricultural Society.

The bylaw will be given a third reading by council and will be finally adopted and passed Nov. 30.

Youths Jailed For Entering Beer Parlor

DUNCAN—Two youths were locked up Friday when they were unable to pay $10 fines after being convicted on a charge of being under 21 years of age and entering licensed premises where liquor is sold.

Donald Richard Genge, 20, Cayuse Bay, and Guy Richards, 19, Victoria, had been questioned by RCMP in the Tzouhalem Hotel Oct. 22. Richards admitted he had been asked twice by a waiter to leave the premises. He told the court he was asking loggers where he could find a job.

Farewell Show For Retiring RCAF Officer

COMOX—A farewell wing review was held at the RCAF Station here to honor Flt. Lt. J. S. Cates, chief technical services officer of 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron.

Flt. Lt. Cates was reviewing officer as the squadron marched past on parade, led by Wing Cmdr. J. C. McCarthy, squadron commanding officer.

He enlisted in the RCAF at Esquimalt in 1936, when the air force numbered only 3,000 officers and men, and saw it grow to a strength of 200,000.

During the war Flt. Lt. Cates served mainly on the west coast, at Uchelet, Jericho Beach, Boundary Bay and Comox. After the war he served in Transport Command and took part in photographic mapping of northern Canada, aerial supply of northern stations, mercy flights and "operation sandbag" during the Winnipeg flood.

The Korean war saw Flt. Lt. Cates serving in Tacoma, Wash., the home base for the transport airlift to Korea. Subsequent postings took him to headquarters positions in Air Materiel Command and AFHQ.

Two years ago he received his "retirement posting" to Comox, where he had charge of Neptune aircraft maintenance. In addition to his regular duties he served as mayor of the town council of Comox Married Quarters.

He married Miss Sybil Flegg of Ottawa in 1940. They have two sons, David, who is now an engineering student at UBC, under the Reserve Officer Training Plan, and Douglas, 11. They will make their permanent home in Vancouver.

GEORGE E. BONNER
... village booster.

Cobble Hill Offers City Pure Water

George E. Bonner, unofficial mayor of Cobble Hill, today invited Victorians to taste the village's drinking water, which he claims is the purest and finest on Vancouver Island.

His invitation follows a complaint from insurance agent Askel Underbakke, 4588 Balmacara, that Victoria water is "so lifeless, tasteless and murky" that he brings back water from trips to the island's west coast.

Mr. Bonner, who is secretary-treasurer of the water system, said there was no need for Mr. Underbakke or dissatisfied Victorians to travel for miles for crystal clear water.

"We have some right here," he said. "And if the city will pay for the piping we will provide you with some."

He said when the provincial health inspector tested the water system a few months ago he was "so delighted" that he asked if he could take some home to his family in Duncan.

"Our water comes from a spring straight from rock, situated about half-way up Cobble Hill," he said. "It's unadulterated."

In addition, he said, the village has an artesian well to boost the village water supply when necessary. The water is used by the entire village, schools and commercial businesses.

Rally to Draw 75-Car Entry

PORT ALBERNI—A 600-mile, 18-hour highway and side road auto rally to cover practically all of the Vancouver Island road system will be staged in November by the Alberni Valley Road and Custom Association.

At least 75 entries are expected from clubs on both Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Final date has not been fixed, but it will be set to start at 8:30 p.m. on a Saturday night, and finish at about 3 p.m. the next day.

Route will be from here to Victoria, then to Sidney and return by Mill Bay ferry to back roads leading to Nanaimo. The course will continue north to Campbell River, then back to Qualicum Beach and return to Port Alberni.

Six hidden check points along the route will clock cars in and out to make certain cars follow the prescribed course. Missing a check point will disqualify an entry.

RCMP will be asked to set up one or two radar check points.

Competition will be in three classes, for European cars, domestic cars and team entries. There will be individual prizes and a grand prize of $100 to the overall winner.

Entries will provide their own food. It is expected arrangements will be made with one or more service stations

MORE SABOTAGE HITS ATOMIC SUB NAUTILUS

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — The Nautilus mystery deepens with new reports of more sabotage aboard the first U.S. atomic-powered submarine.

The Portsmouth Herald said Friday additional cable cutting incidents have been discovered in the wake of recent disclosures that the submarine had suffered damage described by the navy as "apparently intentional."

The navy said it could not confirm the Herald's latest report but it did not deny the story and said it would check.

BAD FOR THE DOLLAR

Perrault Raps Municipal Bank

GIBSONS, B.C. (CP) — B. C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault said Friday night a plan endorsed by Premier Bennett for establishment of a national finance bank to supply low-interest loans to municipalities would seriously impair the integrity of the Canadian dollar.

He urged instead an immediate conference of municipal, provincial and federal government leaders to develop "an equitable basis for sharing of tax revenues."

Mr. Perrault told a public meeting here the federal government has a serious responsibility to recognize the plight of money-starved municipalities. But he said there are no short cuts to low interest rates on loans to municipal governments.

He said the plan supported by Premier Bennett "looks like something that could only appeal to confirmed inflationists."

"If our present banking system is inadequate to supply credit to institutions requiring it, let the Minister of Finance, the Bank of Canada and the chartered banks remedy the situation," he said.

The Liberal leader said the present plight of municipalities is desperate. In B.C. immediate aid should be extended to them in the form of increased educational grants in line with an increase in education costs since 1955.

Premier Bennett in backing establishment of a federal municipal finance bank said mayors in Eastern Canada had been "very wise" to propose the arrangement.

The premier said the federal government makes a profit on municipal borrowings for schools and other projects as through income tax it makes

LIONS EXPECT RECORD CROWD

(See Page 10)

VANCOUVER (CP)—A record 35,000 fans are expected to watch the Calgary Stampeder-British Columbia Lions game tonight in warm, damp weather but no fog.

The weatherman said heavy rain today will disappear before the crucial Western Inter-provincial Football Union game starts.

U.S. Scientists Tipped to Win Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Stockholm afternoon newspapers name two American atomic scientists as probable winners of the 1959 Nobel Physics Prize.

The Americans mentioned are Dr. Emilio Segre, 54, and Dr. Owen Chamberlain, 49, both of the University of California.

Prof. Jaroslav Heyrovsky, 69, head of the Polarographic Institute in Prague, was listed as a chemistry prize candidate.

Winners of both prizes will be announced Monday by the Swedish Academy of Science.

Heyrovsky is the father of polarography—a method of analyzing complicated chemical solutions with the aid of electrodes.

New Shacks Built for New Location

The original plan—to move Aklavik's buildings 70 miles by barge through the delta—was abandoned. Why, asked Ottawa, build a new town and fill it with old shacks? So a new creature came into being, the 512 or Eskimo cabin, a house with 512 square feet of floor space designed to teach the Eskimo to live like a white—but with no provision for in-

Socreds Revive Class Warfare B.C. Tories Told

By PETE LOUDON, Times Staff Reporter

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS—Premier Bennett has done more to cement the alliance of CCF and labor than all the union organizers and Socialist politicians, B.C. Conservative Leader Deane Finlayson said today.

Speaking to the opening session of the annual meeting of party executives, Mr. Finlayson said the Bennett government "has held power largely to keep the CCF out of office. He sees his strength waning and he has through hostile attacks and provocative legislation put blood in the eye of labor."

"Class warfare has been revived, employee set against employer and vice versa. The premier hopes to exploit the consequences of such a policy by running as Sir Galahad

FIGHT ON PROXIES

One internal matter was expected to create some controversy later today. This was the question of proxy votes at conventions and conferences.

The Dewdney Conservative Association says it has proven the use of proxies results in buying and selling of votes. This was alleged at the time of the last leadership convention in 1958.

The Dewdney resolution says one delegate should have one vote. Anyone who does not attend should have none.

RUSSIA WON'T BACK DELAY IN SUMMIT

LONDON (Reuters)—Russia said today there is "no justification" for postponing an East-West summit conference until next spring.

In an indirect blast at French President de Gaulle's suggestion for delaying the meeting, the Soviet government said that "there are powers in the world" working against an East-West thaw.

A statement issued by Tass, official Soviet news agency, said: "The Soviet government adheres to its view that the sooner such a meeting is convened the better for the cause of peace."

The United States and Britain are known to favor an early meeting but French President de Gaulle recommended Wednesday that it be delayed until the spring.

Mayor Leads Delegation

Mayor Percy Scurrell will lead a four-man delegation to Ottawa Sunday to fight for ship contracts which would preserve employment for 350 local shipyard employees in the next months.

Mayor and delegates Conway Farrot, past president, Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Alf Toone, secretary-treasurer, Victoria Labor Council and businessman Courtney Haddock are paying their own way to Ottawa.

They plan to talk to Defence Minister Peakes and other officials in the capital on Monday.

THREE-HOUR MEETING

Their decision to make a second personal trip to Ottawa came after a three-hour meeting Friday of the mayor's shipbuilding sub-committee.

Mayor Scurrell described as "touch-and-go" the chances of Victoria yards being awarded a $3,000,000 contract to build a 10,000-ton ship for the West Indies.

"I believe the pressure the committee put on Ottawa some time ago delayed the granting of the contract to another shipyard elsewhere," said the mayor.

"There is no other apparent reason the contract was not awarded three to four weeks ago."

He said the decision to go to Ottawa came after he spoke to Peakes by telephone Friday night.

NOT MUCH CHANCE

The mayor said he didn't believe there was "much chance" of Victoria yards getting a $3,500,000 contract to build a dredger. The government opened tenders for the job, Oct. 9, but hasn't announced which yard will get the job. The mayor said he thinks the government wants to reassess its position on the dredger.

If Victoria yards don't get a contract to build at least one of two 10,000-ton ships for the West Indies, local yards would lose 350 highly-trained personnel, said the mayor.

Last May the mayor led his committee to Ottawa to press for contracts which would keep local yards operating.

Imperial Oil Earnings Jump

TORONTO — Substantial gains in business volume boosted net earnings of Imperial Oil by 10 per cent in the first nine months of 1959. It was announced today by J. R. White, president.

Earnings are estimated at $37,680,000, equivalent to $1.20 per share compared with 1958 earnings of $34,327,000 or $1.09 per share.

Mr. White said net crude oil production was up over nine per cent, higher and product sales showed an increase of more than eight per cent.

Chrysler Valiant Bows Into Field

DETROIT (AP)—Chrysler's Valiant bowed into the new "compact" car field Friday, completing the lineup of 1960 models.

The Valiant is longer, heavier and more powerful than its new rivals—Ford's Falcon and Chevrolet's Corvair. It still is considerably smaller than standard-sized American cars.

The Valiant has a 101-horsepower engine mounted in front on a 30-degree slant, providing for a lower hood line.

Pipeline Company Declares Dividend

EDMONTON (CP)—Interprovincial Pipe Line Company declared a quarterly dividend of 55 cents a share payable Dec. 1, 1959, to shareholders of record on Nov. 6, 1959.

The dividend represents an increase of five cents a share over previous quarterly payments and brings to $2 total regular payments during the year.

The company also declared a special dividend of 25 cents a share payable Dec. 1 to shareholders of record Nov. 6.

Investment Club Bug Hits Hard

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

Everyone's got the investment club bug, according to "literature" the mailman deposits on this desk.

National magazines say the same thing — investment clubs are growing faster than mushrooms sopped in fertilizer.

Who belongs to these clubs? Malone

Anybody can. Some are made up of housewives (hobby plays the stock market "so we can, too"). Others are made up of Butchers, postmen, gardeners. Collegiate undergrads working for commerce degrees often band together on the premise that a group of intellectuals cannot help but succeed in such a simple field.

Publications have been stored up to the jackets with stories of clubs which have succeeded. The failures are not so frequently noted, human nature being reluctant to admit it has tumbled off its own bankroll.

OPINIONS DIFFER

Talking to Victoria investment men, you get three impressions — (a) investment clubs are good; (b) they are "alright" if properly run; and, (c) "I don't want to touch them with a 40-foot pole."

"A properly run investment club," said one dealer, "can contribute to the economy of the country."

"By the same token, an improperly run club can contribute only to the liquidation of its own finances."

Essentially, the brokers agreed that a club which avoids speculative stocks has a chance to see its holdings grow.

"Unfortunately," said one dealer, "some members of investment clubs see the stock market as a means of getting rich in a hurry. They shun blue chip stocks and plunge into speculative issues."

TIME AND STUDY

"I won't touch speculative stocks. I've seen too many people walk into my office holding a handful of wallpaper (stock certificates which have little use except to ignite a campfire). This usually happens when people don't take the advice of an investment firm which has analysts who do nothing all day but study financial statements and other material to see how sound or unsound they are."

A broker who said he didn't solicit investment club business but believed it could thrive, properly guided—put it this way:

"It can't work if the members make it work. If they put in the time and study, take their findings to a broker for evaluation, heed his advice and don't expect the moon immediately, an investment club has its place."

One broker said investment clubs could avoid grief if they followed one important rule—"don't buy stock that is not eligible for investment by life insurance companies."

These companies, he explained, can only invest in firms which have a consistent earnings record.

The broker who would rather be afflicted with tonsillitis than an investment club explained his reasons.

"Quite often they don't incorporate. This leaves one person as the head of the group. His name goes on the stock certificates. What happens if a truck runs over him? What happens if one of the group wants out? Or leaves town?"

"Another problem is the low amount of capital. Many clubs want a diversified portfolio but haven't enough funds to buy a block of any one stock. It's easier to buy 10 shares of say Calgary Power at $96 than it is to buy one but they don't realize that."

UNDERGROUND WIRING HALTED, BUSINESS HURT

Union Dispute Deadlocked

There was no sign of settlement today in the union jurisdictional dispute which has halted parts of Victoria's underground wiring project for three weeks.

Officials of the sub-contracting firm involved, electrical contractors Hume and Rumble, declined to comment on the situation, but it was learned the dispute concerned whether inside or outside wiremen should install electrical ducts.

Business agent for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, John A. Driscoll, said the type of work should be under an "outside" agreement, and the sub-contractors had refused to recognize this.

There were originally only three men involved, but the work tie-up has meant that the general contractor, George Farmer, has had to cut his work force by 20—about one-half usual strength.

A B.C. Electric spokesman, for whom Farmer Construction is doing the work, said the company was concerned about the slowdown.

The result is excavations have been dug but no wiring put through. No new excavations are being opened up except for drainage purposes.

Meantime, many business houses in the downtown area have been blocked off and are suffering through traffic diversion.

One Douglas Street merchant told The Times: "We're blocked off on three sides."

"This thing is murdering us—just at a time when we're getting into our busy season."

'I WILL RUN, I WILL WIN' SAYS SMITH

"I will be a candidate for mayor, and I will win the election," J. Donald Smith said today.

He was commenting on the suggestion that he was not eligible to run because of legal action he had undertaken on the off-street parking bylaw.

"In no way whatsoever have I been disqualified. This is a wrong impression," he said. He said city council had denied ratepayers the right to vote on the off-street parking bylaw, and it was his contention this "right" should be granted.

Pat Bay Highway Death 'Accident'

Verdict of accidental death with no blame attached was returned by a coroner's jury today in the death of Victoria pensioner, Ben Carlos Blackburn, 73.

He was struck by a car Tuesday night on Patricia Bay Highway.

The jury made a recommendation that the provincial government install street lights between the intersection of Keating Cross Road and East Saanich Road where the accident took place.

Island Man Top Lumber Grader

An ex-Lancashire textile man and RAF veteran, who "never saw a sawmill before I came here" 11 years ago, has won the annual British Columbia Lumber Manufacturers' Association grading contest.

Harold Haycock of Youbou, a grader for B.C. Forest Products Ltd., beat out 69 top contestants from all coast logging and log-processing firms this June in practical and written examinations to win his company's $100 prize and silver bowl trophy for 1959.

Executive vice-president of the BCLMA, L. R. Andrews, presented the trophy Friday night to the small Englishman from Blackburn, Lancashire, in front of more than 50 contestants in the competition, executives of coast log and Forests Minister Ray Wilking companies and Lands liston.

"My wife got half the money," said Mr. Haycock, and the strike took care of the rest.

The awards, to Mr. Haycock, and runners up, were presented at the annual BCFP dinner in Holyrood House.

The contest is open to any employee of a coast lumber company and consists of a practical and written test.

Good marks in the competition can lead to preferred positions in individual companies as graders and company men in any line of work may compete.

Third prize was presented to BCFP employee Tom Bradley, grade supervisor at Hammond sawmill division, by chief grading inspector for the BCLMA, L. B. Dixon.

Second place was captured by MacMillan and Bloedel Chemainus division employee R. Arneil who was not eligible for a Forest Products prize.

Supplemental prizes of $25 and $15 respectively went to Cowichan sawmill division Forest Products employees Rene

To the constituents, bless them!

Constituent writes to suggest I follow my smashingly spectacular campaign to save Ripple Rock with a similar campaign to save the Inner Harbor before it is entirely deserted by all shipping... must thank the constituent for the kind thoughts and the detailed defence of the Inner Harbor, coupled with the rousing denunciation of the substitution of Sidney and Nanaimo as Victoria's ports of entry... but must say it is much too late to save the Inner Harbor unless we can pass legislation against the airplane and the automobile...

Constituent drops in to ask, how new is new? ... this constituent says he has been reading and hearing advertising for a "new" razor for at least a year... says he wants to know how new can be new when it's old... suggested to this constituent, he get up his own campaign... ask advertising agencies to temper enthusiasm with fact... start out with "new" product... then, as time advances, advertise it as "semi-new," "a little new," "was new," until it becomes "old reliable"... constituent goes away, not saying thank you...

Constituent calls up (in the dead of night) to ask if I heard the opera on television... constituent is told, no, I did not hear the opera on television... constituent says, opera was actually sung in English, and isn't that a terrific idea?... I tell the constituent no, that is not terrific idea... if people go around and about singing operas in English, other people are apt to figure out what the operas are all about, and will realize how dull and stupid they are... constituent says, you've got a terrific idea for a column there... I say I haven't, good-night now...

Constituent writes to say she has resumed reading this space after avoiding it successfully for some time... explaining reason she gave it up was, she is allergic to cats...

To the constituents, bless them!

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria announced today that due to changes in shipping arrangements, the exhibition of ballet pictures scheduled to be on view until Sunday afternoon has been closed.

On view today instead is the show scheduled for next week: an exhibit of international color lithography.

Address of a Victoria man sentenced in city police court Friday to a year in jail for burglary was reported in error as 717 Pandora.

Proper address for Donald Ray Read, 27, was 1721 Amphion.

The CNIB five pin bowling club has sent out a call for sighted scorers and a coach or two.

The blind bowlers have a two-hour session at Gibson's Bowladrome each Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Anyone able to keep track of strikes and spares is invited to get in touch with the CNIB headquarters, Blanshard St.

Mortimer L. Levy, national president of the 9,500-member Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, will address the Victoria branch Monday at 12:15 in the Pacific Club.

A meeting of the Lansdowne PTA group will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the school.

Leaving his motel door unlocked cost a West Vancouver salesman his wallet, $5-$6 cash, credit cards, business and personal papers, he told city police Friday.

Walter Bruce Lee, a guest at Royal Victoria Motel, 225 Gorge, said his wallet was taken from a suit which he hung overnight in the entrance hall of his room.

YMCA physical director Archie McKinnon was reported in satisfactory condition today by St. Joseph's Hospital authorities.

He broke five ribs two weeks ago in a fall in the Crystal Garden pool and was operated on for removal of a ruptured spleen Tuesday.

Mayor Jack Potthecary of Armstrong, B.C., who is also provincial president of the Canadian Legion, will address a meeting in Esquimalt Legion Hall Sunday at 3 p.m.

Mayor Potthecary says he is anxious to meet as many local legionnaires as possible.

Sunken Ship Poses Identity Problem

Wreckage found by RCN divers in the Nootka Sound area this week may be that of a vessel 200 to 300 years old.

Navy experts at first believed the wreck was the Royal Navy sloop, HMS Condor, which foundered with all hands in 1901, somewhere in the Cape Flattery area.

Some bits and pieces of the wreck were returned to Esqui-

'WAR MUST BE BANNED FOREVER'—EX-AMBASSADOR

100 Brave Foul Weather to Participate In Annual UN Flag-Raising Ceremony

By TONY DICKASON

Rain dampened the bunting but not the ardor or sincerity at the United Nations flag-raising ceremony on the Causeway at 11 a.m. today.

Water cascading off his homburg, Hon. T. C. Davis, former Canadian ambassador to Japan, told about 100 who braved the weather, the world has come to the point where "war must be banned forever."

His brief remarks drew enthusiastic applause, despite the fact most of the right hands present were clutching umbrellas.

He then raised the blue and white UN flag to the top of the flagpole. It was brought down again, and sent up once more followed by the flags of the United Nations.

The ceremony culminated a motor cavalcade to the site sponsored by the Peace by Peaceful Means Society and the local branch of the United Nations' Association.

Twenty-eight cars were involved, many carrying signs and placards reading "Construction Not Destruction... Feed the Hungry... Swords into Plowshares..." and similar themes.

Also tacked to a car was the recent prize slogan of the PBPMs, "Canada's Choice, U.S.S.R., U.S.A. or UN?" A $10 prize went to Richard Broughton, 1071 Craigdarroch for this.

SOCIALISTS SHUNNED

Members of the two organizations were quick to dissociate themselves from a truck parked across from the flag pole bearing a sign reading:

"War is part of capitalism. World powers prefer profits before peace." and listing the slogan as by the "Socialist Party of Canada."

Victoria Tug Set to Start For New Tow

The Island Tug and Barge Ltd. towboat Cambrian Salvor is scheduled to leave port Monday for another trans-Pacific towing job before resuming her station at Yokohama.

She will pick up a Liberty ship, now moored at Victoria Machinery Depot, proceed to San Francisco and add a small air craft carrier to her tow.

The two ships are headed for Japanese shipbreakers.

Another San Francisco tow will start toward the end of the week for an Island Tug vessel, the Sudbury I. She is taking a single aircraft carrier, will rendezvous with Sudbury II at Hawaii to transfer the tow to the more powerful vessel.

While in port here for refit, Cambrian Salvor was equipped with a new towing winch and a unique voice radio system which is expected to enable the ship to keep in touch with the owners from anywhere in the world.

It is believed to be the first commercial application of an ultra long-distance radio developed for military use.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Sidney RCMP court Friday:

Herbert Alexander Mills, Sidney, $15 and $3 costs for speeding over 30.

In Oak Bay police court Friday:

Dr. Edwin Hoodless, 2749 Musgrave, $40 and licence restricted to business purposes only for one month, careless driving.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What is a Greta Green marriage?—H.J.

A. It's a runaway marriage or elopement. The term comes from Greta, a hamlet near the village of Springfield, Dumfriesshire, Scotland. Up to 1856 all that was required of couples wanting to marry was a mutual declaration before witnesses of their willingness to marry. Neither licence, banns, priest or minister was needed. The declaration was generally made to a blacksmith.

All questions should deal with real bits of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Meantime, a sound car blared the message that Canada should be made the first nation to throw all its resources behind the UN, "not the USSR, and not the USA."

Advocated also was that people write John (Diefenbaker) and ask for milk, not missiles; bread, not Bomarcas; tractors, not tanks.

The flag-raising ceremony was held at the same time today in thousands of communities throughout the world, marking the 14th anniversary since the founding of the UN in San Francisco.

Several school groups were represented, but thinly. One youth had a sign attached to the back of his raincoat reading, "UN—Striving for peace amongst all nations."

An attractive addition to the watery scene by the water was the presence of 21 boys and girls, clad in national costumes, holding very Victorian umbrellas.

Bill Scott, president of the Victoria Humanist group, started off walking the cavalcade route carrying a sign which said Humanists wanted peace.

But, due to the downpour, his spirit was cooled off after a few blocks and he accepted a lift in a truck.

Petition Seeks to Save Local Farmers' Business

The battle between Saanich farmers and the provincial government over the size of milk cartons took a new turn today.

A group of householders have got behind dairy farmers who are fighting a government order banning the sale of 64-ounce milk cartons in the province.

Mrs. H. K. Hunt, 756 Haliburton Road, spokesman for the group, said a petition is being raised in Saanich requesting the government to revoke its decision.

The cabinet ruled two weeks ago that milk can only be sold such as the Imperial gallon, quart or pint.

Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy "claimed" the order was approved to avoid confusion and protect consumers.

The order was issued after Saanich Milky Way Dairy Ltd. had bought an expensive machine which turns out 64-

ounce cartons. These were being sold at 42 cents each.

Mrs. Hunt said the petition was being raised because "we believe people should be given the freedom to choose what products they like."

"We think the ruling is unfair," she said. Peanut butter and other products are being sold in different size jars. The consumer chooses the size he wants. We don't see why this shouldn't also apply to milk.

Meanwhile, dairy farmers continue to press the government for hearing to present their case.

But Henry Robinson, manager of Milky Way Dairy Ltd., said the agriculture minister still refuses to meet dairymen to discuss the issue.

"We will continue to fight for a hearing," he said. "We are not going to take this matter lying down."

Opinions Divided On Free Love 'Joke'

Opinion today was split on whether or not the three Victoria College students who published an article in the college paper The Spectator on free love were within their academic rights.

Many persons believed the article should never have been allowed in print, while others backed the freedom of expression.

College principal Dr. Harry Hickman said he endorsed freedom of thought and speech. Let us not take too seriously the silly stuff that university students often print in the campus newspaper.

Archbishop Harold E. Sexton said "I regret that the authors have apparently not seen fit to consult with well-informed and experienced persons of strong Christian faith."

Spectator publisher Keith Webb said "we certainly apologize if the article has offended anyone, but we don't apologize for running it."

REPRIEVED

Girlish Bull To Live Out Monastic Life

Victoria animal lovers sighed with relief today when they learned the London Daily Mirror has bought the condemned bull, Brook Mandore, and plans to turn the animal out to pasture after it is castrated.

"Wonderful," said Mrs. Florence Barr. "I wonder why they didn't do that in the first place. In Scotland they have a rest-home for horses. The bull could have been accommodated there."

Mrs. Barr, a former secretary for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Friday proposed bringing the girlish-looking bull to Victoria rather than see it die in a slaughterhouse.

The Mirror, a tabloid with a circulation of close to 5,000,000, said the bull, ordered to be killed by the government because it was too pretty, will spend the rest of his days peacefully grazing on a farm in England.

"He can just graze quietly. His career as a stock-raising bull is over and he won't be able to be a papa. This is part of the price of his reprieve."

Brook Mandore, a 14-month-old Ayrshire, was swept to international fame under a death order from the agriculture ministry.

Experts ruled the bull's gentle face was not in the fine, fierce tradition of the species and refused to licence him for breeding. They ruled he must be destroyed or castrated.

Mr. and Mrs. Potts... suspense over, $1,600 richer.

SIX VICTORIANS DRAW SWEEP HORSES

2 Have Chance at Fortune

Six Victorians holding tickets in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes have drawn horses in the Cambridgeshire Handicap which is run next Wednesday.

Two of them have horses listed as starters; the rest will receive about $1,600 consolation money each for having drawn non-starters.

Holding a ticket on Kingroy is A. C. Linn, 1123 Esquimalt Road, who today didn't seem very excited about the possibility of winning $140,000, top prize in the sweep.

"I'm not counting the money, not even the consolation, until it arrives," he said. "I'm keeping my fingers crossed, but don't think I have much chance for of the big money."

The suspense is over for Mrs. John Potts, 1071 Richmond whose ticket was drawn on the non-starter Jerome.

"But I would just as soon be still in suspense," she said. "I would have liked the big money. We could have spent some of it on a winter vacation."

Mr. Potts, who is retired,

spent most of the summer in hospital for a series of operations on his eyes. Mrs. Potts works as supervisor of cleaning at the Scollard Building.

"The money we've won will have to go to such things as painting the house," Mrs. Potts said.

A starting horse, Sufi, was drawn by Mrs. Florence Earl, 1323 Walnut.

Other three Victoria ticket holders are unidentified. The noms de plum are: Adanac (on the horse Colours); Mons (Welsh Guard); Astounding Joy (Alcimides.)

"Remember, if there's a propeller on the front end, it's NOT a duck!"

SHOPPING GUIDE

Pack Favorite Meals In Handy Pie Carrier

By PENNY SAVER

Does the hunter in your family insist on good meals when he pushes off into the bush on his trips? If he does a covered pie carrier would make victualing a pleasure!

Ones I saw had an aluminum base and clear plastic top with red carrying handle and lock. No danger of spilling the juicy contents! This way, there's no need to pass up the chance of enjoying one's favorite pies or other goodies. Perfect, too, for keeping baking fresh. They come at $2.95.

Do you like cleaning your oven? If you dread this chore and yet refuse to live in a kitchen that fills with smoke every time you bake, a handy aluminum oven guard will save you many hours of cleaning.

Their raised centres ensure equal distribution of heat. You'll find them ideal when cooking whether it's scalloped potatoes, casseroles or your favorite coffee cake. They're easily cleaned, just wash in soapy water. The 98 cents they cost will be a worthwhile investment.

Never thought little pigs could look as attractive as the tiny black ones I happened across this week. These were novelty paper weights. Colored jewels crusted their chubby bodies while a wrought iron pencil holder spiralled up from their porky tails. A jewel-topped pencil completed the attractive item.

These would be perfect on milady's desk and would dress up the telephone table in the hall. You can buy a little piggie of your own for only $1.50!

Clubwomen's News

Story of Africa—The president, Mrs. W. J. McIntyre, introduced a new study book on Africa at this week's meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of First United Church Women's Missionary Society. She urged the WMS to put a real effort into knowing about the African people, their problems, and their way of life. Mrs. A. I. Higgins took devotion at this autumn thanksgiving meeting and Mrs. H. H. Youson was guest soloist. Tea was served by Miss Jane Rattray and her group.

Thank You—At quarterly meeting of St. Mark's Chancel Guild, held in the home of Mrs. C. Springfield, St. Mary's Lake, Salt Spring Island, letters of thanks were read for gifts sent to a displaced persons camp in West Germany. Archdeacon G. H. Holmes took devotion. A sum of $25 was voted for rectory taxes; $20 for church insurance and $25 to the Anglican Theological College. Plans were made to have a scroll hung in the church, giving a short history of the building, which was 70 years old last May.

To Film Board—At recent meeting of Salt Spring Island Catholic Women's League, a sum of $5 was voted to the National Film Board. Mrs. A. Marcotte presided and plans were made to hold bingo games in the church hall at Ganges on Oct. 30 and Nov. 13. Special guest at the meeting was Father P. Hanley, Sidney. Mrs. Marcotte and Mrs. Carlin served refreshments.

Thanksgiving—Guest speaking at autumn thanksgiving luncheon of Metropolitan United Church Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society, was Rev. D. K. Johnston, Fairfield United Church. He spoke on his work as a missionary in China and Formosa. Mrs. J. Boorman presided; soloist was Mrs. E. W. Hanning, accompanied by Mrs. H. Robinson; sing song was led by Rev. Laura Butler with pianist Mrs. Keith Henderson and prayers were taken by Rev. C. R. McGillivray and Rev. J. Jones. Rev. W. R. Cantelon also assisted. Luncheon conveners were Mrs. E. R. Bell and Mrs. C. F. Wharton and flower arrangements were in charge of Mrs. H. C. Steele.

Penny Sale—Final plans for annual Penny Sale at Odeon Theatre, Nov. 7, were made by members of Alden Hamber Chapter, IOOE, at meeting in the Lansdowne Road home of Mrs. Norman Lockyer. Cerebral palsy clinic and Unitarian Services Committee were voted donations of $25 each. Mrs. Eileen Medley, educational secretary, read a letter of thanks from Quick School, Telkwa, B.C., for subscription to the National Geographic. Mrs. Kathleen White reported taking a food hamper to an elderly pensioner and placing flowers in sun rooms of Veterans' Hospital.

California Honeymoon

Newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Norman William John McCulloch who were married in St. James United Church, Vancouver, recently, spent honeymoon in California.

Bride, the former Barbara Elizabeth, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Ashe of Vancouver. Her groom, who is attending Union College, University of British Columbia, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William McCulloch of Victoria. Rev. Thomas T. Oliver conducted the service.

A gown of heavy white satin overlaid with net and lace was worn by the bride. It was fashioned with full-length skirt. Her chapel length veil cascaded from a dainty headpiece and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses, carnations and stephanotis.

Bride was given in marriage by her father. Organist was G. E. Tunstall and soloist, Miss Heather McKinnon.

Deep pink and green gowns were worn by attendants, Mrs. William Reade, matron of honor, and Miss Lillian Denahue. They carried bouquets of wine and white chrysanthemums.

Best man was Les Warwick and ushers were Michael Boulger and George Esther.

Michael Boulger proposed the toast at reception in church hall. A three-tier cake centred the table. Mrs. K. M. Bye and Miss Mary Bye played piano selections.

For her going-away outfit, bride wore a green woollen suit and tan hat.

Couple will live in Salmo, where groom is lay minister at the United Church there.

Cplfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., Odd Fellows Hall. Social evening, nominations for officers.

McCall's PRINTED PATTERN NS177

The belle of the ball wears McCall's. The important full-length dress has a regal bell-shaped skirt. "V"-ed bodice lightly covers the shoulder and is molded by long slanting darts to a self-belted waistline. Unpressed pleats on the gored skirt lend the interesting shape news. The short version has all the accoutrements... but takes to the early evening events. The uncluttered lines are well suited to the richness of this season's fabrics: cut velvet, velveteen, brocade, satin, printed silk, faille. In sizes for Misses, 10-18. Size 14, in the long version, takes 4 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric without nap; the short, 3 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric without nap. McCall's Printed Pattern, No. NS177, 85 cents.

Send 85 cents for pattern No. NS177 to McCall Printed Pattern, c/o The Times, 462 Front Street, West, Toronto, Ont. Please print plainly, name, address, zone number and size.

Tartan of Family Clan Ties Bride's Rose Bouquet

The tartan of the bride's family clan was used in ribbons of her bouquet of red rosebuds at her recent wedding. The bride is the former Miss Murdina MacKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch MacKenzie, of Victoria, and the groom is Kenneth Walt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walt, of Mission, B.C. Rev. T. H. McAllister conducted the ceremony in the Gorge Presbyterian Church.

A gown of Chantilly lace in ballerina length was worn by bride. Her bouquet was in petal shape. MacKenzie tartan ribbon also tied her bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Gus McCarthy was best man and ushers were Kenneth Murray and Duncan MacKenzie, Vancouver.

Following the service, newlyweds were piped from the church by James McMillan, Vancouver. Brechin Hall, Holyrood House, was setting for a reception. John MacAulay presided.

Times fashion editor Nona Damaske, finds ponchos are trend-setters "down Mexico Way," for wear over swim suits, slacks or shorts. This Indiglo print in a handsome "wallpaper floral" is used in a stunning poncho that converts to a skirt. Nona, in the land of sunshine for at least three weeks, will be writing her column from there.

Sunshine and Swimming On Mexican Holiday!

By NONA DAMASKE

Acapulco, Mexico. Most important decision to be made at the moment is whether to swim in the sea, in the salt-water pool, or in the fresh-water pool.

Way the sun shines all day may be all three—will be possible. Fashion notes to be on resort wear as that is all I expect to see for the next several weeks.

Season is just beginning in Acapulco but there are enough people around to make each hour at the pool a real fashion show.

Most striking item worn by the feminine vacationists in Mexico is the hat. They are fantastic! A hat is a necessity here because of the very hot sun and the Mexicans have made a real fun thing out of a necessary piece of apparel.

All shapes, sizes and colors imaginable, for men as well as women are on display and even the most conservative-looking people get in the spirit of the place—and wear them.

PRICES VARY

There are two varieties—handwoven and machine made. The machine made's are very inexpensive and are found everywhere in great huge stacks. The handmade's are more interesting and not nearly as plentiful. These abound with all manner of individually designed birds, flowers and insects.

Tangerine, royal blue and a vivid green seem to be the most popular shades and when a number of people are sitting around the patio restaurant it is a colorful sight.

Bathing suits are gorgeous, too, and mostly in cotton's, as is seems to stand up to extreme heat better than any other material.

There are a few bikinis and two-piece styles, but for the most part the feminine sarong-type style seems to lead the way here. Co-ordinated sets of swim suit and Cabana coats are extremely popular. There are no rules but it seems to be the thing to slip a coat over your suit when eating at the outdoor tables or walking through the hotel shops.

Everyone, from six to 60 wears thong sandals all day, every day. They are so easy to slip on and off as you go in and out of the water.

Straw bags are a tourist must. I noticed in the airport that, without exception, every outgoing gal was toting a huge straw bag.

I am staying at Hotel Pierre Marques, 12 miles out of Acapulco city. The hotel is on the sea and the estate covers 187 acres. Game fishing, water skiing, skin diving, sailing, swimming, tennis, and just plain sunbathing, are all available.

I have already learned not to walk through the grass in my bare feet. The lizards won't harm you but they are cold and slippery. They do keep the flies and mosquitoes away, however.

Birthday—A luncheon meeting on occasion of the birthday of HMS Ganges Chapter, IOOE, was held recently by members in Harbor House, Salt Spring Island. Mrs. E. O. DuVernet, president, Provincial Chapter, was guest speaker. HMS Ganges Chapter was formed Oct. 20, 1914.

If YOU Don't Care WHO WILL?

DEAR ABBY...

Is He Is, Or Is He Ain't?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I live in a town where almost everyone is related to me. The ones who aren't related to me aren't worth going with.

The only man I am interested in is the new minister, who is single. They say he is sort of engaged to a girl from out of town. He pays a lot of attention to me, but everyone says it is only because I take him places in my car. He has none.

I would like to know if he considers me a romantic possibility or a method of transportation. How can I get this information without making myself look foolish? I am 21 and he is 29.

GIRL WITH CAR.

DEAR GIRL: First find out what "sort of engaged" means. It is unlikely that a minister would declare his intentions to marry one girl and "court" another. If he is officially engaged then consider yourself a chauffeur. If he is not engaged and pays you a lot of attention, then disregard the town talk, shift into high, and enjoy the free-wheeling.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for my boss' wife. If she doesn't see it, I'm sure it will apply to many others.

To whom it may concern: By now you are back home and everything is fine. Or is it? You went away for the summer (you said the children needed a vacation) and you left your husband all alone. What did you expect him to do? Go home to an empty house every night and scramble an egg and watch TV?

I work for him. He was plain lonesome. He suggested dinner together and I said yes. I said yes to a few other suggestions, too. But don't worry, I didn't try to steal your husband (although it wouldn't have been difficult).

I really felt hard for this wonderful man and I don't want to get involved any more deeply than I am. I'm just giving you a little tip. You women who have good husbands should STAY HOME AND TAKE CARE OF THEM. If you leave him alone again, the next girl might not be as charitable as—"CALL ME HONEY"

DEAR ABBY: We have three beautiful children. They are exactly 14 months apart. I am expecting again in December. Why are people so cruel with their remarks? We are thrilled with the prospect of having another baby but when we try to share the news people say, "Oh, heavens... not again?" Or else, "One of you had better get something done!" My husband and I are beginning to feel ashamed to mention it.

Our children aren't neglected. They are well cared for and we don't leave them to relatives or sitters. We can afford to raise them without depriving one to give to the other.

What do we say to people who feel sorry for us and even try to force advice on us? HAPPY PARENTS DEAR ABBY: Why bother to say anything? You owe these people no explanations.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "AL": Hire a lawyer. His fee will be nothing compared to what it could cost you if you don't.

What's your problem? For a personal reply write to ABBY, care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Information on Cholesterol Level and Fatal Illnesses

Since there is some indication that there is a correlation between cholesterol blood levels and the kind of fat we eat and hardening of the arteries and strokes and heart attacks, many people who are interested in avoiding those killers are taking preventive measures.

There is no conclusive proof yet that cholesterol causes the little plaques which are deposited on the linings of the blood vessels, but it does seem to be identified with them in some way which has not yet been demonstrated. These dangerous plaques consist of cholesterol and calcium and other fatty materials.

Before menopause women have lower cholesterol blood level than men. After menopause it is just about the same. Before menopause fewer women than men die of disease correlated with hardening of the arteries. After change of life the mortality rates are about the same for both sexes. It may be that a woman's hormones keep her cholesterol level low until after menopause.

It is interesting to note that the higher the standard of living is the more heart disease there is and the richer a country is the greater the fat intake is in the diet. In the United States, which has the greatest evidence of heart disease, more than 40 per cent of the total caloric intake was obtained from fats.

It is becoming increasingly evident that the kind of fat we eat is also important, perhaps as much or more important than the amount. It now seems that the unsaturated fats may lower the blood cholesterol level while the saturated fats seem to raise it.

Vegetable fats like corn oil and cotton seed oil are saturated and supply us with essential fatty acids. Animal fats raise the cholesterol blood level and are low in essential fatty acids.

Hydrogenated fats are solid white unhydrogenated fats are liquid at room temperature. Some of the important fatty acids are lost in the process of hydrogenation.

While research continues there are a few things we know we should do. Reduce to the proper weight. If your cholesterol blood level is high or you have high blood pressure, your physician will guide you in reducing both. Heavy smoking is believed to be one of the factors involved in hardening of the arteries. On top of that you may want to cut down on your intake of animal fats by drinking skim or powdered, fat free milk, using corn oil more in cooking and using a corn oil margarine.

FINAL BULLETINS

Ottawa Riders Crush Argos

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Ottawa Rough Riders clinched second place in the Big Four Football League today by walloping the puncheon Toronto Argonauts 18 to 4. Meanwhile, touchdowns by Gerry McDougall and Duane Wood powered the Hamilton Tiger-Cats to a 16-9 win over the dead-game Montreal Alouettes today.

Jockey Dies After Golden Gate Fall

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Frederick Rose, 27, died today of a skull fracture suffered Thursday in a racing spill at Golden Gate Fields. The tumble left Rose unconscious and unable to undergo needed brain surgery.

$300,000 Blast Hits Sask. Town

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP)—An explosion today destroyed a downtown hardware store, sent four persons to hospital and caused damage unofficially estimated at $300,000. The blast, at this town 60 miles south of Regina, was caused by a fire.

B.C. Police Hunt Hit-Run Killer Driver

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—RCMP put up road blocks over a wide area today in an attempt to catch a motorist who struck a man and wife on the highway near Chetwynd, 200 miles north of here, killing the woman. Police identified the woman only as a Mrs. Napoleon. The husband was in fair condition in hospital at Dawson Creek.

Socreds Revive Class Warfare B.C. Tories Told

By PETE LOUDON, Times Staff Reporter

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS—Premier Bennett has done more to cement the alliance of CCF and labor than all the union organizers and Socialist politicians, B.C. Conservative Leader Deane Finlayson said today.

Speaking to the opening session of the annual meeting of party executives, Mr. Finlayson said the Bennett government "has held power largely to keep the CCF out of office. He sees his strength waning and he has through hostile attacks and provocative legislation put blood in the eye of labor."

"Class warfare has been revived, employee set against employer and vice versa. The premier hopes to exploit the consequences of such a policy by running as Sir Galahad who again offers to rescue the people from Socialism."

Labor policy of the B.C. Provincial Conservative party was expected to be formed later today as delegates settled down to resolutions.

Expected to emerge as indicated by Mr. Finlayson's remarks earlier is a middle-of-the-road labor policy favoring a complete revision of present labor laws including Bill 43. But the new Conservative recipe for labor peace was not defined by delegates concerned with the question this morning.

No Hint of Fireworks

The air of the convention was placid. If anyone has a radical course to espouse it wasn't apparent. Most of the policy makers appeared to be quietly prepared to discuss each idea as it came forward. And few appeared to have a preconceived picture of what the new labor policy should be.

An Agassiz delegate, former Victorian John Green, son of the federal minister of external affairs, felt a membership convention might be necessary to create election policy. But other sources at the conference felt a membership convention could mean a new leadership contest would evolve; and the last one gave Mr. Finlayson such a light margin of victory it was thought he would not favor risking his position so soon again.

Furthermore such contests create rifts in the party, however temporary, and the theme of Conservatism appears to be unity more than ever.

There were few more than 100 delegates at the opening session but more were expected this afternoon. The weather has cut attendance. Rain has poured down on Harrison almost incessantly in the last 20 hours.

One delegate this morning drew laughter when he looked out at Harrison Lake and asked: "Was that here yesterday?"

FIGHT ON PROXIES

One internal matter was expected to create some controversy later today. This was the question of proxy votes at conventions and conferences. The Dewdney Conservative Association says it has proven the use of proxies results in buying and selling of votes. This was alleged at the time of the last leadership convention in 1958.

The Dewdney resolution says one delegate should have one vote. Anyone who does not attend should have none.

New Drive For Ship Contracts

Mayor Percy Scurrell will lead a four-man delegation to Ottawa Sunday to fight for ship contracts which would preserve employment for 350 local shipyard employees in the next 18 months.

The mayor and delegates Conway Parrot, past president, Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Alf Toone, secretary-treasurer, Victoria Labor Council and businessman Courtney Haddock are paying their own way to Ottawa.

They plan to talk to Defence Minister Pearkes and other officials in the capital on Monday.

THREE-HOUR MEETING

Their decision to make a second personal trip to Ottawa came after a three-hour meeting Friday of the mayor's ship-building sub-committee.

Mayor Scurrell described as "touch-and-go" the chances of Victoria yards being awarded a $3,000,000 contract to build a 10,000-ton ship for the West Indies.

"I believe the pressure the committee put on Ottawa some time ago delayed the granting of the contract to another shipyard elsewhere," said the mayor.

"There is no other apparent reason the contract was not awarded three to four weeks ago."

He said the decision to go to Ottawa came after he spoke to Pearkes by telephone Friday night.

The mayor said he didn't believe there was "much chance" of Victoria yards getting a $3,000,000 contract to build a dredger. The government opened tenders for the job, Oct. 9, but hasn't announced which yard will get the job. The mayor said he thinks the government wants to reassess its position on the dredger.

If Victoria yards don't get a contract to build at least one of two 10,000-ton ships for the West Indies, local yards would lose 350 highly-trained personnel, said the mayor.

Last May the mayor led his committee to Ottawa to press for contracts which would keep local yards operating.

Benson in Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson was admitted to Walter Reed Army Hospital today

(Canada is looking north. The national government has launched a long-range policy of development for the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions of the country's northland. Erik Watt, a Winnipeg newspaperman, who has been studying the Arctic for years, has recently completed a trip down the Mackenzie River. Today he starts a series of seven articles on the land and its implications for the nation.)

By ERIK WATT

INUVIK, N.W.T. (Special)—Apartment lights gleam through the stunted pines and silver birch. Occasionally a truck passes, or a car or a motorscooter. In the still night sound carries long distances, and there is a hum in the air compounded of machinery noises, people talking, vehicles moving.

It's not what you'd think of as the Far North, but it could be the shape of the Far North to come.

This is Inuvik—"Man Place"—in Eskimo, the Town That Jack Built in plain English. For money long ago ceased to be any object in this government dream town on the east side of the wide Mackenzie River delta, 70 miles south of the Arctic coast.

It started out as a $3,000,000 moving job, conceived in Ottawa five years ago. The lustrous town of Aklavik, 40 miles southwest by air and smack in the middle of the delta, was to be written off and moved to this new location. For, said the experts, you couldn't have an all-weather airstrip in Aklavik; the whole town was sinking into the delta silt as the permafrost melted beneath its buildings, and it wasn't sanitary, either.

Somewhere along the line, the plans went awry. Little things had been overlooked—like the fact, for instance, that most of the 800 permanent and 500 summer residents of Aklavik had no desire to move to Inuvik or anywhere else. But government, once committed, never gives up in the north, and the project went ahead.

And, Topsy-like, it grew... and grew... and grew.

The original plan—to move Aklavik's buildings 70 miles by barge through the delta, was to be written off

14 More Hurt In Alberta

PARKLAND, Alta. (CP)—Twelve persons were killed—most of them apparently burned to death—and many injured today in the flaming crash of a propane gas truck and a railway diesel passenger train.

Eyewitnesses at the scene near this town 65 miles south of Calgary said the truck apparently hit the two-car Canadian Pacific Railway diesel at a crossing. It struck the second coach which immediately was engulfed in flames.

Three persons in the truck were killed and nine in the coach that was struck.

The body of one man in the truck was thrown, aflame, into a roadside ditch. The burned bodies of the other two persons in the truck were found in the cab.

14 IN HOSPITAL

The number of injured could not be determined accurately immediately. Fourteen persons were taken to hospital in Claresholm, 50 miles south of Calgary.

"It was a terrible sight," one woman told reporters. "Bodies of a man and woman were lying on the track and the train and truck were burning."

First to reach the scene was a farmer, Ellis Oviatt, and his hired man, Paul Terlesky. They live a half mile from the crossing.

Terlesky said he was watching as the truck and train met and the truck exploded.

FOUR RESCUED

They dragged four persons through the rear door of the second coach. Fierce flames prevented them from rescuing others.

The first coach was not derailed. The second flaming coach was tipped over by the impact and was prevented from falling over by the coupling with forward coach.

Farmers in the area attracted by the fire assisted in taking the injured to hospital.

Doctors and nurses came from surrounding towns and ambulances and fire engines raced to the scene from Lethbridge, Nanton, Stavely, Claresholm and as far away as Calgary.

INTO HYSTERICS

"It was horrible," said Rose Siemky of Fort McLeod, a passenger in the rear seat of the first coach. "Just before the shock of the collision I was watching a girl in the rear coach reading a magazine. Then the collision came."

"Windows shattered, flames leaped into the coach and the girl I was watching went into hysterics."

Appointments Hinted

Steel Talks On

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Steel negotiators met today in a race against time to forge out agreement in the nationwide steel strike before an appellate court rules on a Taft Hartley back-to-work injunction.

EYEWITNESS:

'Horrible
—I Am Heartsick'

CALGARY (CP)—The crash of a propane gas truck and a speeding train near Parkland today was "horrible—I'm heartsick," said the man who was first on the scene where 12 persons were burned to death and many others injured.

Ellis Oviatt, a farmer in the Parkland area 65 miles south of Calgary, told what he saw in a story in The Calgary Herald.

This is his story: I was sitting at the window of my farmhouse one-quarter of a mile from the accident scene when my attention was attracted by a train horn.

BLOWING HORN

I looked out and heard him blowing the horn right up until the time the truck hit him. The train was immediately surrounded by flames but the truck didn't burn until it stopped. The flames flashed from the coach to the truck.

I telephoned the operator, then called Terlesky, my hired man, and we jumped in the truck and drove to the accident which was in my field.

We helped four people out of the window of the second car. They were a man and his wife and two other women who were badly cut and seriously injured.

The flames had started to get into the train and the smoke was thick inside. Terlesky attempted to get in the coach by crawling through the door where they were coupled together, but he couldn't open the door. The smoke drove him out.

He then smashed some windows. People were streaming out of the train and others were screaming for help from inside the burning car.

The screams only lasted about a minute.

Then we couldn't hear anything from inside.

FIRST AID

By then the fire was so bad we couldn't do anything for the people inside the train so we applied first aid to the four injured, loaded them on the truck and took them to the Claresholm hospital.

I asked the man if his party was out and he said "yes." I asked how many were in the coach and he said "25."

He said he couldn't see anyone for, by then, they were all crowded around the train.

He told me there was a mass of people on the floor of the train as he crawled along to get out. He had been sitting by a window and was thrown across the car by the impact.

"It was horrible. I'm heartsick over it all."

TORY LEADER RAPS BENNETT ON DOLLAR

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — Deane Finlayson, British Columbia Progressive Conservative leader, today accused Premier Bennett of deliberately undermining the confidence of the people in the Canadian dollar.

Mr. Finlayson made the charge in a keynote address to the 321 delegates to the B.C. Conservative Association's annual general meeting here.

He said the main issue of any future provincial election must be that of "getting a government in Victoria that can and will co-operate with the federal government in Ottawa."

HIGH COST

In January this year, it was estimated Inuvik had cost the people of Canada $34,000,000. This fall guesses on the ultimate figure range from $50,000,000 up, mostly up.

When the last bill is paid, the government will have a new administrative centre, complete with 6,000-foot all-weather airport and central heating (for whites and wealthy natives only). But no one can tell you why.

HEALTH BOARD GETS FACTS

Fluoridation Costs 28 Cents A Head a Year

By TONY DICKASON

Fluoridation of drinking water would cost 28 cents a year for each Greater Victoria resident.

This was revealed Friday by Water District Commissioner R. A. Upward.

His facts were made available through Ira Hill, fluoridation chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at a meeting in city hall of municipal representatives called by the Victoria-Esquamet Health Board to discuss the contents of fluoridation issue.

It would cost $44,000 an initial expenditure and an additional $43,000 a year to operate a fluoridation system for Greater Victoria, Mr. Upward's figures showed.

Costs, he revealed, would involve purchase and installation of machines, manpower and purchase of the chemical.

All costs, he said, excepting purchase of the chemical and wages would be static, "and the yearly cost trend would be down."

Speakers were Dr. J. W. Anderson, a medical practitioner; Dr. W. W. McLuhan, city dentist and chairman, B.C. Dental Association fluoridation committee; and Mr. Hill.

Dr. Anderson, a medical man, pointed out that fluorides were not something manufactured by man but were in certain districts, an integral part of minerals deposited.

A high fluoride content to water, he said, caused mottling of teeth, but not decay. On the basis of the "plus" fluoride factor, even when naturally available, mottling was not serious, he said.

He stated some communities had withdrawn support of fluoridation because of the teeth mottling factor, despite the positive factor that the chemical drastically cut dental caries.

To critics of the harm allegedly caused by taking fluorides in drinking water, he said the recommended dose to help teeth was so small an individual would have to drink 1,000 gallons of water, at one sitting, to sustain any damage from the chemical.

Other Methods Costly, Cumbersome

He termed other methods of administering fluorides, such as painting teeth of children, "cumbersome and expensive."

Use of fluorides in drinking water in areas using the chemical had effected "up to 65 per cent savings in dental care amongst children."

Dr. McLuhan termed use of the chemical "safe, sane, cheap and effective."

He said he failed to understand the mentality of persons who would not criticize anti-polio vaccine, and other vaccine, but would object to fluoridation.

He laughed about a suggestion use of fluorides was "a Communist plot to do us harm," which had been forwarded earlier, elsewhere.

Canadians, he said, spent $70,000,000 annually getting teeth fixed. With use of the chemical this could be cut drastically.

Fluorides in drinking water was of use, to unborn children through mothers and water taken in later life made teeth more resistant to decay.

Mr. Hill pointed out that costs of fluoridation varied, but they were all negligible, 17.6 cents per year in Kelowna to 6.3 cents in Smithers, B.C.

Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch asked why, if fluoridation was to cut dental trouble, dentists who should normally benefit by dental difficulties backed fluoridation.

Dr. McLuhan answered: "What doctor wouldn't use an anti-biotic to keep a patient well?"

In his comments, Mr. Murdoch said there were certain groups and "members of religious faiths in Victoria who don't believe in taking medicine of any kind."

Beer Parlor Crackdown Hailed Here

Closing of five Nanaimo beer parlors Thursday night was praised today by a Victoria beer parlor operator.

"They took matters into their own hands," said Sid Roitman, owner of the Churchill Hotel and part-owner of the Tudor House. "I think they were foolish in their actions."

The hotels—The Nanaimo, Lotus, Plaza, Somerset, and Wellington—were ordered closed for what the Liquor Control Board called "unsatisfactory operation."

However, the closure order followed an investigation by an LCB inspector which revealed some hotel operators refused to sell the small 10-cent, 7 1/2-ounce glass of beer and favored the large 20-cent, 12-ounce glass.

The closure need not last, it was indicated by a responsible senior authority in the government.

"This was a case of a segment of the industry apparently trying the board on for size, a mass revolt perhaps, and in the circumstances the board had no choice but to act as it did," he said.

"As soon as they come back to the 10-cent glasses, the closure will probably be lifted."

The B.C. Hotels Association, to which the affected hotel operators belong, had a meeting in Vancouver Friday and indicated later it will conduct an inquiry into the action of the LCB.

In defence of the remaining 18 Nanaimo beer parlors which still are operating as usual, beer drinkers in the Up Island city said today that in the majority of the hotels a customer can get a 10-cent glass of beer without question or delay.

Victoria beer parlor operators all stock the 10-cent glass and claim there is no "quibbling" when a customer wants the smaller glass.

Phone Exchange Building Ready

CHEMAMUS Construction of the B.C. Telephone Co. new automatic exchange building on Willow Street has been completed.

For the past three weeks crews have been laying pipes in cement for the cables for the new system.

The gang laying the pipes expects to complete the work this week, and will be followed by the cable-laying crew.

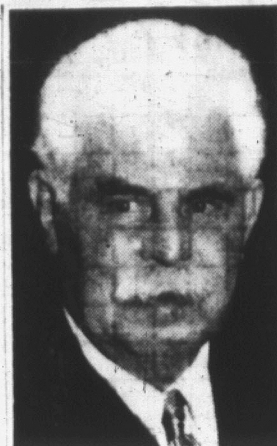

When all the cables have been placed in the cement-encased pipes the splicing gang will complete the job.

Cobble Hill Offers City Pure Water

George E. Bonner, unofficial mayor of Cobble Hill, today invited Victorians to taste the village's drinking water, which he claims is the purest and finest on Vancouver Island.

His invitation follows a complaint from insurance agent Askel Underbakke, 4588 Balmacara, that Victoria water is "so lifeless, tasteless and mucky" that he brings back water from trips to the Island's west coast.

Mr. Bonner, who is secretary-treasurer of the water system, said there was no need for Mr. Underbakke or disatisfied Victorians to travel for miles for crystal-clear water.

"We have some right here," he said. "And if the city will pay for the piping we will provide you with some."

He said when the provincial health inspector tested the water system a few months ago he was "so delighted" that he asked if he could take some home to his family in Duncan.

"Our water comes from a spring—straight from rock, situated about halfway up Cobble Hill," he said. "It's unadulterated."

In addition, he said, the village has an artesian well to boost the village water supply when necessary. The water is used by the entire village, schools and commercial businesses.

Rally to Draw 75-Car Entry

PORT ALBERNI—A 600-mile, 18-hour highway and side road auto rally to cover practically all of the Vancouver Island road system will be staged in November by the Alberni Valley Road and Custom Association.

At least 75 entries are expected from clubs on both Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Final date has not been fixed, but it will be set to start at 8.30 p.m. on a Saturday night, and finish at about 3 p.m. the next day.

Route will be from here to Victoria, then to Sidney and return by Mill Bay ferry to back roads leading to Nanaimo. The course will continue north to Campbell River, then back to Qualicum Beach and return to Port Alberni.

Six hidden check points along the route will clock all cars in and out to make certain cars follow the prescribed course. Missing a check point will disqualify an entry.

RCMP will be asked to set up one or two radar check points.

Competition will be in three classes, for European cars, domestic cars and team entries. There will be individual prizes and a grand prize of $100 to the overall winner.

Entries will provide their own food. It is expected arrangements will be made with one or more service stations along the route to remain open.

Consider These Features:

- Engineered by NSU of West Germany (since 1873).
- NSU PRINZ engine is made of aluminum and air-cooled; NSU has made over 2,000,000 air-cooled engines.
- Engine has special, expensive overhead cams.
- Air-cooled means no winterizing — no freeze-ups in winter — no antifreeze required — no over-heating in summer — trouble free operation.
- The NSU runs on regular gas — no oil-gel mixture.
- NSU PRINZ has the best power-to-weight ratio of any small car. Therefore terrific pick-up, acceleration and hill-climbing ability.
- NSU PRINZ is a motor car which boasts speeds up to 75 MPH, with fuel economy up to 70 MPG. Truly astounding roadability and ease of handling.
- Full synchronization on all 4 forward gears, as compared with other more expensive cars having synchronization on only 3 gears.
- Unfitted body construction: rattle free, stronger, sturdier and safer.
- The NSU PRINZ has only 2 lubrication points.
- Amazing all around visibility.
- Effective heater and defroster are standard equipment.
- 12-volt system.
- Heater, defroster, directional, leatherette upholstery, electric wipers, very solid bumpers are all standard equipment.

RUSSIA WON'T BACK DELAY IN SUMMIT

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia said today there is "no justification" for postponing an East-West summit conference until next spring.

In an indirect blast at French President de Gaulle's suggestion for delaying the meeting, the Soviet government said that "there are powers in the world" working against an East-West thaw.

The slums now rising just outside Inuvik's boundaries, where people who wish to have their families with them but do not wish to live in tents have put up shacks, may well indicate the final design of Inuvik; posh government quarters surrounded by makeshift shanties which make Akilavik's ancient shacks and cabins look utterly respectable by comparison.

The government cannot write off Akilavik; it has simply built a new town, for most of Akilavik's inhabitants are staying where they are.

This poses a fresh problem. There must be police, a government welfare officer, at least one nurse and a game warden, a department of transport signals station and schoolteachers in Akilavik when Inuvik is ready. And along with the town it spawned, and the taxpayer will dig yet a little deeper.

The Anglican and Roman Catholic residential schools in Akilavik were to be abandoned. So the government drew up plans for a huge new federal day school and two hostels, each capable of housing 250 children. Each includes two two-storey playrooms, with a full-size basketball court in the middle; one for boys, one for girls.

The government buildings and houses in Akilavik were to be abandoned. So rows of crackerbox four-plexes, probably the ugliest buildings which have ever been built in this country—were designed for the civil service. Each two-storey unit has four myopic windows peering out from vast sliding walls onto a vista of corrugated utilidors, insulated pipe-boxes which carry water, steam and sewage lines.

There was an explanation for these monstrosities, too: heat loss. Big windows, like those in police or Hudson's Bay Company posts, or trappers' log cabins, aren't suitable in the Arctic.

(No one in the architect's office, apparently, thought to check up on weather records, which would show that Inuvik's winter temperatures are roughly comparable to those in Edmonton, 1,200 air miles south.)

The architects did not, however, forget the esthetic side of things. They painted each unit of these ghastly structures in four colors, ranging from pastel yellow to shrieking orange, using a combination of, as far as these bleary eyes can recall, 16 different colors.

NEW HOSPITAL

There was need, of course, for a hospital, to replace the two hospitals in Akilavik (both mission operated). So Inuvik will have a 120-bed hospital next year. The standard figure for hospitals is roughly 50 beds per thousand of population. Inuvik has a population now of 1,300—the majority of these people construction men who will leave when their jobs are finished.

It might be worthy to note that the school and hostel opened this fall and that there are nearly 400 children registered now—with the nearest hospital and doctors at Akilavik. In an emergency, the doctors will have to use an airstrip cleared by the people of Akilavik themselves—the government hasn't yet got around to doing anything about licensing it—to fly to Inuvik at break-up and freeze-up. And this, of course, only if the weather is good enough for flying—which it frequently isn't in the delta.

Soon after the draughtsmen put away their tools and the engineers got to work, it became apparent that the highly-touted utilidors had one drawback; they would be too expensive to be used in more than a portion of the townsite. So, Inuvik now consists of three areas: the serviced area, the unserviced area and the camp area.

COST OF SERVICES

The serviced area is reserved for government employees, a business section which will include a hotel, now building and a laundry, which may open this fall, government offices and a few private citizens who can afford the cost of the services.

The unserviced area is more of a problem. It sports delightful two-storey structures known locally as the Inuvik Wheat Pool because they are shaped like miniature grain elevators. Storage tanks, to be dumped once a week, are located on the lower floor. A flight of steps leads to the second floor which sports one toilet for men and another for women, plus a drain down which discharges and other liquid waste can be dumped. One cynical humorist has suggested the doors should be labelled "His," "Hers" and "Theirs."

And a more practical soul observed that people who carry bucketsful of liquid waste more than 100 yards or so in winter will arrive with the contents frozen solid.

CAMP AREA

The camp area, in which no permanent buildings can be erected, is for construction workers (mainly Indian and Eskimo) who wish to have their families with them. Tents may be erected here, or walled huts with tent roofs, but not any structure, portable or not, with other than a canvas roof.
